Rep. Tunheim disappointed by Ontario act

"I'm very disappointed in the new limits on fishing placed by Ontario on people who stay in Minnesota resorts and fish in Ontario waters on Lake of the Woods," states Rep. Jim Tunheim of Kennedy.

And he has drafted legislation he says he hopes will deter the new regulations.

The Ontario Minister of Natural Resources announced earlier this month that people who fish Ontario waters but are staying at a Minnesota resort will be limited to two walleyes per day. However, people who stay in Ontario will be allowed to take six walleyes per day in the same waters. This new restriction begins January 1.

"This is another of several attempts over the years to encourage vacationers to stay in Ontario instead of Minnesota by unfairly penalizing people who stay here," Rep. Tunheim said. "Minnesota resorters have told me that this restriction will have a very destructive effect on them."

A legislative committee that Rep. Tunheim chairs held a hearing in the Northwest Angle in early October to discuss the Ontario action and other issues. As a result of that hearing, he drafted legislation that he says he will introduce when the Minnesota legislative session resumes in February.

"Under my bill," he said, "anyone who fishes in Ontario but passes through Minnesota won't be allowed to have in their possession more than two walleyes when entering our state.

"The Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources said it imposed the new restrictions to provide better management of the resource and protect Lake of the Woods from being over-fished. But if that's true, then it makes sense to impose the same limits on everyone who fishes in the lake, no matter where they're staying."

According to a 1989 survey published by the Minnesota-Ontario Boundary Water Fish Atlas, Rep. Tunheim pointed out, only 23.2 per cent of the fish taken from the Lake of the Woods sector that is north and east of the Northwest Angle were caught by Minnesota anglers. But the total take from people who live in Ontario is 82 per cent, including commercial fishing companies as well as sport fishing.

"If Ontario is truly interested in conservation," he said, "they should think about limiting the harvest of fish in Ontario.

"One reason why I'm so disappointed in the action by Ontario officials is that I believe we should be working together to promote and market the entire area as a recreation area regardless of international boundaries," Rep. Tunheim added. "It's in the best interests of resorters and small business owners in both Ontario and Minnesota to attract vacationers to this beautiful area.

"When controversy like this arises, it tends to drive everyone away—whether they're planning to stay in Ontario or Minnesota. No one wins in a situation like this."

Merging TC and Northland CC receives praise

Merger efforts by administrators and others to combine the Thief River Falls campus of Northwest Technical College and Northland Community College into a single institution have been praised by Dr. Jay Noren, chancellor of the Minnesota Higher Education Board (MHEB). The MHEB is conducting the merger of 62 state universities, technical colleges and community colleges by July 1, 1995.

Dr. Noren has recommended that the merger take place through a memorandum of understanding for the 1994-95 academic year to guide a process for consolidating services that are now duplicated at the two colleges. The memorandum also would allow the technical college campus to have local management and administration rather than being a part of the six-campus Northwest Technical College.

"The leaders of these two colleges, their faculties and staffs deserve compliments for their discussions on how the two colleges might be operated as a single institution," Dr. Noren said following a meeting in Thief River Falls last Friday.

"While an actual merger cannot take place until July 1, 1995 (when the mega-merger of all of the state's community and technical colleges and state universities is scheduled to officially begin), this is the time to plan in every detail how a merger will work," Dr. Noren added.

Meeting with the chancellor were Dr. Jim Haviland, president of Northland Community College; Dr. Orley Gunderson, president of the Thief River Falls campus of Northwest Technical College; Dr. Ray Cross, president of the Northwest

Developed especially to serve convenience stores, Take Five was announced this week by Hartz Foods, Inc. of Thief River Falls as a new division of the company. It is a part of the expansion plan currently underway at Hartz Foods and is scheduled for implementation January 3.

Paul Nelson, company president, said that Ed Walseth of Thief River Falls has been named as manager of the new division. Walseth has a background in the convenience store industry and was a zone counselor for Hartz Foods prior to his appointment to head the new division.

Appointed as sales representative for the Take Five division is Fred Sharbonda of Grand Rapids, who will be working directly with the stores on a weekly basis. Sharbonda has nine years of experience in the convenience store industry.

Walseth said the convenience store emphasis has been in the development stage since early last spring although the company has been serving convenience stores to a limited extent for some time. He said the concerns expressed by convenience store owners in a company survey are being addressed totally by the new division.

"The fact that we received a 62 per cent response rate to our survey indicates that there were a number of dealer needs not being met by any one supplier," Walseth said. "It is part of the service program of Take Five to be the supplier that can fulfill those needs."

In addition to prior experience gained by Walseth and others, and the additional insight the survey response provided, Hartz Foods employed Duane Cariveau, president of Cariveau Consulting Services of Grand Forks, ND, to help develop the program. The objective, Cariveau said, is to determine means to help the retailer be more profitable.

Some of the survey response concerns and how Hartz Foods will meet the needs through the Take Five division are as follows:

- Offer a wide variety of items. The full line of products available to grocery stores and supermarkets from Hartz Foods will be available to Take Five stores.
- Make the fastest sellers available in less-than-case quantities. This is one of the services being offered under the Take Five program.
- Give us competitive prices. Volume buying and the ability to take advantages of specials and promotional items will assure Take Five stores of competitive prices.
- Provide damage and outdated merchandise reclaim service. This service is included as part of the Take Five program.
- Offer us weekly and monthly specials. Specials will be offered as part of the program to make Take Five stores especially attractive places to stop.

The name derives from the invitation to "take five" minutes for a stop at the convenience store for a break from driving or other activities.

Amity scholar Eva Junquera from Barcelona, Spain, is spending the 1993-94 school year with Mark and Patty Blackwell in Thief River Falls. Her experience will include observing the Christmas and New Years holidays in this country.

Student from Spain discusses holidays

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

American wives who dislike a steady diet of football on television should take heart that they don't live in Spain. Television brings another popular sport into the home in that country.....bullfighting.

"Oh, yes, it is still very popular in some parts of the country and it is shown on television," reports Eva Junquera, Amity scholar from Barcelona, Spain, who assists Mary Follett in teaching Spanish at Franklin middle school. "But I don't watch it and I don't go to the bullfights in Barcelona."

Eva is spending this school year as a guest in the home of Mark and Patty Blackwell and attends classes in social studies and English at Lincoln high school in addition to her assistance in the Spanish program.

This year Eva will be away from her parents' apartment for the holidays, observing customs and traditions of Christmas in the United States. She will miss being with her family, but says she is very interested in learning more about Christmas in America.

"Spain is all Catholic and we all celebrate the religious part of Christmas in much the same way," she said, although there are variations in the overall holiday observance.

"Every family has a Nativity scene in the home," Eva said. "They are small or large depending on the space people have available. Most people live in apartments and have not much space, but find a main place to display their Nativity scene. It is one of the things they like to show others who come to visit and one of the things people look for when they visit others."

Addition of figures to the scene is one of the enjoyments of having it, Junquera noted, although there is pride in maintaining the scenes over many years. Every year there are shops set up in the streets which specialize in selling decorations for Christmas, including a wide assortment of figures for the scenes.

"It is not only Mary and Joseph and shepherds, wisemen and angels," she said. "There are many different figures of people and animals that are used."

Streets are decorated for the holidays and business places do a lot of decorating, Eva said. Christmas notes are sent—similar to our type of Christmas cards in design but with no printed greeting.

There are some Christmas trees decorated, she said, but they are more for children and not often used because of lack of availability and the amount of space they require.

Rather than attend masses in the city's cathedrals, she said, most of the people watch the Mass of the Rooster on television on Christmas Eve and watch and listen to the

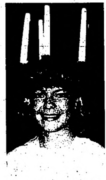
Season's Greetings



The crown of lighted candles, or "Luciakrona" is worn by Santa Lucia, Lynda Isaksson, at the Festival of Santa Lucia celebrated in Oslo on December 12. Legend says that Santa Lucia strapped torches to her head to light the way as she carried food to the starving in Sweden and that is one of the explanations of why the lighted crown is worn in today's Santa Lucia ceremonies.

THANK YOU

To Oakland Park Nursing Home for the great care you gave our mother while she was a Resident. Thanks also to Rev. Bob Possehl & Rev. Ron Calvert for their visits to her and the comforting words at her funeral. And Thanks to all our friends that were with us in this time of sorrow.

Season's Greetings

The crown of lighted candles, or "Luciakrona" is worn by Santa Lucia, Lynda Isaksson, at the Festival of Santa Lucia celebrated in Oslo on December 12. Legend says that Santa Lucia strapped torches to her head to light the way as she carried food to the starving in Sweden and that is one of the explanations of why the lighted crown is worn in today's Santa Lucia ceremonies.

THANK YOU

To Oakland Park Nursing Home for the great care you gave our mother while she was a Resident. Thanks also to Rev. Bob Possehl & Rev. Ron Calvert for their visits to her and the comforting words at her funeral. And Thanks to all our friends that were with us in this time of sorrow.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

. . . I Believe in Santa Claus

I was going to write a story about how Christmas was when I was a little girl, but, as usual, I got sidetracked. I started jotting down my Christmas memories, but they always came back to that jolly fellow – Santa.

Last year I told you about Uncle Santa, but this year I will tell you how it felt to wait for Santa's visit. No doubt you have already decided that Santa is my favorite part of Christmas, and you are right. Maybe this little story will help you understand why I still feel the way I do about Santa.

This column is dedicated to my grandson, Ryan, who is eight, and who told me he does not believe in Santa Claus.

As I said before, Santa always came to our house on Christmas Eve night. Our windows always had polka dots on them because my cousins and I would press our noses against the frosty glass, peering out to catch a glimpse of Santa. We especially wanted to see Santa's reindeer.

Each year we would make our plans for one or another of us to keep a vigil at the windows at all times during the evening so that we could catch a glimpse of those reindeer. We knew that we had to see them before Santa got to the door and started to ring his jingle bells, because by that time it would be too late.

Every single Christmas Eve night something would come up that drew all of us away from our window-watching. Either the Christmas cookie trays were brought out and we flocked to choose our favorites, or the uncles were in the kitchen making egg nog and we had to go taste it, or the aunts were cooling fudge outside the back door and we needed to help beat it and lick the spoons. Sooner or later the window-watching would be abandoned.

And, sure enough, just as you can imagine, that was the time that we would hear the jingle bells that meant Santa was on his way in the door. Can you beat it, we missed seeing those reindeer every year!

However, we all got so excited we forgot about the reindeer when one of the cousins first heard the bells and shouted, no, screamed, no, shrieked, loudly, "Santa is coming! I hear the bells! He's here! Santa is here!"

Usually the one who was the first to hear the bells was in such a state and got so excited that he or she either started crying or wet his or her pants or sometimes did both. This would start all of the other younger cousins crying, too, and mothers would come to grab them up and pat them. Even the oldest of us got into a state of pure panic when we heard those bells.

It wasn't that Santa was scary – he was really not scary at all. It had to be the excitement of waiting and waiting so that when he appeared it was so anticlimactic that we were simply overwhelmed.

As Santa entered the house, cold, frosty air would swirl in around him, making it appear as though he was coming forth in a magical cloud. The jingle bells he wore all over would jangle louder and louder the closer he came and the "Ho, ho, ho!" he shouted would numb the ear drums.

What a din there was – if the cousins weren't crying loudly, they were jumping around like little Mexican beans and shrieking "Hi, Santa. Hi, Santa! Look at me! Look at me!" at the top of their lungs, hoping he would notice them. Santa's jingling cow bells that dangled from him everywhere were jangling and jarring the senses; and his jolly "Ho, ho, ho" seemed to sound like the roar of a giant.

He seemed like a giant, dressed all in red, with a huge tummy sticking out in front of him, and white fuzz covering nearly all of his face, and his brighter than real red cheeks and nose. Even his feet seemed outlandish, clad in monstrous black boots. And his bag, his black bag, bulging grotesquely with lumps and bumps and strange knobs and swellings. How would he ever find room in it for toys for children other than those in our family?

Every year, as I got older, I tried to be calm and nonchalant about Santa and I would look for flaws in him. Was his beard real or was it fake? Were his cheeks and nose the real color or were they made so red with rouge? Were his eyebrows the right color, white, and not black or brown? Was his tummy really fat or was it a pillow? Did he really have elves that made those presents he brought?

But every Christmas, no matter how hard I tried to find something wrong with Santa, or how "grown up" and casual I tried to be about him, something would happen to me between the time he came through the door in a magical cloud and left again.

By the time he shouted his last happy "Merry Christmas!" and his red suit and now empty black bag disappeared out of the door, I believed in him. Despite the fact that his beard may have been a little strange or his tummy a little soft, it didn't matter. It didn't matter that I was too old to believe. In my heart, he was real.

As the door closed behind him, the house seemed to be a little bit empty, and so did my heart. And that's why I love to see Santa come every year.

CAP members in advanced training

Three officers from the Civil Air Patrol squadron at the Thief River Falls regional airport recently participated in an eight-hour course on the human factor in flight safety at the aerospace training center at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

Squadron Commander Dave Odette, 1st Lt. Pat Hoffmann and 2nd Lt. Hal Waale, all CAP certified pilots, used the training to improve their skills.

Primary purpose of the program was to expose these pilots to an awareness of subtle changes in flying conditions which can have dramatic affects on their abilities.

During the course, pilots enter an altitude chamber which can simulate a pressure change from sea level to 25,000 feet. Pilots are taught to recognize their own reaction to hypoxia, spatial disorientation, visual illusion and changes in night vision.

The course was sponsored by the Civil Air Patrol, University of North Dakota and the United States Air Force.

Gas prices decline from November

A recent survey by Minnesota AAA shows the average price of self-serve unleaded gasoline in the state is $1.121, a drop of almost five cents a gallon from Thanksgiving when the price averaged $1.168.

"OPEC continues to over produce, which has in turn brought down retail prices because supplies have remained ample, with several regions reporting sizeable surpluses," states Ron Siegmund, AAA spokesperson.

According to the survey, the price for self-service unleaded was lowest in northern Minnesota at $1.117 per gallon. The average was $1.119 in southern Minnesota and the metropolitan area and $1.147 in central Minnesota.

Full-service unleaded gasoline was lowest in central Minnesota at $1.251, followed by $1.257 in southern Minnesota, $1.290 in northern Minnesota and $1.466 in the metropolitan area.

Just over half of the stations surveyed said they would be open on Christmas day, so motorists are advised to have their vehicles' tanks filled before Saturday.

Milk output down 5% in November

November 1993 milk production totaled 735 million pounds in Minnesota, down five per cent from the 770 million pounds produced in November of 1992. Revised October 1993 milk production was 745 million pounds, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service.

Production per cow averages 1,140 pounds in November of 1993, down 35 pounds from last November. The revised October rate was 1,155 pounds per cow.

Number of milk cows on farms in Minnesota during November was 645,000 head, unchanged from October but down 10,000 from a year ago. Accumulated milk production for the first 11 months of 1993 was 8.94 billion pounds, down one per cent from the same period in 1992.

These students at Northwest Technical college in Thief River Falls were among those receiving $200 Hartz Foundation scholarships last Wednesday at an awards program in the Northland Community College theater. Strathcona man found innocent of all charges Hal Anderson of rural Strathcona, has been found innocent by a jury of all charges resulting from a September 1, 1993, shooting incident in Strathcona.

According to a news release from his attorney, "Hal Anderson was originally charged with attempted murder in the second degree, attempted manslaughter in the first degree, first degree assault, and second degree assault. After a four day jury trial in Roseau County District Court, the jury deliberated only two and one-half hours before finding Hal Anderson innocent of all charges."

Hal Anderson's attorney, Steven Anderson of Warroad, stated "Hal Anderson asserted his innocence from the moment he was arrested. It is clear from the jury's short deliberation period that the jury understood and agreed that Hal Anderson was only defending himself in this incident."

Traffic signal timing changed Monday in TRF

Traffic signal timing has been changed in Thief River Falls.

Minnesota department of transportation has released the following statement, "The timing of traffic signals along Trunk Highways 59 and 32 in Thief River Falls was changed on Monday, December 20, to move traffic more efficiently along the city's major arteries. Motorists may experience slight delays on the crossroads, according to Greg Gruber, traffic technician for Minnesota department of transportation.

"The timing is in effect Mondays through Fridays, and the signals revert back to traffic responsive on Saturdays and Sundays, according to Gruber.

"Minnesota department of transportation traffic studies indicate that these changes cause Thief River Falls traffic to move more efficiently to conserve fuel and save time."

Arthur Paulson arrested by Red Lake Co.

Arthur James Paulson, 34, Thief River Falls, was arrested without incident by the Red Lake county sheriff's department. Paulson was arrested in Plummer on a warrant from Red Lake county for theft of services and trespassing. He was transported to Northwest Regional Correctional facility in Crookston.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

I would like to address a problem that has been bothering me for quite a while. At school, I don't feel that I am treated with respect. The problem doesn't lie, however, with my fellow classmates; it lies with the administration. I'm sure you all remember the uproar over the "No Hat/Bandana" policy. After a while things quieted down and were basically pushed under the rug. The attitude of the administration toward the students, however, still hasn't changed.

Recently, we students have been banned from the upstairs hallway during lunch hours. We questioned the fairness of this rule and instead of having it explained to us, a speech was delivered over the intercom which basically told us not to question authority

I was quite impressed with this myself, and thought it rather commendable. I loved the movie "1984." After all, imagine what a terrible state this country would be in if everyone went around questioning things they felt were unfair. Oh, the chaos if people were to utilize their First Amendment right!

But wait; you know our country wouldn't even be here if it weren't for those rebellious deviants referred to in history books as "our forefathers."

Gentleman and ladies of Lincoln, I am not saying that your decision to close the upstairs hallway during lunch hours was wrong. In fact, I'm sure you have a good reason. I was disappointed, however, with your reaction to our questions.

We are young, but we are also human beings and deserve to be respected as such. We, as American citizens, have the right to question any rule placed upon us, and if we feel the rule to be unfair, it is our duty to do so.

As employees of an institution of learning, you are here to educate us and set an example for us. Please, do not teach us to ignore our rights and accept without question things we feel to be unjust.

Sincerely,
Rachael Marshall

Three-vehicle accident in TRF

Minnesota state patrol responded to a report of the accident at 11:24 p.m. December 18. Darrin Anderson, 18, Middle River, was driving a 1985 Pontiac and was stopped at a traffic light facing west on First at Main. Aaron Janisch, 21, Thief River Falls, was driving a 1986 Ford pickup Ranger, and was traveling north on Main. The Janisch vehicle collided with the Iverson vehicle in the intersection pushing the Iverson vehicle into the Anderson vehicle. There was extensive damage to the Iverson and Janisch vehicles and moderate damage to the Anderson vehicle. Iverson was cited for failure to yield. No one was injured.

In Loving Memory Of Our Son & Brother Thomas Raymond

A cluster of precious memories sprinkled with love and tears, wishing you had been with us, if only for a few more years.

You left a precious memory, and sorrow too great to hold; and to all who loved and lost you, your memory will never grow old.

You were taken from us so suddenly, we never got to say good-bye. But we know you're watching over us, from the heavens in the sky.

May God Bless you Tom! We love you and miss you so very, very much...

Love,

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. How much will the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) cost of living adjustment (COLA) be? What is the highest SSI payable?

A. Recipients of SSI will receive the same 2.6 percent COLA as Social Security beneficiaries and the increase is scheduled to be in the SSI checks due December 30.

Because of this COLA the 1994 monthly maximum SSI rate will be $446 for an individual and $669 for a couple. Existing resource limits of $2,000 for an individual and $3,000 for a couple are not changing although many items, such as the home and car, do not count. Note that most income will reduce the SSI payable and that checks can fluctuate monthly if income varies.

Supplemental Security Income is a need based program for disabled children, including infants, under age 18, disabled adults age 18-64, and all needy adults at least age 65. A person can receive both Social Security and SSI assuming other requirements are met. For more information contact Social Security.

Q. How much will I be able to earn a 1994 before affecting my Social Security?

A. People who receive Social Security for other than their own disability have an earnings test (retirement test). In 1994, a person under age 65 will be able to earn gross wages or net income from self-employment of $8,040 before Social Security checks for 1994 are affected. Someone age 65-69 can earn $11,160 before affecting benefits, and, once age 70, there is no earnings test. Since people retire all during a year there is also a one time retirement test figure based on monthly earnings in the year of retirement.

Reminder: Mailing evidence to Social Security? Please be sure to include your name, Social Security number, address and telephone number with the material so that it can be given to the right person for action.

Chances are that in your home, as in mine, there now stands a Christmas tree. Not many of us wait until Christmas Day to place our trees in our homes, as formerly was the custom. Many of us, in fact, put our trees up sometime during the Thanksgiving holiday. I think that Thanksgiving weekend is a mite early for decorating my tree, and so I wait until a couple of weeks before Christmas to decorate our tree.

We have had an assortment of trees throughout the years. Our first Christmas tree, though, was perhaps the prettiest. Maybe it was the fact that it was our first Christmas and this was our first Christmas tree. Maybe it was the fact that we could just barely scrape together enough money for one string of lights – but I insisted that they be the "new" little lights. Maybe it was the homemade decorations – cranberry and popcorn chains and ribbon decorations. Whatever the reason, that first Christmas tree, bought in a Chicago tree lot, dripping needles even before we bought it, was the prettiest we have had.

Other trees have been memorable as well. The tree we had the year our son learned to walk the week before Christmas is a part of our Christmas memories. It was a pretty tree. It had "real" decorations. It had plenty of lights. It also had chairs all around it blocking access to this new walker in our family.

When our second son was a baby, we decided to go "modern" and get ourselves a fake tree!! We paid too much for this supposedly beautiful tree. It was green – it was not flocked or metallic. It had branches that somehow stuck together around a fake-looking brown trunk. These branches loved to fall off, so we had a system to wire them in place. We had a cat when we had that fake tree. She loved to try to climb it – or at least knock off a branch or two. Ironically, the cats we have had through the years have only bothered with that fake tree. The real ones they have left alone. This gorgeous fake Christmas tree was used by us for a few years, but soon it was delegated to its storage box. Occasionally it was used in a classroom or a church. It eventually was donated to Goodwill.

We have been known, on many Christmases, to cut our own tree. In one area in which we lived, we went with friends to a local Christmas tree farm and there spent a goodly period of time deciding which tree was truly the most beautiful. Then, after consulting the price per foot, we would decide which tree we really could afford!! The tree would be cut for us by the farm help, shaken on a tree shaker to remove the loose needles, and then somehow placed in the trunk of our car for the ride home. This tree cutting adventure was always accompanied by a meal of chili with our friends.

I remember a Christmas, when we lived in the country. My husband had a broken leg and so the annual tree cutting fell to the younger men in our family. As my boys and I went looking for just the right tree in the neighboring pasture, we opted to choose the one that had been chosen by my husband before he broke his leg. So, with much gusto, my boys cut the tree and brought it home to their Dad who at least had had a part in the selection of this special part of Christmas.

Our tree this year is not the most beautiful in the world. It is also not the most elegant. It does not equal the gorgeous artificial trees I have seen. But, it is big. It fits from floor to ceiling – with a foot or two removed. It has a wonderful aroma, reminding me of Christmases gone by. It is tall and skinny enough to not take up all the room in the living room. It is adorned with many strings of "little" lights – now not so new. It is decorated with decorations that have been on other of our trees. It even has a new decoration or two. Its top is that of an angel trumpeting the Good News that the Christ Child has been born. Christmas has come, filling our homes and our hearts with presents of love and joy and good food and, yes, even beautiful Christmas trees.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. How much will the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) cost of living adjustment (COLA) be? What is the highest SSI payable?

A. Recipients of SSI will receive the same 2.6 percent COLA as Social Security beneficiaries and the increase is scheduled to be in the SSI checks due December 30.

Because of this COLA the 1994 monthly maximum SSI rate will be $446 for an individual and $669 for a couple. Existing resource limits of $2,000 for an individual and $3,000 for a couple are not changing although many items, such as the home and car, do not count. Note that most income will reduce the SSI payable and that checks can fluctuate monthly if income varies.

Supplemental Security Income is a need based program for disabled children, including infants, under age 18, disabled adults age 18-64, and all needy adults at least age 65. A person can receive both Social Security and SSI assuming other requirements are met. For more information contact Social Security.

Q. How much will I be able to earn a 1994 before affecting my Social Security?

A. People who receive Social Security for other than their own disability have an earnings test (retirement test). In 1994, a person under age 65 will be able to earn gross wages or net income from self-employment of $8,040 before Social Security checks for 1994 are affected. Someone age 65-69 can earn $11,160 before affecting benefits, and, once age 70, there is no earnings test. Since people retire all during a year there is also a one time retirement test figure based on monthly earnings in the year of retirement.

Reminder: Mailing evidence to Social Security? Please be sure to include your name, Social Security number, address and telephone number with the material so that it can be given to the right person for action.

Chances are that in your home, as in mine, there now stands a Christmas tree. Not many of us wait until Christmas Day to place our trees in our homes, as formerly was the custom. Many of us, in fact, put our trees up sometime during the Thanksgiving holiday. I think that Thanksgiving weekend is a mite early for decorating my tree, and so I wait until a couple of weeks before Christmas to decorate our tree.

We have had an assortment of trees throughout the years. Our first Christmas tree, though, was perhaps the prettiest. Maybe it was the fact that it was our first Christmas and this was our first Christmas tree. Maybe it was the fact that we could just barely scrape together enough money for one string of lights – but I insisted that they be the "new" little lights. Maybe it was the homemade decorations – cranberry and popcorn chains and ribbon decorations. Whatever the reason, that first Christmas tree, bought in a Chicago tree lot, dripping needles even before we bought it, was the prettiest we have had.

Other trees have been memorable as well. The tree we had the year our son learned to walk the week before Christmas is a part of our Christmas memories. It was a pretty tree. It had "real" decorations. It had plenty of lights. It also had chairs all around it blocking access to this new walker in our family.

When our second son was a baby, we decided to go "modern" and get ourselves a fake tree!! We paid too much for this supposedly beautiful tree. It was green – it was not flocked or metallic. It had branches that somehow stuck together around a fake-looking brown trunk. These branches loved to fall off, so we had a system to wire them in place. We had a cat when we had that fake tree. She loved to try to climb it – or at least knock off a branch or two. Ironically, the cats we have had through the years have only bothered with that fake tree. The real ones they have left alone. This gorgeous fake Christmas tree was used by us for a few years, but soon it was delegated to its storage box. Occasionally it was used in a classroom or a church. It eventually was donated to Goodwill.

We have been known, on many Christmases, to cut our own tree. In one area in which we lived, we went with friends to a local Christmas tree farm and there spent a goodly period of time deciding which tree was truly the most beautiful. Then, after consulting the price per foot, we would decide which tree we really could afford!! The tree would be cut for us by the farm help, shaken on a tree shaker to remove the loose needles, and then somehow placed in the trunk of our car for the ride home. This tree cutting adventure was always accompanied by a meal of chili with our friends.

I remember a Christmas, when we lived in the country. My husband had a broken leg and so the annual tree cutting fell to the younger men in our family. As my boys and I went looking for just the right tree in the neighboring pasture, we opted to choose the one that had been chosen by my husband before he broke his leg. So, with much gusto, my boys cut the tree and brought it home to their Dad who at least had had a part in the selection of this special part of Christmas.

Our tree this year is not the most beautiful in the world. It is also not the most elegant. It does not equal the gorgeous artificial trees I have seen. But, it is big. It fits from floor to ceiling – with a foot or two removed. It has a wonderful aroma, reminding me of Christmases gone by. It is tall and skinny enough to not take up all the room in the living room. It is adorned with many strings of "little" lights – now not so new. It is decorated with decorations that have been on other of our trees. It even has a new decoration or two. Its top is that of an angel trumpeting the Good News that the Christ Child has been born. Christmas has come, filling our homes and our hearts with presents of love and joy and good food and, yes, even beautiful Christmas trees.

Hartz opens "Take Five" convenience store division

- Offer reset and store layout services. Take Five, through Hartz Foods, will have complete store design and layout service to aid convenience and increase sales. It also has complete reset service to assure proper marketing in given amounts of display space.
- Provide us with a professional pre-sell person to place our orders, notify us of special offers and make recommendations as to how we can improve our business. That is Fred Sharbonda's job. He will be in each store weekly to do computerized ordering, advise the owner or manager on specials or new items, answer questions and make suggestions. In addition, stores have the option of placing orders on an individual basis.
- Make advertising and banner programs available. Preliminary work has already been done and assistance will continue as needs dictate and the system develops.
- Help us with equipment procurement and setup. Hartz Foods has knowledge of and access to new and used equipment and furnishings from multiple suppliers and will work directly with store owners to find what they want.
- Provide us with a simple coupon redemption program. This is also part of the total package offered by Take Five.

Walseth said that Hartz Foods has been serving between 60 and 70 convenience stores in Minnesota and North Dakota. The company considers this to be a growth field and believes it has devised a complete program which will allow Take Five to share in that growth.

Future plans for Take Five include hiring of additional personnel to expand its service area, as well as the development of Take Five concept stores in the region. The Take Five logo has been registered and is available to all stores in the program. It is not a franchise program and all stores will continue to be independently operated.

President Paul Nelson emphasized that the Hartz Foods company started by L. B. Hartz in 1925 will continue to supply supermarkets in northern Minnesota and North Dakota with full service grocery, meat and produce. He said the company is currently developing plans to expand those services as well and that details on those plans will be announced soon.

message from the Pope on Christmas morning.

Gift exchange does not take place until January 6, which is observed as Three Kings Day—the day when the wisemen were to have arrived at Bethlehem to bring gifts to the Christ Child.

Observance of the holidays includes New Year's Eve when many also watch a television special with a summary of news events from the past year and a message from the King of Spain. The king is a popular figure with the people, especially since his intervention helped to prevent a bloody coup following the end of a dictatorship.

When midnight nears on New Year's Eve the attention shifts to a telecast which will feature the gong on the clock in the city square in Madrid. As the gong sounds 12 times, the custom is to eat one grape each time the gong sounds. This is rapid (and often messy) eating, and it is considered good luck to keep up with the gong.

After the gong has struck to signal the new year, people who have gathered together give and get a kiss on each cheek. Young people frequently go out to bars and discos which are open to those 16 years of age and older.

Eva said she is enjoying her experience in the United States, including her introduction to snowmobiling. She misses familiar food and meal schedules which are quite different from those in this country. More breads, fruit and salads are eaten in Spain and seafood is also part of the menu a great deal.

Eva's father, Ventura, works as a driving instructor for a private school. Her mother Ana Hoyos (wives in Spain keep their family names) is a nurse's aide in a hospital. Her sister Ana Maria, 23, is a light and sound technician for theatre groups.

Eva is a university student where she is studying business and tourism and languages, including English, French and German. Her region in Spain is totally bilingual, she said, and in her area people speak Spanish and a coastal region language called Catalan. Her home city of Barcelona is a metropolis of about three million people.

While many Europeans travel a good deal from country to country, Eva is not one of them. "I live only two or three hours from France," she said, "and I have never been there."

People in her home country seem to take a greater interest in other languages than they do in the United States, she said. Perhaps this is because they hear many languages spoken and have a curiosity about understanding them. In this country everyone is expected to learn and use English.

Like the other two Amity students spending this school year in Thief River Falls, Eva is willing to speak to groups and organizations about her country and the Amity scholar program. She may be contacted personally to schedule a speaking appearance.

Garlic is potential crop for Minnesota

Tim King of Long Prairie has been growing garlic since 1987 with good results and has helped nine other central Minnesota growers set up pilot plantings, according to Gary McVey of the Agricultural Utilization Research Institute office in Crookston.

Since no one in Minnesota grows large quantities of garlic, growers have been able to market their crop easily. They sell fresh bulbs to individuals and health food stores and a few produce garlic braids.

McVey says there are two garlic groups—hard neck varieties with rigid stalks topped by small garlic bulbils, and soft neck varieties that don't produce bulbils but grow tiny cloves on the neck. Many varieties are adaptable to Minnesota and one grower at Cannon is raising 20 varieties.

Raising garlic in Minnesota is not without its problems, McVey said. Growers once lost their crops to a cold, snowless winter, causing cloves to heave out of the soil. Production is labor-intensive and more mechanization is needed. "But garlic has great potential to be a commercially viable Minnesota Crop," he says.

For more information about garlic production, contact Tim King at Rout 2, Maple Hill, Long Prairie, MN 56347, phone (612) 732-6203.

Winning the oak wilt war is possible

"We are gaining ground against oak wilt," states Dan Gillman, shade tree disease specialist at the Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA). "This is a remarkable turn of events. We are now winning battles instead of continually losing ground to this disease."

Oak wilt is a disease that kills oak trees but can be controlled.

"What really turned the oak wilt control effort around," Gillman said, "was money provided by the U.S. Forest Service to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) forestry division for financial assistance to homeowners to control oak wilt on their property."

Local communities and county soil and water conservation districts as well as extension offices administer this program with seven counties currently participating.

Control work involves cutting root connections between diseased and healthy oaks. This isolates the trees with oak wilt from the healthy trees. Then the oak wilt fungus cannot use root connections as an avenue to move into and infect nearby healthy oaks. Forestry consultants perform control work for homeowners with equipment that cuts four to five feet into the ground. Research by University of Minnesota forest pathologists developed this technique to better insure all root connections between diseased and healthy trees are severed.

The DNR took aerial photographs of the Twin Cities area in 1988. They detected over 3,000 oak wilt infection sites. To be detected on the photographs, an infection site included at least three trees.

Gillman estimates that 50 to 100 infection sites were treated each year from 1988 to 1991. In 1992 about 500 sites where oak wilt occurs were isolated from nearby healthy oaks. This year about 1,400 infection sites were expected to be treated by the time the ground froze.

The war against oak wilt goes on. The need exists to continue to sever root connections between diseased and nearby healthy oaks to stop underground spread. Development of new infection sites can be prevented by not wounding oak trees in May and June.

The Forest Service expects to continue to provide financial assistance to offset costs of controlling oak wilt in 1994 and 1995. Call Dan Gillman, MDA Oak Wilt Program Coordinator, at (612) 296-0592 or Tom Eiber, DNR Metro Forestry at (612) 772-7567 for more information about oak wilt control.

- Offer reset and store layout services. Take Five, through Hartz Foods, will have complete store design and layout service to aid convenience and increase sales. It also has complete reset service to assure proper marketing in given amounts of display space.
- Provide us with a professional pre-sell person to place our orders, notify us of special offers and make recommendations as to how we can improve our business. That is Fred Sharbonda's job. He will be in each store weekly to do computerized ordering, advise the owner or manager on specials or new items, answer questions and make suggestions. In addition, stores have the option of placing orders on an individual basis.
- Make advertising and banner programs available. Preliminary work has already been done and assistance will continue as needs dictate and the system develops.
- Help us with equipment procurement and setup. Hartz Foods has knowledge of and access to new and used equipment and furnishings from multiple suppliers and will work directly with store owners to find what they want.
- Provide us with a simple coupon redemption program. This is also part of the total package offered by Take Five.

Walseth said that Hartz Foods has been serving between 60 and 70 convenience stores in Minnesota and North Dakota. The company considers this to be a growth field and believes it has devised a complete program which will allow Take Five to share in that growth.

Future plans for Take Five include hiring of additional personnel to expand its service area, as well as the development of Take Five concept stores in the region. The Take Five logo has been registered and is available to all stores in the program. It is not a franchise program and all stores will continue to be independently operated.

President Paul Nelson emphasized that the Hartz Foods company started by L. B. Hartz in 1925 will continue to supply supermarkets in northern Minnesota and North Dakota with full service grocery, meat and produce. He said the company is currently developing plans to expand those services as well and that details on those plans will be announced soon.

message from the Pope on Christmas morning.

Gift exchange does not take place until January 6, which is observed as Three Kings Day—the day when the wisemen were to have arrived at Bethlehem to bring gifts to the Christ Child.

Observance of the holidays includes New Year's Eve when many also watch a television special with a summary of news events from the past year and a message from the King of Spain. The king is a popular figure with the people, especially since his intervention helped to prevent a bloody coup following the end of a dictatorship.

When midnight nears on New Year's Eve the attention shifts to a telecast which will feature the gong on the clock in the city square in Madrid. As the gong sounds 12 times, the custom is to eat one grape each time the gong sounds. This is rapid (and often messy) eating, and it is considered good luck to keep up with the gong.

After the gong has struck to signal the new year, people who have gathered together give and get a kiss on each cheek. Young people frequently go out to bars and discos which are open to those 16 years of age and older.

Eva said she is enjoying her experience in the United States, including her introduction to snowmobiling. She misses familiar food and meal schedules which are quite different from those in this country. More breads, fruit and salads are eaten in Spain and seafood is also part of the menu a great deal.

Eva's father, Ventura, works as a driving instructor for a private school. Her mother Ana Hoyos (wives in Spain keep their family names) is a nurse's aide in a hospital. Her sister Ana Maria, 23, is a light and sound technician for theatre groups.

Eva is a university student where she is studying business and tourism and languages, including English, French and German. Her region in Spain is totally bilingual, she said, and in her area people speak Spanish and a coastal region language called Catalan. Her home city of Barcelona is a metropolis of about three million people.

While many Europeans travel a good deal from country to country, Eva is not one of them. "I live only two or three hours from France," she said, "and I have never been there."

People in her home country seem to take a greater interest in other languages than they do in the United States, she said. Perhaps this is because they hear many languages spoken and have a curiosity about understanding them. In this country everyone is expected to learn and use English.

Like the other two Amity students spending this school year in Thief River Falls, Eva is willing to speak to groups and organizations about her country and the Amity scholar program. She may be contacted personally to schedule a speaking appearance.

Winning the oak wilt war is possible

"We are gaining ground against oak wilt," states Dan Gillman, shade tree disease specialist at the Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA). "This is a remarkable turn of events. We are now winning battles instead of continually losing ground to this disease."

Oak wilt is a disease that kills oak trees but can be controlled.

"What really turned the oak wilt control effort around," Gillman said, "was money provided by the U.S. Forest Service to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) forestry division for financial assistance to homeowners to control oak wilt on their property."

Local communities and county soil and water conservation districts as well as extension offices administer this program with seven counties currently participating.

Control work involves cutting root connections between diseased and healthy oaks. This isolates the trees with oak wilt from the healthy trees. Then the oak wilt fungus cannot use root connections as an avenue to move into and infect nearby healthy oaks. Forestry consultants perform control work for homeowners with equipment that cuts four to five feet into the ground. Research by University of Minnesota forest pathologists developed this technique to better insure all root connections between diseased and healthy trees are severed.

The DNR took aerial photographs of the Twin Cities area in 1988. They detected over 3,000 oak wilt infection sites. To be detected on the photographs, an infection site included at least three trees.

Gillman estimates that 50 to 100 infection sites were treated each year from 1988 to 1991. In 1992 about 500 sites where oak wilt occurs were isolated from nearby healthy oaks. This year about 1,400 infection sites were expected to be treated by the time the ground froze.

The war against oak wilt goes on. The need exists to continue to sever root connections between diseased and nearby healthy oaks to stop underground spread. Development of new infection sites can be prevented by not wounding oak trees in May and June.

The Forest Service expects to continue to provide financial assistance to offset costs of controlling oak wilt in 1994 and 1995. Call Dan Gillman, MDA Oak Wilt Program Coordinator, at (612) 296-0592 or Tom Eiber, DNR Metro Forestry at (612) 772-7567 for more information about oak wilt control.

Garlic is potential crop for Minnesota

Tim King of Long Prairie has been growing garlic since 1987 with good results and has helped nine other central Minnesota growers set up pilot plantings, according to Gary McVey of the Agricultural Utilization Research Institute office in Crookston.

Since no one in Minnesota grows large quantities of garlic, growers have been able to market their crop easily. They sell fresh bulbs to individuals and health food stores and a few produce garlic braids.

McVey says there are two garlic groups—hard neck varieties with rigid stalks topped by small garlic bulbils, and soft neck varieties that don't produce bulbils but grow tiny cloves on the neck. Many varieties are adaptable to Minnesota and one grower at Cannon is raising 20 varieties.

Raising garlic in Minnesota is not without its problems, McVey said. Growers once lost their crops to a cold, snowless winter, causing cloves to heave out of the soil. Production is labor-intensive and more mechanization is needed. "But garlic has great potential to be a commercially viable Minnesota Crop," he says.

For more information about garlic production, contact Tim King at Rout 2, Maple Hill, Long Prairie, MN 56347, phone (612) 732-6203.

Matthew brothers sentenced to prison on drug charges

Keith and Kenneth Matthew of Thief River Falls were sentenced to prison December 17 on drug-related charges.

The Matthew brothers were arrested last January when law enforcement officials intercepted a package containing methamphetamine that was delivered to the Matthews. As a result of the resulting investigation, a co-conspirator in another Minnesota community and a methamphetamine lab in California were arrested and charged with a wide variety of charges. Keith Allen and Kenneth Gordon Matthew, Victor Emil Reynolds and Bernadette Marie Prather, were all charged in federal court. Several others were charged in state courts with various crimes. Last July, the Matthew brothers pled guilty to count five of a five-count indictment. Count five stated that, "from in or about October 1991, the exact date being unknown to the Grand Jury, through in or about December 1992, in the State and District of Minnesota, the Matthew brothers, knowingly and intentionally conspired with each other and with other people whose names are known and unknown to the Grand Jury to distribute and to possess with the intent to distribute in excess of 100 grams of a mixture or substance containing a detectable amount of methamphetamine, a controlled substance, in violation of federal laws".

According to a representative of the State Attorney General's office, the Matthew brothers were sentenced on December 17. Keith Matthew was sentenced to 67 months in prison. Kenneth Matthew was sentenced to 63 months in prison. Both will also be on four years supervised release following their prison term. Both were taken into custody immediately. They had been out on bond.

Middle River man sentenced on sex charge

David Mathew Black, 18, Middle River, was sentenced Monday in a Ninth District courtroom on a charge of criminal sexual conduct in the second degree. Black was accused of assaulting an 11-year-old girl.

Black entered a guilty plea on September 27 to criminal sexual conduct in the second degree following a plea agreement in which a charge of criminal sexual conduct in the first degree was stayed. Monday, Assistant County Attorney Al Rogalla argued for a prison sentence and treatment for the young man because of what he read in the pre-sentence investigation. Public Defender, Donald Aandal, argued for a continuation of home arrest with credit for time already served on home arrest. Both attorneys agreed that there should be no contact with the victim or females under the age of 16. The victim's mother was also allowed to address the court. She concluded her emotional statement by saying that the boy needs help.

Judge Larry G. Jorgenson sentenced Black to a one year jail sentence with credit for time served. He said he could serve the time on home arrest, but stated that if there was a violation of the home arrest he would revoke the stay of imposition to the commissioner of corrections, which is a 21-month sentence in prison. He also ordered that Black enter a treatment program and barred any contact with the victim or females under the age of 16. He was also placed on 10 years probation.

Tax returns can be filed electronically

People claiming refunds, as well at those who owe money, can have their 1993 federal income tax returns filed electronically starting in January, the Internal Revenue Service says.

Offered—usually for a fee—by many professional tax preparers as well as some banks and employers, electronic filing involves using a computer and a telephone modem to send returns directly to the IRS. This service is available to people who do their own returns as well as those who have them professionally prepared.

Electronic filing can save time, trouble and worry by speeding up refunds and cutting down errors, the IRS says. A refund is issued within three weeks after the IRS receives the return.

People can get their money even faster by choosing to have their refunds deposited directly into their bank accounts. Since direct deposit eliminates the possibility of a lost or stolen check, it may be particularly attractive to people who travel a lot, move soon after filing, live in high crime areas or for some reason have difficulty getting their mail.

The IRS electronically verifies receipt of electronically-filed returns within two days, so there's no reason to worry about the return possibly getting lost in the mail. Mistakes often delay refunds, but according to the IRS, electronic filing reduces errors by an average of more than 80 per cent. Nationwide, more than 12 million federal income tax returns were filed electronically during the past year.

Merger of TC and Northland gains praise

Technical College; John Ostrem of the State Technical College System; and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Thief River Falls.

Presidents Gunderson and Haviland said they were eager to begin implementation of the merger for the two Thief River Falls colleges. The memorandum of understanding will be developed by Presidents Gunderson and Haviland and will be approved by officials of the Northwest Technical College, Minnesota Community College System and the Minnesota Technical College system and endorsed by the Minnesota Higher Education Board.

Under the proposed memorandum of understanding—work on which will begin in January and which could be completed early in 1994—technical college legal and financial responsibilities for personnel, payroll and business operations would remain with the regional Northwest Technical College board. A separate 1994-95 budget for the Thief River Falls Technical College campus will be developed by Dr. Cross and the Technical College System offices in St. Paul.

Dr. Noren said he fully supports the efforts so far but again cautioned that a formal merger cannot occur before July 1, 1995.

"Having said that," he added, "there's no reason the two colleges cannot work out how they will become a single, merged institution. In the meantime, they can cooperate as closely as possible for the next 18 months."

Dr. Noren also recommended that the technical college staff work with Northland Community College to gain accreditation from the North Central Association of Colleges.

SoyDiesel tested for mining use

SoyDiesel, a biodiesel fuel derived from soybean oil, is being tested and holds great potential in the alternative fuels market, especially in the mining industry where the biofuels help miners working underground to breathe easier.

Biodiesel is an alternative fuel derived from vegetable oil. Experts estimate that the mining industry could potentially consume 25 million to 50 million gallons of biodiesel fuel each year. Capturing just one per cent of this market could use up all of the current soy oil surplus.

"The goal of the Bureau of Mines is to promote a healthy and safe mining environment for employees," states Kelly Strebig, research supervisor for the U.S. Bureau of Mines. "We think biodiesel could help meet new health requirements that will be set by the Mine Safety and Health Administration." He said that SoyDiesel was chosen as the best candidate for testing because of its potential lower emissions.

"In a restricted environment such as an underground mine, air contaminants can build up," Strebig said. "Large amounts of particulate matter can be a health hazard."

At its lab facility in Minneapolis the Bureau of Mines tested 200 gallons of 100 per cent SoyDiesel in three series of 10-mode steady-state tests. The tests ran for several weeks on a CAT 3304 engine which required no engine modifications.

Family violence darkens holiday celebrations

Judges and other authorities promise protection action

Judge Russell A. Anderson, chief judge of the Ninth Judicial District is sending a strong holiday message to the 17 northwestern Minnesota counties in his jurisdiction:

"During the holiday season, especially, it is my hope that all children enjoy a peaceful home environment," Anderson said, adding that the court system is prepared to do its part to increase the likelihood that all children have a safe home life throughout the year.

Anderson said that the courts in the Ninth Judicial District will deal with family violence cases as swiftly and effectively during the holiday season as they do any other time of year.

"The courts put a high priority on domestic violence cases," Anderson said. "Throughout the holiday season, hearings on orders for protection will be handled with a minimum of delay."

Anderson's message is particularly important during the holiday season, according to domestic violence advocates who say that their telephone reports and walk-in visits, as well as requests for shelter go up in December.

"Families are under more pressure during the holidays and sometimes the issues that arise reach a boiling point, forcing women to leave," said Desiree Varner, director of Intervention Project in Thief River Falls. "However, family violence is a year-round problem and the 17 counties of northwestern Minnesota, under the leadership of Judge Anderson, are actively addressing the problem."

Anderson, of Crookston, started in March a judicial initiative to mobilize the legal and social service communities throughout the Ninth Judicial District. Anderson is joined by many judges throughout the district, including Judge Jay Mondry of Park Rapids.

Mondry agrees with Anderson that it is important for judges to be active in addressing the community-wide aspects of family violence.

"Judges should be involved in being part of the community-wide solution because we have experienced an explosion of family violence and it is a problem that crosses all socio-economic lines," Mondry said. "There is a lot the courts can do — without a lot of delay and red tape — to help and protect people.

"In many cases these are emergency matters of a life-and-death nature," he said. "People are desperate when they come to the courts and many times it is the children who are the most in need of protection in these situations.

"As judges, we can do our part to see that domestic violence ceases and to let law enforcement people know that this is serious business — probably some of the most serious business they will ever do," Mondry said. "A judge can act in a fair and impartial manner and still let the community know that family violence is a serious problem that must be stopped."

Anderson headed a district-wide delegation at a statewide conference on family violence November 1-3 in St. Paul, which was sponsored by the Minnesota Supreme Court. The Ninth Judicial District's representatives developed an action plan at the conference. One of the action steps — court administration staff training — has been completed. On December 10, court administrators from throughout the Ninth District met in Bemidji to learn about the issues and sensitivities regarding family violence.

Mondry who recommended the court staff training, said, "The understanding and positive attitude of court personnel is essential to creating a welcoming environment for victims of domestic violence.

"The more that staff people know about the problem, the more effective they can be in helping people," he added.

Court staff were trained by Loretta Frederick of Battered Women's Legal Advocacy Project. They learned about the dynamics of domestic violence and the proper information and resources to offer to people coming to the courthouse to seek orders for protection.

Other district-wide goals set at the conference include: Making orders for protection consistent throughout the district; and seeking funding for a district-wide conference.

Beverly Warren, co-director of the Northwoods Coalition for Battered Women in Bemidji said, "I think it is very positive that judges are wanting to get involved in domestic violence and that people are actually doing something.

"I am encouraged that changes are happening so that things will be better for victims when they use the system," she said.

Leticia Sanchez, intervention advocate and program coordinator for battered women's programs at Migrant Health Services in Crookston, said the state conference was very helpful in bringing together judges and court personnel with other agencies to develop action plans throughout the Ninth Judicial District.

"Just about every county is getting a committee together and brining in the proper agencies with their own programs so that we can all work together a little better," said Sanchez. "Each county has different initiatives because they know the problem areas and the resources and what works and what doesn't."

Sanchez also commended the court system under Anderson's direction for providing training for court interpreters this fall in Crookston to increase the number of qualified interpreters who can assist people in court. Interpreter training also was conducted this fall in Willmar.

"There's still a lot to go forward on, but we've made a big start," Sanchez said.

"Law enforcement takes this problem very seriously," said Clearwater County Sheriff Dennis Trandem, who is a member of the Clearwater County effort.

"We take every call seriously and make it a point to provide the victim with information and options each time we respond to a call," Trandem said. "We keep giving the victims the information so that they know there is continuing, ongoing support.

"We let people know that family violence will not be tolerated — there will be consequences," he said, adding that if restraining orders are violated, "there will be swift and appropriate action taken."

Trandem is part of a county-wide anti-violence effort of which Judge Paul E. Rasmussen, of Bagley, is one of the organizers.

"We want to make sure that the community understands that law enforcement fully supports this initiative and that we feel violence should not be a way of life for anyone.

"This effort to stop the violence is so extremely important because you need county-wide and community-wide coordinated action," Trandem said. "We in law enforcement or in the courts can't prevent the violence; we are in a reactive role. However, all of us must become proactive in our own families, in our neighborhoods and our communities to stop violence."

To continue to heighten public awareness of family violence, Anderson said he intends to participate in a town meeting, "Forum on Family Violence" scheduled January 4 in Crookston. The forum, which is sponsored by the Violence Intervention Project, is set for 7 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. at the Crookston Central High School auditorium. Sheila Wellstone will facilitate the panel which will include Anderson, Varner, Sanchez and Brenda Meiner of Polk County Nursing; Vickie Svedarsky, school counselor; and Shirley Jensen, director of Self Empowerment for Low Income Families. The session is open to the public and will be attended by representatives of the justice system, the medical community, educators, advocates and shelter-care providers as well as survivors of family violence and former batterers.

"The forum provides an opportunity to educate the public, listen to citizen concerns and suggestions on how we can reduce family violence in our community," Varner said. There is no admission charge to attend the forum.

Police recover evidence taken from storage

Police in Thief River Falls have recovered a beer keg tap that had been taken from an area at the law enforcement center where it was being stored as evidence. Charges are pending against several individuals in the theft.

A police spokesperson said Monday that on December 18 police officers acquired information that a tap for a keg which was being held as evidence, had been taken from the garage at the law enforcement center and was going to be used at a party. Police went to the residence and were allowed inside. The missing keg tap with its evidence tag still on it, was recovered. Complaints for furnishing alcohol to minors and possession of stolen property are being prepared against William Patrick Hughes, 19, Thief River Falls. Nathan Anderson of Thief River Falls tried to beat Adam Danielski of Warren-Alvarado down the court with the ball on a fast break during Friday's boys high school basketball game in the Lincoln gym. Anderson scored 12 points in the Prowlers' 72-59 win over the Ponies.

Thief River Falls boys beat Warren-Alvarado 72-59...

Prowlers handle Ponies

According to head coach Scott Brekke, a major concern for the Thief River Falls boys high school basketball team heading into the 1993-94 season was a lack of depth.

But those who watched the Prowlers in their Friday home opener against Warren-Alvarado did not see the Thief River Falls bench as being a problem. They figure those concerns were either unfounded, or the supposed problem has already been resolved.

That's because no less than nine different Prowlers put their names in the scoring column in the first half as Thief River Falls took charge early and coasted to a surprisingly easy 72-59 victory over the Ponies.

"It's getting better," said Brekke in assessing the Prowlers' depth. "We've got a bunch of role players, who all know their jobs. They come in and give us a couple of minutes each."

The Prowlers never trailed in winning for the second time in three tries. The Ponies managed to stay within 14-10 in the first quarter, but were out-scored 15-4 in the first 4:44 of the second quarter and never recovered.

It was 38-23 at halftime and 57-37 through three quarters. The final spread looked a little more respectable when the Ponies finished the game with a 10-2 run.

The strong start did it, according to Brekke. "The key was to get out on them early, and that's exactly what we did," he said. "The kids came out ready to play. They came out with a great deal of intensity and enthusiasm."

Thief River Falls' 6-10 sophomore center Kyle Sanden was impressive in scoring 20 points and blocking seven shots, despite running into foul trouble. But he had help as 5-11 junior guard Eric Bjorgaard netted 13 points, 6-1 junior guard/forward Nathan Anderson had 12 and 6-1 senior guard Preston Treat contributed 10. Anderson and Treat both had 5 assists, and 6-2 senior forward David Johnson came up with 7 rebounds off the defensive boards.

"We did a nice job passing the ball," pointed out Brekke. "They found the open man and we hit the open shots. We have to do that when teams collapse 2-3 guys on Kyle underneath."

The Warren-Alvarado offense included a 16-point game by 6-0 senior Adam Danielski, 15 by 6-4 sophomore reserve Travis Boman and 11 by 6-4 senior Ben Miller.

Thief River Falls shot 58 percent from the field for the night (29-for-52), but struggled through an 8-for-20 free throw performance. Warren-Alvarado shot only 29 percent from the field (24-for-82) and made 10 of 16 free throws.

One area the Prowlers could have improved on would have been in the rebounding department, where the Ponies had a 43-33 advantage, including a couple of four-shot flurries around the basket.

The teams had 20 turnovers each.

NCC third at tournament

Northland Community College men's basketball team was involved in three two-point games at the annual Minnesota Community College Conference Northeast/Northwest Invitational, winning two of them for a third place finish in the eight-team affair at Virginia.

The Pioneers got by Vermilion 78-76 in the Thursday quarterfinals, fell to host Mesabi 74-72 in the Friday semifinals, then shaded Hibbing 81-79 in Saturday's third place game.

"We feel pretty good about the weekend," said Northland coach Mark Dannhoff, whose team heads into the holiday break with a 3-6 record – already close to matching last year's win total when a late coaching appointment left little time for recruiting and resulted in a 4-18 finish. "We feel really good about ourselves, about what we've accomplished so far this year. It's the most positive feeling I've had in the year and a half I've been here."

Northland will be idle until a Jan. 5 game against UND-Lake Region in Thief River Falls. The Pioneers will then make a Jan. 12 visit to NDSU-Bottineau before beginning their MCCC schedule with single-game match-ups against Northeast Division teams Hibbing, Rainy River, Vermilion, and Mesabi. That will be followed by home-and-home games against Northwest Division rivals Fergus Falls, Brainerd and the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Vermilion	76

Scott Burton went over two defenders for a tie-breaking jump shot with six seconds remaining to give Northland a dramatic 78-76 first round win over Vermilion.

The basket put the finishing touches on a remarkable second half comeback by the Pioneers, who trailed 48-29 at halftime and were down by 23 with 15 minutes to play.

"First half we just didn't come to play," said Northland coach Mark Dannhoff. "We played without heart and without emotion the whole first half. The second half we turned it around. We went on an unbelievable run and took charge."

Burton, a 5-10 guard from Canton, Ohio, finished with a game-high 24 points to begin what would end up being an all-tournament weekend performance.

Northland was 31-for-73 from the field (42 percent) and 10-for-15 at the free throw line. Vermilion went 32-for-71 from the field (45 percent) and 10-for-16 at the line. The Ironmen had a 39-26 rebound advantage, but also had more turnovers, 17-8.

Mesabi	74
Northland	72

Northland lost Friday the same way it won Thursday when Matt Bell of Mesabi sank a tie-breaking basket with one second remaining to give the Ironmen a 74-72 semifinal win over the Pioneers.

"It hurt to lose like that," acknowledged Northland coach Mark Dannhoff. "We played a real good game, but it came down to hitting the shots at the end, and we came up a little short."

Northland led 39-36 at halftime.

Both sides had four double figure scorers, led by Mesabi's Dave Conklin with 19 points and Mesabi's Chad Kujava, a 6-0 freshmen from Warren, with 18.

The Pioneers shot only 39 percent from the field (24-for-61), but did cash in on 13 of 18 free throw opportunities. The Ironmen shot 42 percent from the floor (29-for-69) and went 9-for-12 at the line. A 42-27 Northland rebound edge was erased by 21 turnovers, compared to just 11 for Hibbing.

Hibbing	79

It was another two-point finish when Northland drew Hibbing in the third place game, but this time it didn't require a last-second shot as the Pioneers held off the Cardinals 81-79.

"It was really great to be able to come back and pick up a win after losing a tough one like we did the night before," noted Northland coach Mark Dannhoff. "We played well against a very good team – probably a better team than we lost to."

Northland was down 10 early before chopping the difference to 43-37 at halftime. The Pioneers went up by six with about four minutes left and fought off the Cardinals' challenge the rest of the way.

A balanced Northland offense featured Chad Kujava with 15 points, Mitch Bernstein and Antonio Parker 11 each and Demond Watson 10. Rick Theising finished with a game-high 24 points for the Cardinals.

Northland went 30-for-67 from the field (45 percent) and 13-for-17 at the free throw line. Hibbing was 30-for-50 from the field (60 percent) and 15-for-23 at the line. The Pioneers had a 26-22 rebound edge, and also topped the turnover charts 13-11.

Shooting, turnovers lead to TRF setback

Twenty-two turnovers and 27 percent shooting spelled double trouble for the Thief River Falls girls Friday in a 52-34 high school basketball loss at Fergus Falls.

"The offensive patterns were there; we had the shots we wanted," explained Thief River Falls coach Sally Wiltse. "The ball just wouldn't go in. It was really frustrating."

Fergus Falls had quarter leads of 16-10, 28-20 and 38-28 as the Prowlers fell to 1-4. It was their first North Sub-Section 8AA outing of the year.

Lori DeLap, a 5-11 senior center, had a strong 15-point night for the Prowlers, but she was their only double figure scorer.

A balanced Fergus Falls attack included Kari Kalbus with 15 points, Brandi Rocholl 11 and Heather Crowser 10.

The Prowlers were 14-for-52 from the field and 6-for-17 at the free throw line. The Otters went 20-for-54 from the field (37 percent) and 11-for-17 at the line.

The rebounds were even at 28-apiece. The Otters wound up with 15 turnovers.

Hibbing skates past TRF

■ Bluejackets' quickness beats Prowlers 5-2

Quick teams give Thief River Falls problems. And a quick, aggressive Hibbing team did just that Saturday afternoon in a 5-2 high school hockey win at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center.

The Bluejackets settled for a 1-0 first period lead on an ice-hugging power play slap shot from the blue line by Brian Bolf at 2:45, but doubled that just six seconds into the second period en route to a 4-0 cushion after 30 minutes.

Thief River Falls finished with a solid third period, but it was too little too late as the Prowlers' record fell to 2-5.

It wasn't one of the Prowlers' better performances, according to Thief River Falls head coach Glenn Chiodo. "We weren't mentally ready to go today," he said. "We're real disappointed. Being mentally ready to play is such a big key for us. When we picked it up at the end we did a nice job, but we didn't get it done the first two periods, and we can't afford those kinds of lapses. Especially against good teams like Hibbing."

Derek Gabardi popped in a backhand as the puck sat in front of the Thief River Falls net on the quick Hibbing score to open the second period.

Bill Robeck picked up the puck at center ice and came in alone on Thief River Falls netminder Eric Dowers, making it 3-0 as he snapped a high hard one over the goalie's shoulder at 4:05.

Tate Haglund batted one in from along the boards that eluded Dowers at 12:21 for a 4-0 spread.

A 4-on-3 Thief River Falls power play produced the Prowlers' first goal of the matinee match-up – a slap shot from the point by Joby Looker that went over the shoulder of Hibbing goalie Darik Buchar at 6:07.

Hibbing's Carl Boben hit the upper corner on Thief River Falls third period goalie Jeff Lundgren at 8:01, with a rebound goal by Thief River Falls sophomore Nick Chiodo finishing the scoring at 8:54.

The Prowlers will be idle until the Dec. 27-29 Thief River Falls/Crookston Christmas Tournament. Minneapolis Roosevelt and Benilde St. Margaret's will join the Prowlers and Pirates for the round-robin affair that will feature first day action in Thief River Falls before switching to Crookston for Day 2 and Day 3 games.

Red Lake Falls	40

Red Lake County Central outscored Red Lake Falls 22-4 in the fourth quarter en route to a 54-40 championship game decision.

The outcome left the Mustangs 6-1 and made amends for their only loss of the year – a 55-52 defeat at the hands of the Eagles in a regularly scheduled match-up earlier in the week.

Red Lake Falls played Red Lake County Central to a 10-10 first quarter tie, took a 23-15 halftime lead and had a 36-32 edge heading into the fourth quarter before the Mustangs' blitz took over.

Grygla-Gatzke point production gradually diminished as the game wore on as the Eagles lost a 55-48 third place game to Goodridge.

It was another match-up in an interesting series featuring many players who are teammates in the fall on a Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke football cooperative.

The Eagles started with a 19-14 first quarter lead and maintained a 32-26 halftime spread. But they could muster just 16 second half points, falling behind 44-42 in the third quarter.

Girls high school basketball tournament results...

Gators have another 1-2 finish

Tom Neibauer is hoping history repeats itself. The past two years his teams have bounced back from 1-2 finishes in tough draws at the annual Warren Invitational girls high school basketball tournament to put together 10-game winning streaks.

Neibauer's Badger/Greenbush-Middle River ball club had another 1-2 tournament showing this year, beating Crookston 55-30 in an earlier-reported Thursday quarterfinal tournament match-up before falling to East Grand Forks 68-60 in the Friday semifinals and then losing to Kittson Central 56-53 in Saturday's third place game.

"It's a tough tournament, but it's what we need to make us a better team," said Neibauer.

The Gators left the tournament at 4-3. If history does repeat itself, they will be 14-3 before they lose again.

East Grand Forks	68
B/G-Middle River	60

Foul trouble raised havoc with the Badger/Greenbush-Middle River line-up down the stretch, playing a major role in the Gators' 68-60 semifinal loss to East Grand Forks.

The Gators trailed by just one when first Heather Anderson, then Robyn Iverson fouled out in the final moments of the third quarter. The Green Wave, down 48-45 at halftime, went on to take a 48-45 lead at the third quarter stop and had a 20-15 scoring edge over the final eight minutes.

"It was our best game of the season, but we still lost," mentioned Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer.

Anderson scored 14 points and Iverson netted 10 before they picked up their fifth fouls. Krissi Super led the Gators with 21 points.

Pollie Bohn had a big game underneath the basket for the Green Wave, using her size and strength to score a game-high 27 points. Eleven of those points came at the free throw line after drawing fouls from the Gators' defenders.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River went 25-for-60 from the field (42 percent) and 8-for-12 at the free throw line. East Grand Forks made 18 of 23 free throws.

Kittson Central	56
B/G-Middle River	53

Pressure defense employed by Kittson Central paid a big third quarter dividend, leading the Wolfpack to a 56-53 third place game win over Badger/Greenbush-Middle River.

The Gators were up 22-19 at halftime, but came out of the third quarter trailing 39-28.

"They just out-hustled us in the third quarter," explained Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "Their press got to us. We just didn't handle it very well."

The Gators did put together a fourth quarter comeback, but missed a couple of late-game free throws that could have really made things interesting.

Robyn Iverson had a big 21-point, 10-rebound game for the Gators. Teammate Krissi Super, despite battling illness, turned in a 16-point, 11-rebound effort.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River made 17 of 55 field goal attempts (31 percent) and went 19-for-27 at the free throw line.

SAFETY FIRST!

The holidays are quickly approaching and it doesn't take very long to get caught up in the beauty and wonder of the season. The music, excitement of the children, the colorful lights and decorations all add to the anticipation.

How tragic it would be to have this very special time with our families ruined by a household fire.

NORTHERN STATE AGENCY asks that you take extra precautions this year with the live trees. It takes very little time for any tree to dry out after being in a warm house for just a few short days.

After the tree has been up for a week or so, take care that the lights are not kept on for prolonged periods of time.

Light cords should be checked for frayed wires and any loose bulbs and connections. Family members should be cautioned not to overload electrical outlets.

The staff at NORTHERN STATE AGENCY would like to wish each and everyone a SAFE and joyous holiday season. MERRY CHRISTMAS FROM DEE, CAROL, DIANE, AND RON. Northern State Agency; located in the Northern State bank building.

Pennington SWCD represented at 57th state convention

Local conservationists were among the 850 people who attended the 57th annual convention of the Minnesota Association of Soil and Water Conservation districts recently in St. Cloud.

Attending were board members Daniel R. Johnson, Harry Hanson and Darrow Lundeen and staff member Maggie Leach. Nora Hanson and Shirley Lundeen attended with their husbands. Among the special guests were Sarah Leach of Thief River Falls and Kelly and Brenda Dahlen of Goodridge.

Sarah was honored at the convention kickoff celebration where she presented her award-winning essay on "My Hand In Land Use." Kelly and Brenda were honored as 1993 Outstanding Cooperators for Pennington county at The Farmer magazine luncheon.

The conference, which featured a keynote address by broadcaster Orion Samuelson, focused on the changing role of soil and water managers.

Allan Oehlke, president of the state association, told the convention audience that "We are at a crossroads. Society is changing; the landscape is changing. We must view change as a new opportunity to build partnerships that promote soil and water conservation."

A hog farmer from southern Minnesota, Oehlke encouraged rural residents to build new bridges of communication to urban residents.

"We've reached the point where half the people and half of the lawmakers in Minnesota live in the Metro area," he said. "We must work with these people on soil and water issues. Clearly, urban residents are just as concerned about conservation as you and I are."

Oehlke's thoughts were echoed by Samuelson, host of the radio program National Farm Report and the weekly television show U. S. Farm Report. As the farm population shrinks, he said, so does knowledge about growing crops and raising livestock.

"Communicating your concerns is increasingly difficult as people move further away from the farm," Samuelson said. "You have to help these people understand by presenting a positive message. If they understand, they'll be on your side."

The Minnesota Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts represents 91 soil and water conservation districts which are local units of government, working with land owners to protect soil and water resources.

Gordon Konecky of Iron, a welding student at Northwest Technical College in Thief River Falls, received a $200 scholarship Wednesday from the American Welding Society. Making the presentation was Rollie Boldt, student services coordinator.

IRS matching info to tax returns

Over the next few months, people who may have failed to report various kinds of income or properly claim mortgage interest deductions on their 1991 federal income tax returns will be receiving letters from the Internal Revenue Service.

The letters are part of a computer program that matches financial information sent to the IRS by banks and other businesses with amounts reported on 1991 tax returns. For example, the IRS says, when your bank sends you a form or statement showing interest earned on a savings account or interest paid on a home mortgage, it sends the same information, usually on computer tape or diskette, to the IRS. If the information reported to the tax agency by the bank doesn't match the figures on your return, you will receive one of those letters.

Recipients of the letter must reply within 30 days. The letter lists the items the IRS believes were omitted or improperly reported. In most cases, the letter will also propose an increase in the 1991 tax, plus interest, and in some cases, a penalty.

The IRS urges you to check your return and see if you agree with the changes listed. If you do, sign the statement included with the letter and return it to the IRS. To avoid further interest charges, also send a check for any amount due.

Ag exchange trip to Europe

Young farmers and students interested in gaining practical experience in agriculture in Europe are invited to apply for award grants from the Communicating for Agriculture Exchange Program (CAEP).

U.S. trainees on agricultural exchanges to Ireland, England, Denmark, Germany, Switzerland and France will be eligible to apply for the grants, which are valued between $2,000 and $2,500.

CAEP will also offer its regular low-cost exchange placements in agriculture, agri-business, horticulture and agri-home management to those countries and eight others, including Australia, Brazil, Canada, Holland, Luxembourg, Norway, South Africa and Sweden.

This is the second year that grants covering full programs costs will be awarded. Partial grants by the CA Foundation also will be available to other selected exchange participants in 1994. The deadline for application is February 15, 1994 for departures on March 25 or June 1.

Exchange participants typically work and receive training on farms and agribusinesses for periods of three to 12 months. Extensions are available. Trainees are provided room and board and a monthly stipend of approximately $450. Program costs, which include round-trip air fare, insurance and administration by host organizations, vary depending upon destination.

Applicants should be between the ages of 18 and 28, have a valid driver's license and have at least one year of experience in the field in which they will be training.

CA's exchange program was found in 1985 and now has agreements with 22 countries. For more information contact Marty Gibson, CAEP coordinator, 2626 East 82nd St., Suite 325, Bloomington, MN 55425. Telephone number is (612) 854-9005.

C of C thanks city crew

City workers who put up the Christmas decorations in the community and handled the Christmas tree lighting have received a public thank-you from Robert Bergan, executive vice president of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce.

"We know it's not the warmest job," Bergan said, "and we thank Dale Narlock, Jim Anderson, Neil Sandahl, Larry Kron, Tony Brenna, Brian Grondahl and Orrin Joppru for making our Christmas a little brighter."

Bergan also said he would like to start a Christmas lighting or decorating committee for 1994 and would appreciate anyone interested in helping on this committee to call the chamber of commerce office at 681-3720.

Safe winter driving means being prepared

Minnesota department of transportation is reminding drivers of the need to be prepared for winter driving conditions.

"Winter driving can be dangerous if drivers do not adjust their actions for snow and ice. Planning and preparation are also important considerations," said Ellen Jackelen, acting public affairs coordinator.

When starting, stopping, steering and skidding follow these tips:

- Starting. Keep the wheels straight, gently apply the gas peddle and ease forward slowly. Never spin your wheels or you may end up stuck or in a skid.
- Stopping. Remember to allow a greater distance between you and the car ahead. Reduce your speed and anticipate stops well in advance — particularly at intersections. Never jam on your brakes to stop on a slippery surface; you'll only lock your wheels and lose control of your steering. Gently pump your brakes until you come to a complete stop.
- Steering. Anticipate turns and gradually reduce your speed before curves, lane changes or turns. Signal your intentions well in advance.
- Skidding. If you do go into a skid, don't panic and don't hit the brakes. Take your foot off the gas peddle and gently steer your vehicle in the direction the rear of the vehicle is skidding until your wheels straighten out.

She offers the following winter driving tips for being stranded in a winter storm:

- Stay in your vehicle. Walking away in a storm is very dangerous. You can lose your way, wander out of reach, become exhausted, collapse and even die. Your vehicle is your best shelter.
- Keep calm. Calm down and think. Remember, the storm will end and you will be found. Your main concern should be to conserve body energy and heat. You will not starve to death. Don't attempt to push your car or shovel in extreme storm conditions. It is too dangerous due to injury from tools, a slipping vehicle, exhaustion, heart attack or overexertion.
- Keep fresh air in your vehicle. It is better to be chilly and awake than to be comfortably warm and be overcome with carbon monoxide fumes. Keep your exhaust pipe free of snow and run your engine only foir short periods of time.
- Keep warm without fuel. Keep your blood circulating freely. Loosen tight clothing and change positions frequently. Move your arms and legs, massage fingers and toes, tuck your hands between your legs or under your armpits. Cuddle each other to share heat. Elevate your feet to improve circulation.

She offers the following winter driving tips for planning and preparation:

- Planning. Make sure your vehicle is equipped with booster cables, road flares, a shovel, snowmobile suit, sleeping bag or blankets, mittens, stocking cap and boots, windshield scraper and two rope. Finally, equip your vehicle with a "Winter survival kit."
- Prepare your vehicle. Make sure your vehicle is prepared for Minnesota's harsh winters. Test your anti-freeze, battery, brakes, exhaust and lights. Never travel with less than a half tank of gas.
- Pay attention to weather forecasts. Listen to forecasts, road reports and storm warnings and Trust them. They're meant for you.
- Notify others of travel plans. when roads are in poor driving condition, tell someone where you're going and the route. Report a safe arrival.

A winter survival kit could be a large coffee can with a plastic cover. It should include: candle stubs and matches, a small sharp knife, a red neckscarf or cloth, plastic spoon, large plastic garbage bag, first aid items, books, cards and games, a plastic whistle, flashlight and batteries, safety pins, pencil, and tape coins inside the cover for emergency phone calls.

Snacks should also be included in the survival kit. High energy snacks, such as the following can help: semi-sweek chocolate bars, raisins in small packets, chewing gum, miniature candy bars, wrapped hard candies, granola bars, packets of dry soup, instant oatmeal, hot chocolate.

Outside of the winter survival kit can, tie about 30 feet of cord, which can become a homing line for anyone who must check outside the vehicle. Wrap a pair of warm mittens around the outside of the can with an orange or red scarf and put a

Whole Wheat BIBLE STUDY

Is there only one way?

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

A great many people today believe there are many roads leading to salvation. They will argue, "What makes you think your way is right? My way is just as good as your way." How can people be expected to think any differently when there are thousands of religions with different views on the same subject? Is there only one way that leads to salvation? What does God's word say?

The Lord says the gate is small and the way is narrow, and there are very few people who find it (Matt. 7:14). We must enter by that narrow door, which means we must live as Jesus gave us example to live, to find eternal life. Anyone who climbs up some other way is like a thief and a robber (John 10:1). Jesus boldly proclaims that He is the door (John 10:9).

God's word says there is only one body, one Spirit, one Lord, one faith and one baptism (Eph. 4:4-5). Then, it would only stand to reason that there is only one way or one truth. Remember, it is impossible for God to lie and no lie is of the truth (Heb. 6:18; 1 John 2:21). Jesus Christ not only proclaimed He is the door, but also that He is the truth (John 14:6).

Jesus said everyone on earth will be judged by the words in the Bible and by their works (Rev. 20:12). Those who live a life of good works for God's glory will be resurrected to eternal life (John 5:28-29; Matt. 5:16). Their names are recorded in the book of life and they will receive eternal life (Luke 10:20).

If everyone is going to be judged by the words of Jesus Christ that are found in the Bible, then it stands to reason that the Bible itself is truth (John 12:47-50). Jesus says everyone who keeps, does, performs or practices His sayings will never see death (John 8:51). Only those who do the Will of God will abide forever (1 John 2:17). These life-and-death Scriptures show that Jesus Christ's words are the Will of God, because they have eternal life as the reward.

The subject of works is tragically misunderstood by many today. Evil works are man's works done apart from God (Jer. 17:9-10). Good works are the works Jesus Christ did to please the Father. He came to show us what to do and how to do it. We are also to do these works in order to imitate the Lord (1 Cor. 11:1; Eph. 5:1; Matt. 5:16).

The one and only way is the way Jesus Christ lived. As a result, He overcame the pulls of the world (Rev. 3:21; 5:5; John 14:30; 16:33). We, too, must overcome by performing Jesus Christ's works and enduring to the end, so that we may be found worthy to reign with Him in His kingdom (Rev. 2:5, 26-27).

Yes, there is only one way that leads to eternal life. Now you know that way. Study God's word daily; pray for others, as well as your own needs; and above all, be a doer of the word.

Thank You

We would like to express our heartfelt thanks for the kindness extended to us in the event of Dean's tragic accident and death.

Thank you to all the people who called on us and brought food to the house. Also thanks to Lona Anderson and the many friends who helped us out in so many ways. Your thoughtfulness is greatly appreciated.

A very special thanks to Pastor Robert Posshel and Pastor Ron Calvert for their message at the services and to Craig Swenson, Mike Puetz and Dorothy Larson for their special music and to the ladies of Trinity Lutheran Church for the lunch.

A special thanks also for all the floral tributes, cards, and memorials given in memory of Dean.

God Bless You All!!
The Family Of Dean Dokkin

Thank You

In memory of our Beloved Son & Brother, we want to thank you all, but we are baffled for words. Webster's Dictionary never will have the proper words that can express the kindness shown at the time of the loss of our loved one. It seems there was no end to the comfort we received from everyone. We want to thank everyone from the EMS people and NW Medical Center Staff who worked so hard to save his life. Thanks to Pastor Ron Calvert and Pastor Bob Passehl.

Thanks also to Green Funeral home for their professional services. Most of all we want everyone to know that both families will never forget the kindness we were shown.

May God Bless Each And Everyone!!

When people offer you one last drink, do you always take it?

Do you even ask for "one for the road?" Why not? Nothing can happen with YOU behind the wheel. At least, nothing ever has.

On the other hand, drinking and driving spell accidents. Will you always be so lucky?

So, do yourself a favour. Increase the odds by turning down that drink. Or, if you've had too much, call a taxi — or walk home — or let somebody else take the wheel. But don't drive.

That way, you'll always be a winner.

Thank You

We would like to express our heartfelt thanks for the kindness extended to us in the event of Dean's tragic accident and death.

Thank you to all the people who called on us and brought food to the house. Also thanks to Lona Anderson and the many friends who helped us out in so many ways. Your thoughtfulness is greatly appreciated.

A very special thanks to Pastor Robert Posshel and Pastor Ron Calvert for their message at the services and to Craig Swenson, Mike Puetz and Dorothy Larson for their special music and to the ladies of Trinity Lutheran Church for the lunch.

A special thanks also for all the floral tributes, cards, and memorials given in memory of Dean.

God Bless You All!!
The Family Of Dean Dokkin

Thank You

In memory of our Beloved Son & Brother, we want to thank you all, but we are baffled for words. Webster's Dictionary never will have the proper words that can express the kindness shown at the time of the loss of our loved one. It seems there was no end to the comfort we received from everyone. We want to thank everyone from the EMS people and NW Medical Center Staff who worked so hard to save his life. Thanks to Pastor Ron Calvert and Pastor Bob Passehl.

Thanks also to Green Funeral home for their professional services. Most of all we want everyone to know that both families will never forget the kindness we were shown.

May God Bless Each And Everyone!!

When people offer you one last drink, do you always take it?
Do you even ask for "one for the road?" Why not? Nothing can happen with YOU behind the wheel. At least, nothing ever has.
On the other hand, drinking and driving spell accidents. Will you always be so lucky?
So, do yourself a favour. Increase the odds by turning down that drink. Or, if you've had too much, call a taxi — or walk home — or let somebody else take the wheel. But don't drive.
That way, you'll always be a winner.

PRAIRIE RAMBLING

Gretchen Beito

For Norwegian families of the Red River Valley, "julebukking" used to be one way of having fun during the Christmas season. "Julebukk" literally means "Christmas he-goat" but around here people loosely interpreted it as "christmas fooling". I asked my mother-in-law, Anne Beito, about Christmas week when she was a girl. She described julebukking about 1914 when she was living on a farm north of Oklee.

She told me that a lot of the neighbors would decide that they were going julebukking. It was exciting to get ready to go along with her older sister, Sarah, and her friends.

Each person would dress up in odd clothes and put on masks if available so that their friends would not know them. Because it was cold, Anne decided to put on warm, good clothes and over it all slip on a suit of men's underwear. She did not have to wear a mask because she wrapped her head in a long scarf, only letting her eyes peep out.

A team of horses was hitched to a bobsled lined with hay to sit on. The julebukkers wrapped blankets around themselves for the ride of two to three miles to their neighbors. They sleighed under starry skies over fresh, white snow, the horses' harness bells jingling, jingling.

They arrived at a neighboring farm, giving loud knocks on the door and calling out. Anne was happy to find that the neighbors thought it was terrific to see someone come in from outdoors in underwear on such a cold night, prompting amazed laughter.

All the julebukkers tried to disguise their voices so the neighbors would be unable to guess who they were. They tried to make this difficult with stocking caps over their faces or a towel with holes cut out for eyes and nose. Some turned their coats inside out to give a raggedy appearance or wore big-sized clothes.

Everyone jabbered and laughed and the masks came off when treats were passed around. Everyone joked about how they had been tricked.

The horses stood outside with blankets over them while the julebukkers were inside. When the revelers left, the horse blankets were so nice and warm that the julebukkers would put the blankets on themselves.

They had had intentions of going to several neighbors. However, it ended up, as usual, that they only got to one place because there was so much fun and lots of food at the first place. But perhaps they would go julebukking the next night. Sometimes there were three or so nights of julebukking.

The neighbors all around knew julebukkers might be coming so there was plenty of food. Plates of buttered "julekake", "sandbakkels" and "fattigmand", and hard Christmas candies were served with egg coffee boiled on the wood stove. Rounding out the menu were meat sandwiches – each farm family butchered for Christmas. With no telephone to give advance notice, farm women would keep quite a store of treats on hand, including the requisite seven kinds of sweets, with some of the cookies hidden away in case visitors came. The weeks before Christmas were truly a time of preparation.

There were no social activities before Christmas. The Holiday Season began Christmas Eve with the coming of the Christ-Child, and between Christmas and New Year's Day the visiting by julebukking and programs were part of celebrating His birth.

The pioneers did not exchange gifts, but rather enjoyed each other.

Telling Once Again The Christmas Story.....

How can it be possible, after a person has heard the Biblical account of the birth of Jesus innumerable times, that each reading or hearing of the Christmas Gospel seems to provide something new? It seems improbable, but it is true, that no matter how familiar the story is, it always seems to inspire new thought or provide new insight.

For a number of years we have published just prior to Christmas the most familiar Biblical story, recorded in the Gospel of St. Luke. This year the account is from "The New Testament In The Language Of The People," by Charles B. Williams and first copyrighted in 1937:

ST. LUKE 2: 1-20. Now in those days an edict was issued by the Emperor Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken. This, the first census, was taken while Quirinius was governor of Syria. So everyone was going to his own town to register. And Joseph too went up from Nazareth, a town in Galilee, to the town of David in Judea called Bethlehem, because he was a descendant of the house and family of David, to register with Mary who was engaged to be married to him and who was an expectant mother.

While they were there, the time came for her to give birth, and she bore her firstborn son; and she wrapped Him up and laid Him in a manger, for there was no room for them at the inn.

Now there were some shepherds in the same neighborhood, living in the open fields and keeping watch over their flock by night. Then an angel of the Lord stood by them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, so that they were fearfully frightened. But the angel said to them:

"Stop being afraid, for now I bring you good tidings of great joy which is to be for all the people; for today, in the town of David, a Saviour for you has been born, who is to be your Messiah and Lord. And this is proof for you: You will find a baby wrapped up and lying in a manger."

Then suddenly there appeared with the angel a throng of the heavenly host, praising God and saying:

"Glory to God in highest heaven!
And peace on earth to men who please him."

Then when the angel left them and returned to heaven, the shepherds said to one another,

"Let us now go over to Bethlehem and see this thing that has taken place, which the Lord has told us." So they hurried to the place and found Joseph and Mary; also the baby lying in the manger. When they saw this, they informed them of the story that had been told about this child. And all who heard it were astounded at what was told them by the shepherds, but Mary continued to treasure it all up and to ponder it in her heart. Then the shepherds went back continuing to give glory and praise to God for all that they had heard and seen, just as it had been told them.

Gift Suggestions A Reflection Of The Times

Minnesota Department of Public Safety has provided the state's news media with copies of a "Media Kit for a Safe Holiday Season." In the kit are a number of articles addressing automobile and fire safety, travel tips, statistics on drinking and driving, cold weather survival, etc.

Two segments of the kit are more than a little disconcerting, since they deal with security and safe house holiday gift ideas. It's sad when those giving Christmas gifts have to consider suggestions such as the items listed:

Personal alarm. "small enough to carry in your hand. It will emit a shrill tone that alerts others that you're in danger."

Self defense course. "Training in how to react to an attacker is appropriate for any age individual."

Alarm system. "The most basic alarm system for your home can be purchased for about $200, and the cost increases for more sophisticated systems."

Door viewer. "If you know anyone with a solid wooden door, a viewer will allow them to see who is at their door without opening it to a stranger."

Steering wheel lock. "If someone you know is concerned about car theft, a security system that attaches to the steering wheel of their car may be just the gift."

It's also sad that a Christmas shopper has to pay attention to such suggestions as never leaving a car unlocked, picking up major items at the end rather than the beginning of a shopping trip, locking all purchases in the trunk of the car or under a blanket on the car floor and immediately removing all purchases from the car when you return home.

Precautions suggested even go to the extent of "don't keep presents near windows where they can be seen from the street, especially after they have been unwrapped" and "break up boxes, especially for purchases like TV's, stereos or electronic equipment, and put them in garbage bags."

Isn't it a shame that law-abiding citizens have to adjust their lifestyle and habits to discourage criminals? "Packages left on door steps are easier to steal than those left in cars," the department of public safety notes. "Thieves have been known to follow delivery trucks. Don't give a thief an easy opportunity."

What is even more discouraging than doing the things suggested is the acceptance of the necessity of doing them. The assumption is that there always will be people eager to steal from us and that we should expect the attempt to be made. There is even the idea that it is our fault if our possessions are stolen when we don't do some of the things suggested.

So much anger, pain and suffering could be avoided in our country if only people could learn to live one basic rule: Keep your hands off other people and other people's possessions.

"In this fifth Christmas season of the war, the third since Pearl Harbor, we look back upon four years of a mass slaughter of human beings such as the world never before has witnessed. This is not a happy background for the celebration of the anniversary of the birth of the Prince of Peace. It is hardly the occasion for shouting the traditional wish of the season, 'Merry Christmas.' Wish as we will, it is not going to be a merry Christmas for hundreds of the war's victims.

"Mindful of the physical suffering and mental anguish of so many millions of people throughout the world today, nevertheless, in the spirit of the season, we extend to you our best wishes for a cheerful and hopeful Christmas. May we be given the courage to carry on until victory is won; and when victory is won may we be given the wisdom to so conduct ourselves that we will be able to maintain a just and an enduring peace."

—Prediction: Fewer boxes of cigars will be given for Christmas this year.

—In England, the butter ration is two ounces per person per week. Who are we to complain over here?

—If it is true, as President Roosevelt has stated, that "taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors," then folks must be perspiring freely these days.

—Billy Noonan of Baudette quotes the proverb, "Man wants but little here below," and he adds that the ration boards won't believe it.

—Remember, folks, if you are short on meat stamps, you can get some more by turning in your waste fats.

—The current shortage of liquor ought to simplify the task of making New Years resolutions this year.

—The trouble with the average man having so much money in his pocket, says a commentator, is that Mr. Morgenthau knows it.

—An egoist is defined as a man who tells you those things about himself that you intended to tell about yourself.

—Gas rationing no doubt is being blamed for the failure of Santa Claus to pay his usual pre-holiday visit to local youngsters.

—These radio blurbs about vitamin pills leave one with the impression that food isn't necessary to sustain life.

—Always original, we'll close this column with a novel wish: "Merry Christmas."

In his report to Land Commissioner Lamoreaux, Special Agent Parke recommends that the pine lands of the Red Lake Indian reservation be put upon the market as speedily as possible, he says:

"Settlers in the neighborhood claim that the reservation is simply used to provide places for political friends, and if a change of administration should occur in four years a new set of men will be employed from the party in power to re-estimate the work done under the direction of the present administration and thus would matters continue while the development and settling up of that fine farming section of Minnesota is being retarded. The universal demand and keynote of the situation is the early placing on the market at least a part each year of what has been estimated. I found myself, on investigation, that much of the lumber used for building the thriving town of Thief River Falls, which is in a few hundred yards from the Red Lake reservation, is brought from Tacoma and at $22 to $65 per M. Farmers are prevented from building proper houses to protect their stock or even to have as comfortable homes as that cold region demands. Great quantities of Red Lake timber is being blown down each year by cyclones and if the placing on the market is delayed until all has been estimated by the Nelson bill a re-estimate would have to be made if for no other reason than the forest fires."

They went to Bachman's Floral Shop to view Christmas greenery and spent some time at the Mega Mall before returning home on Friday night.

Telling Once Again The Christmas Story.....

How can it be possible, after a person has heard the Biblical account of the birth of Jesus innumerable times, that each reading or hearing of the Christmas Gospel seems to provide something new? It seems improbable, but it is true, that no matter how familiar the story is, it always seems to inspire new thought or provide new insight.

For a number of years we have published just prior to Christmas the most familiar Biblical story, recorded in the Gospel of St. Luke. This year the account is from "The New Testament In The Language Of The People," by Charles B. Williams and first copyrighted in 1937:

ST. LUKE 2: 1-20. Now in those days an edict was issued by the Emperor Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken. This, the first census, was taken while Quirinius was governor of Syria. So everyone was going to his own town to register. And Joseph too went up from Nazareth, a town in Galilee, to the town of David in Judea called Bethlehem, because he was a descendant of the house and family of David, to register with Mary who was engaged to be married to him and who was an expectant mother.

While they were there, the time came for her to give birth, and she bore her firstborn son; and she wrapped Him up and laid Him in a manger, for there was no room for them at the inn.

Now there were some shepherds in the same neighborhood, living in the open fields and keeping watch over their flock by night. Then an angel of the Lord stood by them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, so that they were fearfully frightened. But the angel said to them:

"Stop being afraid, for now I bring you good tidings of great joy which is to be for all the people; for today, in the town of David, a Saviour for you has been born, who is to be your Messiah and Lord. And this is proof for you: You will find a baby wrapped up and lying in a manger."

Then suddenly there appeared with the angel a throng of the heavenly host, praising God and saying:

"Glory to God in highest heaven!
And peace on earth to men who please him."

Then when the angel left them and returned to heaven, the shepherds said to one another,

"Let us now go over to Bethlehem and see this thing that has taken place, which the Lord has told us." So they hurried to the place and found Joseph and Mary; also the baby lying in the manger. When they saw this, they informed them of the story that had been told about this child. And all who heard it were astounded at what was told them by the shepherds, but Mary continued to treasure it all up and to ponder it in her heart. Then the shepherds went back continuing to give glory and praise to God for all that they had heard and seen, just as it had been told them.

Gift Suggestions A Reflection Of The Times

Minnesota Department of Public Safety has provided the state's news media with copies of a "Media Kit for a Safe Holiday Season." In the kit are a number of articles addressing automobile and fire safety, travel tips, statistics on drinking and driving, cold weather survival, etc.

Two segments of the kit are more than a little disconcerting, since they deal with security and safe house holiday gift ideas. It's sad when those giving Christmas gifts have to consider suggestions such as the items listed:

Personal alarm. "small enough to carry in your hand. It will emit a shrill tone that alerts others that you're in danger."

Self defense course. "Training in how to react to an attacker is appropriate for any age individual."

Alarm system. "The most basic alarm system for your home can be purchased for about $200, and the cost increases for more sophisticated systems."

Door viewer. "If you know anyone with a solid wooden door, a viewer will allow them to see who is at their door without opening it to a stranger."

Steering wheel lock. "If someone you know is concerned about car theft, a security system that attaches to the steering wheel of their car may be just the gift."

It's also sad that a Christmas shopper has to pay attention to such suggestions as never leaving a car unlocked, picking up major items at the end rather than the beginning of a shopping trip, locking all purchases in the trunk of the car or under a blanket on the car floor and immediately removing all purchases from the car when you return home.

Precautions suggested even go to the extent of "don't keep presents near windows where they can be seen from the street, especially after they have been unwrapped" and "break up boxes, especially for purchases like TV's, stereos or electronic equipment, and put them in garbage bags."

Isn't it a shame that law-abiding citizens have to adjust their lifestyle and habits to discourage criminals? "Packages left on door steps are easier to steal than those left in cars," the department of public safety notes. "Thieves have been known to follow delivery trucks. Don't give a thief an easy opportunity."

What is even more discouraging than doing the things suggested is the acceptance of the necessity of doing them. The assumption is that there always will be people eager to steal from us and that we should expect the attempt to be made. There is even the idea that it is our fault if our possessions are stolen when we don't do some of the things suggested.

So much anger, pain and suffering could be avoided in our country if only people could learn to live one basic rule: Keep your hands off other people and other people's possessions.

This is not a happy background for the celebration of the anniversary of the birth of the Prince of Peace. It is hardly the occasion for shouting the traditional wish of the season, 'Merry Christmas.' Wish as we will, it is not going to be a 'merry' Christmas for hundreds of the war's victims.

"Mindful of the physical suffering and mental anguish of so many millions of people throughout the world today, nevertheless, in the spirit of the season, we extend to you our best wishes for a cheerful and hopeful Christmas. "In his report to Land Commissioner Lamoreaux, Special Agent Parke recommends that the pine lands of the Red Lake Indian reservation be put upon the market as speedily as possible, he says:

"'Settlers in the neighborhood claim that the reservation is simply used to provide places for political friends, and if a change of administration should occur in four years a new set of men will be employed from the party in power to re-estimate the work done under the direction of the present administration and thus would matters continue while the development and settling up of that fine farming section of Minnesota is being retarded. The universal demand and keynote of the situation is the early placing on the market at least a part each year of what has been estimated. I found myself, on investigation, that much of the lumber used for building the thriving town of Thief River Falls, which is in a few hundred yards from the Red Lake reservation, is brought from Tacoma and at $22 to $65 per M. Farmers are prevented from building proper houses to protect their stock or even to have as comfortable homes as that cold region demands. Great quantities of Red Lake timber is being blown down each year by cyclones and if the placing on the market is delayed until all has been estimated by the Nelson bill a re-estimate would have to be made if for no other reason than the forest fires."

Viking........

Last Wednesday Irwin and Pearl Johnson went on a "Holidazel" tour of the Twin Cities. They attended the Chanhassen Dinner Theatre where they saw the production of "One Fine Christmas." They also went on a tour of the Cities and the Minnesota Zoo to see the holiday lights. They attended "Beauty and the Beast at Daytons and the Christmas parade down Nicollet avenue. They went to Bachman's Floral Shop to view Christmas greenery and spent some time at the Mega Mall before returning home on Friday night.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

Sara Tyler
Lincoln High School

I love chocolate. Actually, it is beyond love. I am on the verge of an addiction. Maybe it is an addiction. The first step to curing an addiction is admitting it, but I don't want to cure this. So, I refuse to admit I am addicted.

I think that women like chocolate more than men do. I know some males who like chocolate, but I've never met any who are as "in love" with it as I am. I've even met some who don't like it! That's a shock to me. I had never dreamed that someone wouldn't like chocolate.

I'm not sure why I love chocolate so much. It is creamy and rich, and I love to feel the texture in my mouth. But is that the reason? Sometimes I think I have been brainwashed into thinking chocolate is something wonderful. Just like I've been brainwashed into thinking liver is bad. (I don't remember ever tasting liver, but if anyone asks me if I like it I say I don't.) With all the commercials on TV about the richness, smoothness and delight in eating chocolate, how could anyone not be interested in trying it?

I also think that parents help brainwash kids into loving chocolate. It is given as a treat, and treats are always better than real meals. I'm not necessarily saying this should be stoped; chocolate is very enjoyable. In fact, I treat myself to it regulafly. I almost need some chocolate every day. I may only have a chocolate chip cookie or a brownie. If I get into a real fix, I'll eat chocolate chips. I thing we used more chocolate chips because of this habit than we do in baking.

I love almost anything that has chocolate in it. I'll eat candy bars, cakes, cookies, any kind of snack if it is chocolate. The richer the chocolate the more I like it. Hot chocolate is another of my favorites. When I have it, I have to make sure it is rich enough. I can't use only part of a packet. If I do, it doesn't even taste like chocolate. It is only slightly flavored water.

I'll even eat nuts if they are in chocolate. I am not a big fan of nuts. I only like peanuts. But if I want chocolate badly enough, I will eat the nuts inside it. I'll try to eat the nuts first so they won't interfere with my love, but I will eat them.

Yes, I may be addicted to chocolate. But chocolate is a lot better to be addicted to than drugs. So, I'll keep my chocolate addiction; and if you see me with a guilty smile on my face, I've probably just sneaked a delicious piece of chocolate.

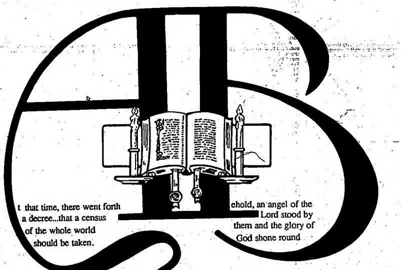
Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to everyone. I would like to thank everyone who has given me news this past year. If you have news items, please call 681-4446 or 681-4419. I home everyone has a great 1994.



t that time, there went forth a decree...that a census of the whole world should be taken.

ehold, an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of God shone round

And all were going each to his own town to register.
And Joseph also went...together with Mary his espoused wife who was with child....And she brought forth her firstborn Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes and laid Him in a manger,...And there were shepherds in the same district living in the fields.. keeping watch over their flock...And about them, and they feared...

And the angel said to them,
"Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good news of great joy which shall be to all the people; for today in the town of David a Savior has been born to you, Who is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign to you: you will find an infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger."

ORDINANCE NO. 229 2ND SERIES
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, AMENDING CITY CODE CHAPTER 6 ENTITLED "OTHER BUSINESS REGULATION AND LICENSING" BY AMENDING SECTION 6.41 ENTITLED "TAXICABS", AND, BY ADOPTING BY REFERENCE, CITY CODE CHAPTER 1 AND SECTION 6.99, WHICH, AMONG OTHER THINGS, CONTAIN PENALTY PROVISIONS.

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THIEF RIVER FALLS ORDAINS:

Section 1. City Code Sec. 6.41. entitled "Taxicabs" is hereby amended to read:

Subd. 1. Definitions. The following terms, as used in this Section, shall have the meanings stated:

A. The term "taxicab" means any passenger conveyance being driven, on call or traversing a scheduled or unscheduled route for public use or hire upon payment of a fare or at regular fare rates, but not including ambulances and such conveyances as are designed for mass transportation as buses, trains or streetcars.

B. The term "licensee" means a person owning or otherwise having control of one or more taxicabs.

C. The term "driver" means the person driving and having physical control over a taxicab whether he be the licensee or in the employ of the licensee.

Subd. 2. License Required. It is unlawful for any person to drive or operate a taxicab without a license therefor from the City. Licenses shall be issued by the City Clerk-Treasurer upon approval by the Council after the applicant has filed an application and has shown that operation of the service will comply with all applicable laws and ordinances. Additionally, each driver shall have in force a valid driver's license issued by the State of Minnesota.

Subd. 3. License Issuance and Display and Vehicle Marking. All licenses shall be issued for specific conveyances, except as otherwise herein provided. License tags, including number and year for which issued, shall be plainly visible from the front of the conveyance. Both sides of every licensed taxicab, when in use, shall be plainly and permanently marked as such with a painted sign or appurtenances showing the full or abbreviated name of the licensee.

Subd. 4. License Fees. The annual license fee for the licensee's first conveyance is $25.00 and the annual license fee for each additional conveyance operated under the license is $15.00. Provided, however, that if a licensed vehicle is disabled through mechanical failure or for needed repairs, the license may be temporarily transferred to another conveyance for a seven-day period upon approval by the City.

Subd. 5. Insurance Required. Before a taxicab license is issued by the Council, and at all times effective during such licensed period, the licensee shall have and maintain for each vehicle public liability and bodily injury insurance in the amount of $100,000.00 for any one person and $300,000.00 for two or more persons injured in any one accident, as well as $50,000.00 property damage insurance. Such insurance shall cover all passengers carried by the insured licensee and shall be for public taxicab purposes. All such policies shall contain a clause providing for ten days' written notice to the City Clerk-Treasurer before cancellation and a memorandum of such insurance shall be furnished to the City before a license is issued.

Subd. 6. Rates. Each applicant shall file with the City Clerk-Treasurer, before a taxicab license is issued or renewed, a schedule of proposed maximum rates to be charged by licensee during the licensed period for which the application is made, the schedule of proposed maximum rates, or a compromise schedule thereof, shall be approved by the Council before granting the license. Such schedule shall be posted in a conspicuous place in the taxicab in full view of passengers riding therein. Nothing herein shall prevent a taxicab licensee from petitioning the Council for review of such rates during the licensed period, and the Council may likewise consider such petition and make new rates effective at any time. No taxicab licensee shall charge rates in excess of maximum rates approved by the Council.

Subd. 7. Mechanical Condition. Before issuing a taxicab license, the applicant shall present to the Council a certificate signed by a competent and experienced mechanic showing that the taxicab conveyance is in good mechanical condition, that it is thoroughly safe for transportation of passengers, and that it is in neat and clean condition. Such similar certificate may be required from time to time during the license period. In lieu of such certificate, the Council may accept the report of the Chief of Police relative thereof. Before putting on any different or additional vehicles during the license year, the licensee shall submit a complete description of the vehicle to the City Clerk-Treasurer, pay the additional fee, and have the vehicle inspected in accordance with this subdivision. The operation of any vehicle which fails to meet the standards of safety established by law shall be discontinued until such time as the deficiency is eliminated.

Subd. 8. Non-transferability. A license or any rights or privileges thereunder may not be sold, transferred, leased, or assigned.

Subd. 9. Revocation or Suspension.

A. The City Clerk-Treasurer is hereby given authority to suspend the license issued under this Section for cause for a period of not more than 30 days.

B. The City Clerk-Treasurer is hereby given authority to revoke any license issued under this Section for cause after hearing upon five days' notice to the licensee. The licensee may, within 30 days after mailing of the notice, appeal such revocation through the City Council, which shall give such licensee an opportunity to be heard at its next regular meeting following the appeal. The Council may, at such meeting, affirm, modify, or revoke the decision of the City Clerk-Treasurer.

C. Sufficient cause for suspension or revocation shall include, but be limited to: Violation of any of the provisions of this Section by the licensee, licensee's employees, or any other person operating under the licensee's license; violation of any other ordinance of the City or any state or federal law, violation of which reflects unfavorably upon the licensee's fitness to offer public transportation by the licensee, the licensee's employees, or any other person operating under the licensee's license.

D. Any licensee's license may be revoked or suspended for the actions of any driver driving a taxicab which is operated pursuant to the licensee's license.

Subd. 10. Radio Requirements. Each licensee shall provide 24-hour service and all taxicabs shall be controlled from a base station by means of a 2-way radio equipment.

Subd. 11. Refusal to Pay. It is unlawful for any person hiring a taxicab to refuse to pay the fare for such service and no person shall hire a taxicab with intent to defraud the licensee or the driver of the value of such service.

Section 2. City Code Chapter 1 entitled "General Provisions and Definitions Applicable to the Entire City Code Including Penalty for Violations" and Section 6.99 entitled "Violation A Misdemeanor" are hereby adopted in their entirety, by reference, as though repeated verbatim herein.

Section 3. This ordinance shall be in force and effect from and after its passage, approval, and publication.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES

Story Time

As Christmas draws closer, many children become over-stimulated with all of the gifts, sugar treats and activities. It may be wise to take time for a quiet storytime.

You may choose a favorite story, or go to the library and pick out some interesting stories that you would both enjoy.

Then settle down, read, talk, discuss and spend some quiet time together. Both you and your child deserve it, so enjoy!

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need a camera, paper and crayons or a pencil.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library invites you to gather 'round the Christmas tree and enjoy the following new selections:

McClure, Gillian. The Christmas Donkey. There is rebellion when a poor carpenter named Joseph buys a very proud and stubborn donkey to carry his wife, Mary to Bethlehem.

Aliki. Christmas Tree Memories. Two children and their parents gather around the Christmas tree and share remembrances of family, friends, places and events through the decorations.

VIDEO VARIETY

Christmas at Plum Creek. This is a gripping and dramatic story of the Ingalls family trying to make their first Christmas at Plum Creek a most memorable one as they struggle to make a new life for themselves.

PARENTING TIPS

Winter and Children

Most of us stay inside as much as possible when the weather gets cold. Often we do not get as much physical activity as we should. Children as well as adults need some kind of physical activity on a regular basis. In fact as children's muscles and bones grow and develop they may feel a strong urge to move, climb, jump or run. In the winter when we are inside so much this "urge" can cause problems.

On those days when your children are rather "wild," won't cooperate or are fighting with each other, it could be that they are in need of some physical activity! If your children have an opportunity for regular physical activity you should also notice that they eat and sleep better. So how can we provide physical activity when it is cold out? Following are some suggestions:

- whenever the temperature is warm enough, bundle up and take your child outside to run, jump and climb: even if it is only for 15 minutes.
- when you can't go outside: try these ideas inside:

* Play a game of "Catch Me" by crawling on the floor: take turns, sometimes you chase and sometimes have your child chase you. Remember you can always set up limits and rules as to when and where this active play will take place in your house.

*Make an obstacle course. Use things in your house to go over, under, around and through.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about the weather outside, the cold temperatures, the wind or the snow. Look at a thermometer to see what it says. Talk about what kind of clothes are needed outdoors at different temperatures.

Ethel Rouland donated the Christmas tree for the Christmas program at the church. Carol and Lee Torgerson of Thief River Falls donated the Christmas tree for Santa Claus Day at Gully Community Center. Arlin Fore went and got the trees. Lloyd and Linda Godtland helped set it up at the hall and others helped decorate it, so we want to thank them for getting the trees, setting them up and decorating the trees. They really looked beautiful.

I hope you all have a happy and safe Christmas. Merry Christmas to you all!

Gale Myers of Lake Park, Evelyn and Clarence Myers and Linda Carlson of Warroad were Sunday dinner guests at the Tim Myers home, in the afternoon they all attended the funeral for Irvin Hangaard at Samhold Church, Gonvick.

Arnold Haugen of Duluth was an overnight guest at his sister's Mildred Sollen, on Friday. He also visited Edwin Haugen and was to his "Gully home", but the cook wasn't there, so he left.

Lyn Turenne of Thief River Falls was an overnight visitor at Effie Handy's.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Forsberg were in Bemidji Sunday and also called on Marie Kellberg and had coffee with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Haugen and Esther Thorssen went to Warroad on Sunday. They were dinner guests of Orvin Haugen. They also visited with Gerald Haugen and girls and Owen Haugen while there.

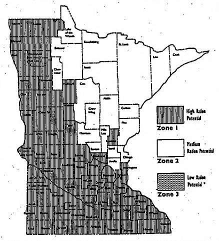
MINNESOTA - Map of Radon



This map is not intended to determine if a home in a given zone should be tested for radon. Homes with elevated levels of radon have been found in all three zones and the Minnesota Department of Health suggests that all homes should be tested, regardless of geographic location. The map is based on information provided from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). Consult the publication entitled "Radon Potential of Minnesota" or supplement the map with any available local data in order to further understand and predict the radon potential of a specific area. Minnesota does not have any low radon potential areas.

Dahlens are Outstanding Cooperators in SWCD

Rural Goodridge family wins Pennington county honors for 1993

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Kelly and Brenda Dahlen's farm 13 miles southeast of Goodridge is so close to the Red Lake Indian Reservation line that they farm on both sides of it.

It's all legal, of course; Kelly and his brother David, who farm the reservation land together, are members of the Red Lake Band of Chippewa Indians through their mother, now Mrs. Ella Englund of Thief River Falls. The brothers have 500 acres of reservation land to farm with a lifetime lease at no cost to them and with no property taxes to pay.

"It's virtually all peat land," Kelly explained, "and we had to drain and break it after we took out the lease in 1980. We grow grass seed and hay—mostly timothy and reed canary grass—and take a second cutting of reed canary grass for hay. We can also raise a little feed barley for our livestock and use some of the land for pasture."

Kelly and Brenda's livestock includes 35 grade Holstein milk cows and 45 head of stock cows that are mostly Hereford and Angus cross. The dairy herd also includes 10 to 15 replacement heifers and 25 to 30 calves. The stanchion barn was built in 1976 and the pipeline milker system was added in 1984.

"Who is the best milker?" Brenda asked daughter Kasey, age five. It was obviously a leading question.

"You are," the youngster coyly replied, and the answer drew no dispute from either parent. The milking job most often falls to Brenda, although she had no background in dairying. She is the former Brenda Halvorson of Trail and she and Kelly were married in 1987.

In addition to Kasey, the other Dahlen children include daughter Kristin, 13 and sons Cody, 12 and Cole, 4.

The Dahlens raise their beef calves for sale as feeders at about 700 pounds and this year have acquired a Charolais bull for their cross-breeding program.

One of the reasons that Kelly and Brenda were selected for their award as Outstanding Cooperators in the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District is their manure handling system for the dairy barn. It has received a permit from the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency and was built with federal cost-sharing through the Soil Conservation Service.

The system includes a manure pump in the barn which collects waste from the gutters and pumps it outside to a 36x76-foot concrete stacking slab. The slab is sloped to the south where an earthen collection pit has been dug to hold the liquid run-off. It has worked well since its installation in 1987.

The dry manure is loaded and hauled from the slab for spreading on corn or alfalfa ground where it is either plowed under or disked into the surface. The collection pit has not yet had to be pumped. A straw chopper in the barn chops square bales of straw for bedding to flow better through the manure pump.

Other conservation practices on the farm include planting of a field shelterbelt on a field where wind erosion had been a problem, installation of surface ditches for field

Outstanding Cooperator for the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District for 1993 is the Kelly and Brenda Dahlen family. The Dahlens farm in Star township about 13 miles southeast of Goodridge. Family members include (left to right) Kristin, 13; Kasey, 5; Cody, 12; and Cole, 4. Selection for 1993 was made from among farmers in the townships of Goodridge, Reiner, Highlanding, Star, Hickory, Deer Park and Mayfield.

Large round bales of hay are handled with ease with this hydraulic loader and hay fork operated by Kelly Dahlen. The Dahlens have 35 head of grade Holstein milk cows and 45 head of crossbred beef stock cows in addition to youngstock.

Health Department continues to suggest home radon testing

A national radon map—which divides the country into high, medium and low risk zones for exposure to the potentially hazardous radioactive gas—has provided new support for Minnesota health officials in their advice to have home owners and renters test their residences for radon.

The map was developed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and released by the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH). It is being used to call attention to the potential health problems associated with radon.

According to the map, 68 Minnesota counties—which have about 80 per cent of the state's population—are in areas that have "high potential" for radon to accumulate inside homes. The affected counties are primarily in the southern and western parts of the state, including two to three tiers of counties east of the North Dakota border in northwestern Minnesota.

The 19 remaining Minnesota counties are classified as having "medium potential" for radon. No portions of Minnesota are classified as having "low potential."

Minnesotans shouldn't be unduly alarmed about the new radon map, according to state Health Commissioner Mary Jo O'Brien, but they also shouldn't be complacent if they don't happen to live in a "high risk" area.

"The map was only intended to show the potential risk of finding high radon levels inside homes," Commissioner O'Brien noted. "It's very difficult to predict whether any given home will have a problem. That's why testing is so important."

"It's easy to test for radon, and it's easy to correct the problem if you have one," she added. "Testing for radon is a very positive step that people can take to help reduce their risk of getting cancer."

Radon is a colorless, odorless gas produced by the breakdown of uranium in soil, rocks and water. Under the right circumstances it can build up inside homes—especially

Support of area airline service asked

by Robert F. Selig
Executive Director
Grand Forks Regional Airport Authority

As you may or may not be aware, within the last year Continental Airlines, Delta Airlines and United Airlines have discontinued service to North Dakota. The loss of this air service, along with subsequent meetings with Northwest Airlines, has had a much more sobering effect on those of us in the airport industry than the news reports would indicate.

These events have brought forth several "shining" realities that will continue to affect our region's future economic development:

Northwest Airlines is the only remaining jet carrier that is able or even interested in providing service to our region. Not only is Northwest committed to providing the same frequency of flights, but it remains committed to continuing its practice of offering competitive special air fares throughout the year.

Northwest Airlines has publicly stated that its commitment to continuing the air service must also be met by an equal commitment by the communities throughout our region to support and continue to use the service being provided. This not only includes the air service at the International Airport but services provided to Thief River Falls and Bemidji as well.

In other words, Northwest offers a certain number of seats for sale in each airport region. If the region fails to use the seats, the flights can be canceled and moved to another community for sale. For example, each time a Grand Forks region traveler purchases, or a travel agent sells, a seat on a Fargo flight, we are in effect telling Northwest that the same seat out of the Grand Forks region is unnecessary. If we send this message enough, the cumulative effect is the loss of a flight or flights.

Traditionally, airports have taken comfort in the belief that, if one airline discontinued service, another airline would move in to fill the void. This is no longer the case. There simply are no jet service airlines available to replace Northwest. Even commuter airline opportunities are quite limited. Over the past 15 years, competitive airlines have either gone out of business or have been purchased by other major carriers.

Therefore, while the communities within our region have traditionally shared a healthy competition for industrial and retail developments, this no longer can be the case with air service. The fact remains that regional air service is as much a part of each community's infrastructure as water, sewer and schools. Communities without access to quality air service simply will cease to grow and in fact will ultimately find themselves in decline in our rapidly advancing world.

In order for the region to retain and secure its air service future, communities within the International Airport's market service area (Devils Lake, Grafton, Mayville, Northwood, Larimore and Grand Forks, ND; Crookston, Thief River Falls, Warren, Roseau, Bemidji, Warroad and East Grand Forks, for example) and the Regional Airport Authority need to begin working together closely to establish an air service marketing and development plan that will benefit the entire region. It is my sincere hope that we can begin this cooperative effort in the near future.

Mesaba Aviation, Inc. has response

by Douglas P. Fulton
Director of Marketing And Public Relations
Mesaba Aviation, Inc.

In general, Mr. Selig's call for regional support for airport use is well founded. Passengers do need to support the local airline service or risk losing some or all of it. This is particularly true at smaller regional airports such as Thief River Falls where fewer passengers make it even more difficult for airlines to provide a profitable service.

Although it appears that Mr. Selig is appealing for broad regional support at Grand Forks, he does acknowledge both Thief River Falls and Bemidji (second paragraph) as air service destinations which require the same type of support as Grand Forks in order to maintain service levels. We believe that passengers in Thief River Falls should also compare service and fare issues at their own airport before diving southwest to Grand Forks. Airline service is a driving economic factor in any community.

Of course, fares do and will continue to be an important factor in someone's decision to fly locally. In most cases, Thief River Falls' connecting fares are competitive with those in Grand Forks. In recent months, certain promotional fares and local fares have been less expensive at Grand Forks, a reality which is frequently the case at airports which have a larger number of seats because of market size.

Mesaba's load factor at Thief River Falls has fallen slightly over the past six months compared to previous years. In response to that, we have refined our schedule to include two daily round-trips a day. We will continue to monitor our passenger demand and increase our capacity as that demand increases. We do expect that passenger enplanements will increase in 1994.

In conclusion, Mesaba is committed to providing Thief River Falls with continued quality airline services. We have a loyal staff which resides locally. We have enjoyed 10 years of profitable service in the business community. And finally, we have a profound respect and affection for the people and community of Thief River Falls.

ACTIVITIES

Story Time

As Christmas draws closer, many children become over-stimulated with all of the gifts, sugar treats and activities. It may be wise to take time for a quiet storytime.

You may choose a favorite story, or go to the library and pick out some interesting stories that you would both enjoy.

Then settle down, read, talk, discuss and spend some quiet time together. Both you and your child deserve it, so enjoy!

Winter and Children

Most of us stay inside as much as possible when the weather gets cold. Often we do not get as much physical activity as we should. Children as well as adults need some kind of physical activity on a regular basis. In fact as children's muscles and bones grow and develop they may feel a strong urge to move, climb, jump or run. In the winter when we are inside so much this "urge" can cause problems.

On those days when your children are rather "wild," won't cooperate or are fighting with each other, it could be that they are in need of some physical activity! If your children have an opportunity for regular physical activity you should also notice that they eat and sleep better. So how can we provide physical activity when it is cold out? Following are some suggestions:

- whenever the temperature is warm enough, bundle up and take your child outside to run, jump and climb: even if it is only for 15 minutes.
- when you can't go outside: try these ideas inside:

* Play a game of "Catch Me" by crawling on the floor: take turns, sometimes you chase and sometimes have your child chase you. Remember you can always set up limits and rules as to when and where this active play will take place in your house.

*Make an obstacle course. Use things in your house to go over, under, around and through.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about the weather outside, the cold temperatures, the wind or the snow. Look at a thermometer to see what it says. Talk about what kind of clothes are needed outdoors at different temperatures.

Ethel Rouland donated the Christmas tree for the Christmas program at the church. Carol and Leo Torgerson of Thief River Falls donated the Christmas tree for Santa Claus Day at Gully Community Center. Arlin Fore went and got the trees. Lloyd and Linda Godtland helped set it up at the hall and others helped decorate it, so we want to thank them for getting the trees, setting them up and decorating the trees. They really looked beautiful.

I hope you all have a happy and safe Christmas. Merry Christmas to you all!

Gale Myers of Lake Park, Evelyn and Clarence Myers and Linda Carlson of Warroad were Sunday dinner guests at the Tim Myers home, in the afternoon they all attended the funeral for Irvin Hangaard at Samhold Church, Gonvick.

Arnold Haugen of Duluth was an overnight guest at his sister's Mildred Solien, on Friday. He also visited Edwin Haugen and was to his "Gully home", but the cook wasn't there, so he left.

Lyn Turonne of Thief River Falls was an overnight visitor at Effie Handy's.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Forsberg were in Bemidji Sunday and also called on Marie Kellberg and had coffee with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Haugen and Esther Thorsson went to Warroad on Sunday. They were dinner guests of Orvin Haugen. They also visited with Gerald Haugen and girls and Owen Haugen while there.

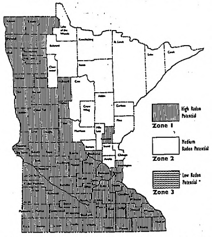
MINNESOTA - Map of Radon



This map is not intended to determine if a home in a given zone should be tested for radon. Homes with elevated levels of radon have been found in all three zones and the Minnesota Department of Health suggests that all homes should be tested, regardless of geographic location. The map is based on information provided from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). Consult the publication entitled "Radon Potential of Minnesota" or supplement the map with any available local data in order to further understand and predict the radon potential of a specific area. Minnesota does not have any low radon potential areas.

Health Department continues to suggest home radon testing

A national radon map—which divides the country into high, medium and low risk zones for exposure to the potentially hazardous radioactive gas—has provided new support for Minnesota health officials in their advice to have home owners and renters test their residences for radon.

The map was developed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and released by the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH). It is being used to call attention to the potential health problems associated with radon.

According to the map, 68 Minnesota counties—which have about 80 per cent of the state's population—are in areas that have "high potential" for radon to accumulate inside homes. The affected counties are primarily in the southern and western parts of the state, including two to three tiers of counties east of the North Dakota border in northwestern Minnesota.

The 19 remaining Minnesota counties are classified as having "medium potential" for radon. No portions of Minnesota are classified as having "low potential."

Minnesotans shouldn't be unduly alarmed about the new radon map, according to state Health Commissioner Mary Jo O'Brien, but they also shouldn't be complacent if they don't happen to live in a "high risk" area.

"The map was only intended to show the potential risk of finding high radon levels inside homes," Commissioner O'Brien noted. "It's very difficult to predict whether any given home will have a problem. That's why testing is so important."

"It's easy to test for radon, and it's easy to correct the problem if you have one," she added. "Testing for radon is a very positive step that people can take to help reduce their risk of getting cancer."

Radon is a colorless, odorless gas produced by the breakdown of uranium in soil, rocks and water. Under the right circumstances it can build up inside homes—especially

Dahlens are Outstanding Cooperators in SWCD

Rural Goodridge family wins Pennington county honors for 1993

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Kelly and Brenda Dahlen's farm 13 miles southeast of Goodridge is so close to the Red Lake Indian Reservation line that they farm on both sides of it.

It's all legal, of course; Kelly and his brother David, who farm the reservation land together, are members of the Red Lake Band of Chippewa Indians through their mother, now Mrs. Ella Englund of Thief River Falls. The brothers have 500 acres of reservation land to farm with a lifetime lease at no cost to them and with no property taxes to pay.

"It's virtually all peat land," Kelly explained, "and we had to drain and break it after we took out the lease in 1980. We grow grass seed and hay—mostly timothy and reed canary grass—and take a second cutting of reed canary grass for hay. We can also raise a little feed barley for our livestock and use some of the land for pasture."

Kelly and Brenda's livestock includes 35 grade Holstein milk cows and 45 head of stock cows that are mostly Hereford and Angus cross. The dairy herd also includes 10 to 15 replacement heifers and 25 to 30 calves. The stanchion barn was built in 1976 and the pipeline milker system was added in 1984.

"Who is the best milker?" Brenda asked daughter Kasey, age five. It was obviously a leading question.

"You are," the youngster coyly replied, and the answer drew no dispute from either parent. The milking job most often falls to Brenda, although she had no background in dairying. She is the former Brenda Halvorson of Trail and she and Kelly were married in 1987.

In addition to Kasey, the other Dahlen children include daughter Kristin, 13 and sons Cody, 12 and Cole, 4.

The Dahlens raise their beef calves for sale as feeders at about 700 pounds and this year have acquired a Charolais bull for their cross-breeding program.

One of the reasons that Kelly and Brenda were selected for their award as Outstanding Cooperators in the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District is their manure handling system for the dairy barn. It has received a permit from the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency and was built with federal cost-sharing through the Soil Conservation Service.

The system includes a manure pump in the barn which collects waste from the gutters and pumps it outside to a 36x76-foot concrete stacking slab. The slab is sloped to the south where an earthen collection pit has been dug to hold the liquid run-off. It has worked well since its installation in 1987.

The dry manure is loaded and hauled from the slab for spreading on corn or alfalfa ground where it is either plowed under or disked into the surface. The collection pit has not yet had to be pumped. A straw chopper in the barn chops square bales of straw for bedding to flow better through the manure pump.

Other conservation practices on the farm include planting of a field shelterbelt on a field where wind erosion had been a problem, installation of surface ditches for field

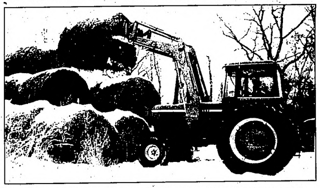
Outstanding Cooperator for the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District for 1993 is the Kelly and Brenda Dahlen family. The Dahlens farm in Star township about 13 miles southeast of Goodridge. Family members include (left to right) Kristin, 13; Kasey, 5; Cody, 12; and Cole, 4. Selection for 1993 was made from among farmers in the townships of Goodridge, Reiner, Highlanding, Star, Hickory, Deer Park and Mayfield.



Large round bales of hay are handled with ease with this hydraulic loader and hay fork operated by Kelly Dahlen. The Dahlens have 35 head of grade Holstein milk cows and 45 head of crossbred beef stock cows in addition to youngstock.

Support of area airline service asked

by Robert F. Selig
Executive Director
Grand Forks Regional Airport Authority

As you may or may not be aware, within the last year Continental Airlines, Delta Airlines and United Airlines have discontinued service to North Dakota. The loss of this air service, along with subsequent meetings with Northwest Airlines, has had a much more sobering effect on those of us in the airport industry than the news reports would indicate.

These events have brought forth several "shining" realities that will continue to affect our region's future economic development:

Northwest Airlines is the only remaining jet carrier that is able or even interested in providing service to our region. Not only is Northwest committed to providing the same frequency of flights, but it remains committed to continuing its practice of offering competitive special air fares throughout the year.

Northwest Airlines has publicly stated that its commitment to continuing the air service must also be met by an equal commitment by the communities throughout our region to support and continue to use the service being provided. This not only includes the air service at the International Airport but services provided to Thief River Falls and Bemidji as well.

In other words, Northwest offers a certain number of seats for sale in each airport region. If the region fails to use the seats, the flights can be canceled and moved to another community for sale. For example, each time a Grand Forks region traveler purchases, or a travel agent sells, a seat on a Fargo flight, we are in effect telling Northwest that the same seat out of the Grand Forks region is unnecessary. If we send this message enough, the cumulative effect is the loss of a flight or flights.

Traditionally, airports have taken comfort in the belief that, if one airline discontinued service, another airline would move in to fill the void. This is no longer the case. There simply are no jet service airlines available to replace Northwest. Even commuter airline opportunities are quite limited. Over the past 15 years, competitive airlines have either gone out of business or have been purchased by other major carriers.

Therefore, while the communities within our region have traditionally shared a healthy competition for industrial and retail developments, this no longer can be the case with air service. The fact remains that regional air service is as much a part of each community's infrastructure as water, sewer and schools. Communities without access to quality air service simply will cease to grow and in fact will ultimately find themselves in decline in our rapidly advancing world.

In order for the region to retain and secure its air service future, communities within the International Airport's market service area (Devils Lake, Grafton, Mayville, Northwood, Larimore and Grand Forks, ND; Crookston, Thief River Falls, Warren, Roseau, Bemidji, Warroad and East Grand Forks, for example) and the Regional Airport Authority need to begin working together closely to establish an air service marketing and development plan that will benefit the entire region. It is my sincere hope that we can begin this cooperative effort in the near future.

Mesaba Aviation, Inc. has response

by Douglas P. Fulton
Director of Marketing And Public Relations
Mesaba Aviation, Inc.

In general, Mr. Selig's call for regional support for airport use is well founded. Passengers do need to support the local airline service or risk losing some or all of it. This is particularly true at smaller regional airports such as Thief River Falls where fewer passengers make it even more difficult for airlines to provide a profitable service.

Although it appears that Mr. Selig is appealing for broad regional support at Grand Forks, he does acknowledge both Thief River Falls and Bemidji (second paragraph) as air service destinations which require the same type of support as Grand Forks in order to maintain service levels. We believe that passengers in Thief River Falls should also compare service and fare issues at their own airport before diving southwest to Grand Forks. Airline service is a driving economic factor in any community.

Of course, fares do and will continue to be an important factor in someone's decision to fly locally. In most cases, Thief River Falls' connecting fares are competitive with those in Grand Forks. In recent months, certain promotional fares and local fares have been less expensive at Grand Forks, a reality which is frequently the case at airports which have a larger number of seats because of market size.

Mesaba's load factor at Thief River Falls has fallen slightly over the past six months compared to previous years. In response to that, we have refined our schedule to include two daily round-trips a day. We will continue to monitor our passenger demand and increase our capacity as that demand increases. We do expect that passenger enplanements will increase in 1994.

In conclusion, Mesaba is committed to providing Thief River Falls with continued quality airline services. We have a loyal staff which resides locally. We have enjoyed 10 years of profitable service in the business community. And finally, we have a profound respect and affection for the people and community of Thief River Falls.

Breathe-Free Plan to Quit Smoking

The Thief River Falls Seventh-Day Adventist church, in conjunction with Northwest Medical Center and the Dakota clinic in Thief River Falls, is pleased to offer smokers who want to quit the opportunity to do so and achieve a goal of being smoke free in order to breathe free.

The program will begin Tuesday, January 11, at the basement meeting room of Northwest Medical Center. There will be a registration fee of $15 to cover expenses. Preregistration is required by calling Gail Holland at 681-4240 to guarantee a place at the sessions.

The program presents motivation and guidance in a nonjudgmental manner to those who wish to make a commitment to quit smoking. Meetings will use videos, demonstrations, and small group discussions to provide visual and verbal evidence in favor of a smoke-free lifestyle.

The Breathe-Free program has been in existence since 1960, and has helped more than 14 million people to breathe free. Initially known as the five-day plan, it has been updated and upgraded to the current program, called Breathe-Free.

The goal of the program is to help people find the means to quit smoking through various methods of lifestyle modification, values clarification, modelling, visualization, affirmation, positive thinking and rewards. The program has been developed by the medical arm of the Seventh-day Adventist church.

SPEAKING OF
Sherry LaCoursiere

. . . Whether Too Much Weather is Hazardous

When my son's girlfriend from Spokane, Washington, visited last fall I realized I have a problem and a very strange habit. I had never noticed it before, but all I seemed to talk about was the weather.

Oh, it wasn't that I didn't know what to say to her or couldn't think of other things to talk to her about. It was just that every time we started to talk I got around to talking about the weather.

Does it have something to do with living in northwestern Minnesota? Does it have something to do with my getting old so that all I can think about is whether it is hot or cold or rainy or windy and how that will affect my poor, old body? Does it have something to do with my brain that I can't think of anything more interesting than the weather?

Now that I have noticed how much I talk about the weather, I can't seem to stop doing it. Now that winter has set in, it has gotten even worse because I talk about whether or not it is going to snow, whether or not the wind is going to blow, whether or not we will have a combination of the two and a blizzard, and whether or not the temperatures are going to plummet to below zero records. Now the past few days, since the temperatures have dropped so low that even Eskimos would freeze, it is really bad.

I am constantly looking outside to see what the weather is like. If I wake in the middle of the night, I usually check outside to see what is happening out there. If I am washing dishes at the kitchen sink, I am peeking outside to see what is going on.

Not only do I seem to talk about the weather all of the time, but I must watch the weather on television or I am all discombobulated. If I don't find out what the weather person thinks will happen tomorrow, I feel like I am at loose ends. I don't know whether I should dress warmly or not, or whether I should plug in my car or not, or even whether I need to plan extra time to warm up the car in the morning.

Watching the weather so closely also has drawbacks for my children. Besides it being all I can talk about, I am also beginning to worry about where they are going and what they are doing in bad weather. In fact, on Christmas Eve night, I even made one of my children call me after they got home - because I was worried that it was blowing too hard when they left.

This behavior is really bad. What with five children, it will be terrible if they all have to report in to me whenever they leave town. I must try to stop all of this weather watching.

However, I am not going to stop right now. Who can help but keep an eye on the weather with temperatures like we are having? I am constantly reminded of the weather.

How can I help but think and talk about the weather when this weather we are having is so cold that every time I put the dog out, my fingers freeze to the little hook on her chain. She hates to go out. Sometimes she tries to turn right around and come back into the house without doing what she wanted to go out to do. After even just a minute or two outside, she comes in walking on three feet because she is so cold. I think, if she could, she would walk on only two of her feet just to keep them off the frozen ground.

How can I help but think and talk of the weather when I open the door to let her out, frigid air rushes into the house in billows, like smoke, and the little window on the outside door immediately gets coated with a thick layer of ice. When I glance out of the other windows I see frosty leaf designs instead of window panes.

How can I help but think and talk of the weather when I go outside, I see smoke rising from chimneys and car exhausts in white clouds all over town. My own breath seems to be coming out in a frosty cloud. The snow crunches and cracks as I walk through it, and any little wind cuts through my warm winter clothing like a knife.

How can I help but think and talk of the weather when my car groans and moans as I try to start it in the morning, even though it has been plugged in. As I am driving down the street, it feels as though I have square tires, bumping along, road squeaking underneath.

No, this is not the time for me to quit thinking and talking about the weather. After all, if I quit now in the middle of winter, I would probably be the only person in town who wasn't talking about it.

Santa Claus stopped by the LEC to give out gifts Thursday afternoon

Santa Claus stopped by the Law Enforcement Center in Thief River Falls Thursday and delivered hundreds of presents to youngsters from throughout the area. Almost 300 children received presents because of the generosity of people participating in the Angel Tree programs at Pamida and K-Mart in Thief River Falls. A spokesperson for the Pennington County Sheriff's department said they also received donations from private individuals and the River Road Casino.

Names did not appear on the Christmas tree angels, but each angel represented a child in the community who might not otherwise receive a Christmas gift this year. Actual names were obtained through Social Services, Sheriff's department, Violence Intervention Project and Crossroads.

THANK YOU

The Goodridge School district #561 would like to THANK the following presenters, businesses, and organizations for being a special part of American Education Week and our "Global Fair."

Flood response '800' number

U.S. Department of Agriculture has established a toll-free flood response center number (1-800-880-4183) for agricultural producers impacted by floods in the Midwest.

Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy, who was named coordinator of long-term flood recovery efforts by President Clinton, said he wants to be sure that all available information about assistance programs gets to those who need it in the fastest, most efficient way possible.

People in nine Midwest states can call the number to find out what flood-related agricultural assistance is available and where they can get it. U.S. Department of Agriculture program specialists will staff the number from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays (except holidays).

The specialists will answer questions or refer callers to other sources of information. At other times, questions may be left on an answering machine and someone from the response center will call back.

States involved in the midwest center are Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Wolf predation forum slated

In response to the continuing unrest of rural Minnesota livestock producers, the Minnesota extension service has arranged a wolf predation forum to be held Thursday, January 6, from 1 to 3:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn conference room on the west edge of Bemidji.

Eastern timber wolves are classified by the U.S. Department of Interior as an endangered species and as such are afforded official protection. Humans convicted of killing eastern timber wolves are subject to severe fines and/or imprisonment.

Since wolves occasionally kill and feed on domestic livestock, and livestock producers are prevented by law from destroying the wolves, farmers often feel they are being forced to bear more than their share of expense in the restoration of timber wolf populations.

Government payment for livestock losses to timber wolves is restricted to $400 and the claims process is slow and complicated.

Present at the forum will be a number of federal and state agency officials and lawmakers who will listen and respond to public comment. The forum is open to all persons interested.

Kading named to dean's list

Brian Kading, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Kading of St. Hilaire, has been named to the dean's list for the fall quarter at Concordia College in St. Paul. Students named to the list are recognized for superior academic performance with a grade point average of 3.5 or above.

Mary Jacobson of Brooks, a member of the Commercial Floriculture Crops class at the University of Minnesota—Crookston, was one of the students who began preparing for Christmas several months ago by working with the poinsettia crop at UMC. This year's crop was considered superior due to the concern shown for the plants by the students, according to Roger Wagner, class instructor.

Brooks resident helps to produce poinsettia crop

Mary Jacobson of Brooks is a member of the Commercial Floriculture Crops class at the University of Minnesota—Crookston which began preparing for the Christmas season three months ago.

Jacobson has been working with the poinsettia crop since the beginning of the fall quarter. Rooted cuttings from a specialized propagator arrive each August or early September and are potted by the students. The plants need to be shaded and misted frequently until well-rooted.

Second phase in production starts in early October when the well-rooted plants have to be coaxed into bloom. Students work in teams of two to cover the plants at 4 p.m. and uncover them at 8 a.m. each day, including weekends.

Poinsettias will form colored bracts only if the length of day and night are just right, according to Roger Wagner, associate professor of horticulture in the agricultural management division and class instructor. By mid-December the plants are ready for sale.

"The poinsettia really doesn't have a bloom like a lily," Wagner said. "Instead, the colorful red or white petals are modified leaves known as bracts. The real blooms are those small yellowish clusters in the center."

Wagner said this year's superior crop was due to the concern shown for the plants by the students.

Commercial Floriculture Crops class is the winter component of the quarterly production sequence for horticulture students. UMC's horticulture program acquaints students with producing plants for a specific date, a very necessary skill for employment in a greenhouse or garden center operation. Timing is very important.

As class members think about timing, they realize that it is time to move on to the Easter season. While the poinsettia plants are still in the hoop house, they begin the process of forcing Easter lilies.

Although Wagner is the instructor, the students are required to do all the work. He tells them what to do and explains how to do it, but he often lets problems develop to see how the students handle them. He gets to know each student as an individual and is thus able to recommend graduates of the program to future employers.

For more information on UMC's horticulture program, contact the horticulture department at 281-8117.

ACTIVITIES

Thank You Notes

Christmas is over and now is the time to teach your child about the polite practice of thank you notes.

Thank you notes do not have to be long or painful. A good idea is to take a Polaroid picture of your child with the gift he or she received and send it to the person who gave the gift with a short "thanks." Another way to say "thanks" is to encourage your child to draw a picture and send it with a short note of appreciation.

Thank you notes are just one way to extend the holiday season. Let your child enjoy it, too.

Goffstein, M. B. Our Snowman. Share the warmth, dynamics and humor of a very real family the morning after the first big blizzard of the year.

VIDEO VARIETY

The Snowman. This delightful animation weaves a spell of enchantment as a little boy's snowman comes to life and escorts him on a fantasy dream visit to the North Pole.

PARENTING TIPS

Gentle Touching of Valuable Objects

One of the best ways to teach a young child the act of gentle touching is to lift him or her up to high objects. You then give your child a chance to touch something that would be out of reach, and at the same time you control the situation. You say "Just touch" as you lift the child upward. If the child grabs for the object or seems about to act wildly, you simply bring the child back down. By moving the child closer to the object when he or she touches it gently and moving him or her farther away when he or she does not, you are telling your child what is appropriate.

Even if you have removed breakable figurines from your child's level of your home, your child will find these objects somewhere else: on the shelf of a store, or on the coffee table at the home of a relative. You may wish to teach your child how to hold a valuable object for a few seconds and then to put it down. For many children, this procedure will satisfy curiosity about this "forbidden" object and thus he or she will leave it alone when you are not there to supervise.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Use words and actions to show your child what you mean by "touch gently." There are many opportunities when you can practice this: such as with people and animals as well as with precious objects.

. . . Whether Too Much Weather is Hazardous

When my son's girlfriend from Spokane, Washington, visited last fall I realized I have a problem and a very strange habit. I had never noticed it before, but all I seemed to talk about was the weather.

Oh, it wasn't that I didn't know what to say to her or couldn't think of other things to talk to her about. It was just that every time we started to talk I got around to talking about the weather.

Does it have something to do with living in northwestern Minnesota? Does it have something to do with my getting old so that all I can think about is whether it is hot or cold or rainy or windy and how that will affect my poor, old body? Does it have something to do with my brain that I can't think of anything more interesting than the weather?

Now that I have noticed how much I talk about the weather, I can't seem to stop doing it. Now that winter has set in, it has gotten even worse because I talk about whether or not it is going to snow, whether or not the wind is going to blow, whether or not we will have a combination of the two and a blizzard, and whether or not the temperatures are going to plummet to below zero records. Now the past few days, since the temperatures have dropped so low that even Eskimos would freeze, it is really bad.

I am constantly looking outside to see what the weather is like. If I wake in the middle of the night, I usually check outside to see what is happening out there. If I am washing dishes at the kitchen sink, I am peeking outside to see what is going on.

Not only do I seem to talk about the weather all of the time, but I must watch the weather on television or I am all discombobulated. If I don't find out what the weather person thinks will happen tomorrow, I feel like I am at loose ends. I don't know whether I should dress warmly or not, or whether I should plug in my car or not, or even whether I need to plan extra time to warm up the car in the morning.

Watching the weather so closely also has drawbacks for my children. Besides it being all I can talk about, I am also beginning to worry about where they are going and what they are doing in bad weather. In fact, on Christmas Eve night, I even made one of my children call me after they got home - because I was worried that it was blowing too hard when they left.

This behavior is really bad. What with five children, it will be terrible if they all have to report in to me whenever they leave town. I must try to stop all of this weather watching.

However, I am not going to stop right now. Who can help but keep an eye on the weather with temperatures like we are having? I am constantly reminded of the weather.

How can I help but think and talk about the weather when this weather we are having is so cold that every time I put the dog out, my fingers freeze to the little hook on her chain. She hates to go out. Sometimes she tries to turn right around and come back into the house without doing what she wanted to go out to do. After even just a minute or two outside, she comes in walking on three feet because she is so cold. I think, if she could, she would walk on only two of her feet just to keep them off the frozen ground.

How can I help but think and talk of the weather when I open the door to let her out, frigid air rushes into the house in billows, like smoke, and the little window on the outside door immediately gets coated with a thick layer of ice. When I glance out of the other windows I see frosty leaf designs instead of window panes.

How can I help but think and talk of the weather when I go outside, I see smoke rising from chimneys and car exhausts in white clouds all over town. My own breath seems to be coming out in a frosty cloud. The snow crunches and cracks as I walk through it, and any little wind cuts through my warm winter clothing like a knife.

How can I help but think and talk of the weather when my car groans and moans as I try to start it in the morning, even though it has been plugged in. As I am driving down the street, it feels as though I have square tires, bumping along, road squeaking underneath.

No, this is not the time for me to quit thinking and talking about the weather. After all, if I quit now in the middle of winter, I would probably be the only person in town who wasn't talking about it.

Santa Claus stopped by the Law Enforcement Center in Thief River Falls Thursday and delivered hundreds of presents to youngsters from throughout the area. Almost 300 children received presents because of the generosity of people participating in the Angel Tree programs at Pamida and K-Mart in Thief River Falls. A spokesperson for the Pennington County Sheriff's department said they also received donations from private individuals and the River Road Casino.

Names did not appear on the Christmas tree angels, but each angel represented a child in the community who might not otherwise receive a Christmas gift this year. Actual names were obtained through Social Services, Sheriff's department, Violence Intervention Project and Crossroads.

Brooks resident helps to produce poinsettia crop

Mary Jacobson of Brooks is a member of the Commercial Floriculture Crops class at the University of Minnesota—Crookston which began preparing for the Christmas season three months ago.

Jacobson has been working with the poinsettia crop since the beginning of the fall quarter. Rooted cuttings from a specialized propagator arrive each August or early September and are potted by the students. The plants need to be shaded and misted frequently until well-rooted.

Second phase in production starts in early October when the well-rooted plants have to be coaxed into bloom. Students work in teams of two to cover the plants at 4 p.m. and uncover them at 8 a.m. each day, including weekends.

Poinsettias will form colored bracts only if the length of day and night are just right, according to Roger Wagner, associate professor of horticulture in the agricultural management division and class instructor. By mid-December the plants are ready for sale.

"The poinsettia really doesn't have a bloom like a lily," Wagner said. "Instead, the colorful red or white petals are modified leaves known as bracts. The real blooms are those small yellowish clusters in the center."

Wagner said this year's superior crop was due to the concern shown for the plants by the students.

Commercial Floriculture Crops class is the winter component of the quarterly production sequence for horticulture students. UMC's horticulture program acquaints students with producing plants for a specific date, a very necessary skill for employment in a greenhouse or garden center operation. Timing is very important.

As class members think about timing, they realize that it is time to move on to the Easter season. While the poinsettia plants are still in the hoop house, they begin the process of forcing Easter lilies.

Although Wagner is the instructor, the students are required to do all the work. He tells them what to do and explains how to do it, but he often lets problems develop to see how the students handle them. He gets to know each student as an individual and is thus able to recommend graduates of the program to future employers.

For more information on UMC's horticulture program, contact the horticulture department at 281-8117.

ACTIVITIES

Thank You Notes

Christmas is over and now is the time to teach your child about the polite practice of thank you notes.

Thank you notes do not have to be long or painful. A good idea is to take a Polaroid picture of your child with the gift he or she received and send it to the person who gave the gift with a short "thanks." Another way to say "thanks" is to encourage your child to draw a picture and send it with a short note of appreciation.

Thank you notes are just one way to extend the holiday season. Let your child enjoy it, too.

One of the best ways to teach a young child the act of gentle touching is to lift him or her up to high objects. You then give your child a chance to touch something that would be out of reach, and at the same time you control the situation. You say "Just touch" as you lift the child upward. If the child grabs for the object or seems about to act wildly, you simply bring the child back down. By moving the child closer to the object when he or she touches it gently and moving him or her farther away when he or she does not, you are telling your child what is appropriate.

Even if you have removed breakable figurines from your child's level of your home, your child will find these objects somewhere else: on the shelf of a store, or on the coffee table at the home of a relative. You may wish to teach your child how to hold a valuable object for a few seconds and then to put it down. For many children, this procedure will satisfy curiosity about this "forbidden" object and thus he or she will leave it alone when you are not there to supervise.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Use words and actions to show your child what you mean by "touch gently." There are many opportunities when you can practice this: such as with people and animals as well as with precious objects.

Name selected for higher ed. unit

Minnesota State Colleges and Universities is the name selected for the collective group of 62 higher education institutions which will come into existence in Minnesota on July 1, 1995.

The new higher education system will include seven state universities, 21 community college campuses (including Northland in Thief River Falls) and 34 technical college campuses (including the Thief River Falls campus of Northwest Technical College). The name was approved Tuesday by the Higher Education Board, which has been formed and is operating to effect the merger.

Colleges and universities within the system will keep their individual names, but the three present governing boards for state universities, community colleges and technical colleges will cease to exist on July 1, 1995.

"We wanted a simple, straightforward name for our family of institutions," explained Carole Vennerstrom of Willmar, who chairs the Higher Education Board.

Chancellor Jay Noren said the name "describes us and provides an identity that will help Minnesotans recognize the new higher education system."

In other action, the Higher Education Board approved five reports to be submitted to the Legislature. They deal with a unified budget format for the new system, a recommendation for how legal services will be provided, transfer of technical college property to the HEB, technical college labor issues and an administrative structure for the HEB central office.

One report recommends that technical college properties be transferred to the HEB without compensation to local school boards. Similar transfers occurred when the Minnesota Community College System was created in 1964 and when technical colleges were organized under regional boards several years ago.

Name selected for higher ed. unit

Minnesota State Colleges and Universities is the name selected for the collective group of 62 higher education institutions which will come into existence in Minnesota on July 1, 1995.

The new higher education system will include seven state universities, 21 community college campuses (including Northland in Thief River Falls) and 34 technical college campuses (including the Thief River Falls campus of Northwest Technical College). The name was approved Tuesday by the Higher Education Board, which has been formed and is operating to effect the merger.

Colleges and universities within the system will keep their individual names, but the three present governing boards for state universities, community colleges and technical colleges will cease to exist on July 1, 1995.

"We wanted a simple, straightforward name for our family of institutions," explained Carole Vennerstrom of Willmar, who chairs the Higher Education Board.

Chancellor Jay Noren said the name "describes us and provides an identity that will help Minnesotans recognize the new higher education system."

In other action, the Higher Education Board approved five reports to be submitted to the Legislature. They deal with a unified budget format for the new system, a recommendation for how legal services will be provided, transfer of technical college property to the HEB, technical college labor issues and an administrative structure for the HEB central office.

One report recommends that technical college properties be transferred to the HEB without compensation to local school boards. Similar transfers occurred when the Minnesota Community College System was created in 1964 and when technical colleges were organized under regional boards several years ago.

His father died January 3, 1941 and Sidney Lieberman became manager of the store. He was called to serve in the United States Army in World War II and decided to close the business at that time.

December 16, 1944, he was united in marriage to Edna [illegible] in Riverside, CA. His service tour of duty included Panama and the Philippines. At the end of the war he and his wife returned to Thief River Falls for a short time, then moved to Minot, ND, where he worked in a clothing store.

After living in Minot for three years, he returned to Thief River Falls to open Lieberman's, a clothing store for men, in the Lieberman building. He sold the business in Thief River Falls in 1966 and the family moved to San Diego where he was employed at the Walter Scott department store, where he worked until his retirement. He received many awards during his employment there.

Sidney Lieberman is survived by two daughters, Charlene (Mrs. Larry) Herr and Nancy Lieberman, a son, Marc, and a grandson, Brian, all of San Diego. He is also survived by a sister, Lenore, in Thief River Falls.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Edna, who died November 11, 1989.

A memorial service was held for Sidney Lieberman December 18 on the shore of the Pacific ocean. His and his family's continual interest in that vast body of water with its beauty and power prompted the location for the rites.

GIVE UP YOUR KEYS... NOT YOUR LIFE

For some people, any amount of alcohol may be too much. For most people, three drinks means you are legally impaired.

If you are planning a party over the holidays the following suggestions can assure a SAFE as well as a fun-filled party:

1) Recruit several guests to join you as designated drivers - those who don't drink alcohol - to provide rides for those who have been drinking.

2) If a sober driver is not available, call a cab, or let the guests who have been drinking stay overnight.

3) It's not hospitable to force drinks on your guests. Have soft drinks, coffee or tea readily available. Provide jiggers to measure the alcohol content of mixed drinks.

4) Put away alcoholic beverages well before the party ends, but continue to offer food and non-alcoholic drinks.

5) Serve protein-rich and starchy foods, which help to slow down the body's rate of alcohol absorption.

6) Play party games and engage guests in conversation to slow down their drinking rates.

Our wish for you is a SAFE and enjoyable holiday. If you drink, don't drive. Give up your keys, not your life.

Cub Scouts of Pack 59 in Thief River Falls recently presented 45 pairs of mittens to the Seventh-day Adventist community service department through the mitten tree at Jubilee Foods in Thief River Falls. Beau Bergner (left) and Nick Mattila presented the mittens to Mae Howes, center director. At right is Chad Larson, owner-manager of Jubilee Foods, who said the mitten tree drew many favorable comments and will be provided again next year.

Anthony Diaz, a member of the Northland Community College Student Senate, is shown with some of the food collected by the student group for the Thief River Falls area food shelf. Dances sponsored by the student senate are usually free, but this year the senate required students attending to bring a food item or pay a minimal admission fee. Three large boxes of canned goods were delivered to the food shelf by the senate in time for the holidays.

IMPRESSIONS

Well, it waited. What, you might say, waited?? The deep freeze waited.

The deep freeze that we have sometime every winter if we live in Northwest Minnesota waited until after the Christmas celebration was almost over. There have been winters when the deep freeze decided to descend on us for the weeks preceding the holiday. Those winters find us doing last minute shopping for just about everything as we don't want to brave the cold just to shop!! Those winters when the deep freeze comes before Christmas find the shopkeepers wondering if we will ever decide to descend on their shops for our gift purchasing.

Those winters find us looking longingly at the more temperate places in our nation or world — maybe even considering a deep freeze escape to one of those more temperate locales. The winters the deep freeze descends before Christmas will find us suffering from calls from relatives living in those more temperate places tempting us to leave our abode — if only while the deep freeze lasts.

But, this winter, the deep freeze descended during the Christmas weekend. Christmas morning was the time that we awakened to the weather report of -23!!! How lovely it was to turn over and snuggle under the covers for a bit longer!

But, we've had a deep freeze now. It has lasted long enough. So far, it hasn't set any records here that I know of, but it has been cold enough now for the last few days. This deep freeze doesn't need to stay around any longer. We have befriended it well. We have plugged in our cars, and even kept them running. We have actually worn caps — with ear flaps. We have driven with square tires. We have had enough of ripple heat. We have had enough of cold that settles into the house, in spite of thick walls and good heat. The deep freeze can go. We've done our part and stayed to welcome it.

But, when the deep freeze goes, will we be tempted to dream of spring? If the temperatures are a bit kinder to us and our cars and our heating bills, will we think that spring is just around the corner? Our mail is showing signs of spring, as even before the deep freeze arrived, the seed catalogs began to arrive. Surely spring cannot be too far away??

But wait, we forget our place in this world. We do not live in a temperate climate. We live in the climate where snow and snowmobiles reign. We live in the climate where nothing is cancelled for a little cold. We live in the climate where shorts are the proper attire for the young as soon as the thermometer reaches +30. We live in a climate where the fog is ice. We live in a climate where winter lasts for months and spring may just be a dream.

Our friends and relatives who live in other, more temperate climates, may think we are crazy to live where the deep freeze can become a way of life, if only for a while. But, they have noticed the longevity of the people who have lived here all their lives. Is a long-life the result of surviving the climate in which we live?

How long this deep freeze will last, none of us can tell. When spring will come, none of us can tell. We live, day by day, deep freeze or spring breeze. What does matter in our world here in Northwest Minnesota has nothing to do with the weather. The weather simply makes our life interesting and challenging and sometimes isolating and sometimes a bit lonely. The things that matter here are the things that matter everywhere.

Everywhere it is important to live each day expectantly and with the best attitude you can muster for that day. Everywhere it is important to live each day with a bit of hope — yes, spring might even come to us. Everywhere it is important to live each day with kindness toward yourself and toward others. Everywhere it is important to live each day with love.

Life in Northwest Minnesota may, for a moment, be cold. But, life in Northwest Minnesota goes on — even as life does in the rest of the world in which we live. We must only live our lives in the best way we know how.

in basement areas. Health officials estimate that radon is responsible for 16,000 cases of lung cancer every year in the United States, the second leading cause of lung cancer after smoking.

In developing its radon map, EPA looked at a number of factors that might give an indication of the "radon potential" for a given area. Those included radon testing data, geology and soil characteristics and whether homes in the area typically have basements. EPA also took into account the results of a federal study, done during the seventies, which attempted to assess the likelihood of finding uranium in different parts of the country.

The new radon map is very consistent with the results of past radon testing efforts in Minnesota, according to MDH officials.

"The data we have suggests that EPA has done a good job of assessing the radon potential in different parts of the country," Commissioner O'Brien said. "Here in Minnesota, about one home in three exceeds the EPA guideline for radon exposure."

People who want more information about radon—or about getting their homes tested—can call MDH toll-free at 1-800-798-9050.

Tell family if willing to donate organs

To help create an awareness about the organ donor shortage, LifeSource is encouraging families to make a New Year's resolution this year to talk with their loved ones about organ donation.

More than 32,000 Americans are currently on a national waiting list hoping to receive a life-saving organ transplant. About 900 of those people live within Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota. Unfortunately, the number of people waiting for transplants far exceeds the organs available and, in fact, seven people die each day while waiting.

One reason for the organ donor shortage is the fact that people fail to tell their families or loved ones their decision about donation. When the time comes to make a decision about organ donation, the family must give written permission for the donation.

According to a 1993 Gallup Poll, 85 per cent of Americans support organ donation. However, 79 per cent mistakenly believe that it is necessary to note their wishes on their driver's license or carry a signed donor card.

"A driver's license or a donor card are only indications of your wishes and are non-binding documents," explains Susan Gunderson, executive director of LifeSource. "Many people don't realize that their next of kin makes the final decision about organ donation for them. That's why it's so important that individuals tell their family their decision. The only way your loved ones will know your wishes is if you tell them."

LifeSource is the nonprofit organization, selected by the federal government, to manage the recovery of organs for transplantation in the Upper Midwest. For a brochure about organ donation call LifeSource at (612) 623-4757 or toll-free 1-800-247-4273.

drainage and placing of half a dozen field ditch outlet structures which drop field drainage water into deeper drainage ditches with minimal outlet erosion. One livestock watering pond has also been dug.

The dairy cattle are fed alfalfa and second cutting reed canary grass hay, supplemented by grain and concentrate mixed, rolled and delivered by the Oklee Farmers Coop Elevator Association. Their Grade A milk is sold through the Goodridge Cooperative Creamery Association.

The Dahlens are also on a monthly herd health program with the Clearwater Veterinary Service in Gonvick which provides inspection, vaccination and other needed services.

The farm is one previously operated by Kelly and David's father Erling. Kelly had farmed with him for a number of years until Erling's death in 1984, and in 1986 he purchased the two quarter sections (320 acres) from his mother. He has previously bought 160 acres from a neighbor in 1980 and in 1990 purchased another 160 acres with his brother David. They also rent 160 acres.

Off the reservation land in a normal year—if there ever is a normal year in this area—they raise about 300 acres of small grain, 50 acres of sunflowers, 50 acres of alfalfa hay and 25 to 30 acres of corn on the mineral soils. The remainder of the land is used for pasture.

Kelly explained that on the Red Lake Reservation each member of the band is entitled to a lifetime lease on up to 250 acres of land, and he and David were able to get leases for their combined 500 acres virtually across the reservation line from the home farm.

The family has membership in the Ekelund Lutheran Church near the farm where Brenda teaches Sunday School. She is also a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary in Trail.

Kelly has been treasurer of Star township for about 10 years. His primary recreational retreat is an annual deer hunting outing with a party that hunts in the Wannaska area. And for family fun there is snowmobiling when the pace of spring, summer and fall farming activity slows to a rush.

This year's selection area for the Outstanding Cooperator award included Goodridge, Reiner, Highlanding, Star, Hickory, Deer Park and Mayfield townships.

The Dahlens received an award from "The Farmer" magazine while guests at the annual convention of the Minnesota Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts in December. They will also be honored at the annual meeting of the Pennington Soil and Water Conservation District in Thief River Falls this spring.

Thief River Falls forward Jeff Twomey (11) tipped a goal mouth feed from teammate Tim Barry (10) past Minneapolis Roosevelt goalie Mike Grover to finish off a 2-on-0 rush for the Prowlers in the first period of Monday's high school hockey game at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center. The Prowlers skated past the Teddies 11-0 in the first round of the Thief River Falls/Crookston Christmas Tournament.

Crookston, TRF win hockey games

Pirates, Prowlers sweep Twin Cities teams in tournament openers

Heading into the first day of the Thief River Falls/Crookston Christmas Tournament, the better records belonged to Twin Cities visitors Minneapolis Roosevelt and Benilde-St. Margaret's. But results on the ice indicate Crookston and Thief River Falls had the better teams.

The 2-3 Pirates handled 3-3 Benilde-St. Margaret's 5-1 in the Monday doubleheader opener at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center, and the 2-5 Prowlers blew out 5-2 Minneapolis Roosevelt 11-0 in the nightcap.

Rest of the three-day round robin high school hockey tournament schedule shifted to Crookston.

TRF/Crookston Tournament

■ Monday, Dec. 27 - (at TRF) Crookston 5, Benilde-St. Margaret's 1; Thief River Falls 11, Minneapolis Roosevelt 0.

■ Tuesday, Dec. 28 - (at Crookston) Thief River Falls vs. Benilde-St. Margaret's, 3:45 p.m.; Crookston vs. Minneapolis Roosevelt, 6 p.m.

■ Wednesday, Dec. 29 - (at Crookston) Benilde-St. Margaret's vs. Minneapolis Roosevelt, 1 p.m.; Crookston vs. Thief River Falls, 6 p.m.

Crookston	5
Benilde-St. Margaret's	1

Bryan Widman scored the first and last Crookston goals as the Pirates beat Benilde-St. Margaret's 5-1.

Widman gave Crookston a 1-0 first period lead and teammate Justin Paul made it 2-0 early in the second period before the Red Knights' Johnny Grant cut the gap in half at 6:31.

However, two minutes later Chris Chandler rebuilt the two-goal Crookston edge and Eric Wikoff made it 4-1 at 13:08.

Widman picked up his second goal late in the third period to ice it.

Scoring

First period - Crookston, Bryan Widman (Trent Habstritt), 2:56.

Second period - Crookston, Justin Paul (Marco Schisanb), 3:41; B-SM, Johnny Grant (un.), 6:31; Crookston, Chris Chandler (Ben Parkin-Paul), 8:31; Crookston, Eric Wikoff (Habstritt), 13:08.

Third period - Crookston, Widman (Chris Peterson), 12:06.

Goalie Saves

Crookston - Kevin Capistran 5-9-1–15; B-SM - Mark Chamernick 8-10-9-27.

Thief River Falls	11
Minneapolis Roosevelt	0

The Teddies found that even a struggling Section 8A team is a formidable foe, compared to some of their conquests in the Minneapolis City Conference.

Linemates Tim Barry and Jeff Twomey led the Thief River Falls assault on Roosevelt goalies Mike Grover and Ted Miller. Barry had a 5-point night with 2 goals and 3 assists, while Twomey had a 4-point outing with a 3-goal hat trick and an assist. Add a goal and an assist by Marc Seaverson, you have an 11-point game for the Prowlers' top line.

But there were lots of other numbers on the Thief River Falls score sheet, including 3 assists for both Paul Gonsorowski and Nick Chiodo, along with a goal and 2 assists for Brent Kleinvachter.

Keith Anderson, Chad Hanson, Brian Howe, and Steve Rambeck all scored a goal, while Kaine Martell contributed 2 assists.

Thief River Falls defensemen wound up collecting 10 points in the rout (2 goals, 8 assists), which included third period running time.

Hanson opened the scoring at 3:52 of the third period when he directed a point-blank feed under Grover.

Barry was set up as a screen in front of the net when he deflected Kleinvachter's shot from the point past Grover at 4:33, and he scored again at 5:51 when his shot rolled under the goalie.

Twomey tipped a neat 2-on-0 goal mouth pass at 7:44 and 47 seconds later swatted a loose puck past Grover for a 5-0 spread with just 8:31 elapsed.

Kleinvachter closed out the first period scoring by catching the far corner with a long slap shot at 12:32.

Miller succeeded Grover in the Teddies' net for the start of the second period. He came up with 17 saves that period, but also saw the spread increase to 9-0.

First two goals against Miller came on Thief River Falls power plays, including a deflection by Howe at 1:51 and an open-net rebound for Twomey on during a 4-on-3 skater edge at 10:49.

A quick nine seconds later Rambeck turned a nice feed in front from Aaron Ehrenstrom into a tip-in goal while both teams skated a man short.

Seaverson was in alone at 6:20 of the third period for a double-digit Thief River Falls scoreboard night, and 32 seconds later Anderson made it 11-0.

Scoring

First period - TRF, Chad Hanson (Nick Chiodo-Keith Anderson), 3:52; TRF, Tim Barry (Brent Kleinvachter-Paul Gonsorowski), 4:33; TRF, Barry (Gonsorowski), 5:51; TRF, Jeff Twomey (Barry-Marc Seaverson), 7:44; TRF, Twomey (Barry-Kaine Martell), 8:31; TRF, Kleinvachter (un.), 12:32.

Second period - TRF, Brian Howe (Kleinvachter-Chiodo), 1:51; TRF, Twomey (Martell-Joby Looker), 10:49; TRF, Steve Rambeck (Aaron Ehrenstrom-Gonsorowski), 10:58.

Third period - TRF, Seaverson (Barry-Twomey), 6:20; TRF, Anderson (Chiodo), 6:52.

TRF - Chanc Keefe 5-6-2–16; Roosevelt - Mike Grover 12-x-x, Ted Miller x-17-7, Roosevelt game total 36.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

Sara Tyler
Lincoln High School

I love vacations from school. Ever since I was little, I loved getting-off-for-Christmas-vacation. The two weeks off was so refreshing.

I don't remember what I have done on all my Christmas vacations. I know I slept in a lot. I enjoy sleeping in, and Christmas vacation is a wonderful excuse to enjoy this habit every day. When I was very young, I spent most of the time at home. After the actual Christmas celebrations, I was happy sitting around the house playing with my new toys. When I got older, I spent most of my time with my friends. We went skating, sledding, and spent time just enjoying being off from school.

As I get a little older, I still enjoy Christmas vacation. It is a slight release of pressure. This year I have committed myself to filling out my senior pictures and doing paperwork for college. Knowing I have to accomplish something takes a little joy away from the experience, but I am still enjoying having time off from school. It gives me a little less to worry about. I have a week-and-a-half without any assignments or pressure to wake up for early bird class at seven-thirty.

This vacation I have more things to accomplish than usual, but I am spending less time at home. This is the first year I remember spending so much time away. Usually, we spend Christmas with relatives, and th rest of vacation is our own. So, spending six days without my friends will be a little strange to me. I'm not complaining, I'm glad we're going to visit my sister. It is just a different way of looking at Christmas vacation.

One thing I've always enjoyed about Christmas is getting presents. I have gotten wonderful presents over the years that have become treasures in my heart. This year I am more interested in watching other people open their presents from me. I don't know if this change means I am growing up, or if I just bought really good presents this year. I'm still going to enjoy my presents. I haven't become completely selfless, but I have become more aware that the true meaning of Christmas has nothing to do with receiving presents. It is about peace, love, and the birth of Jesus Christ.

My Christmas present to everyone who reads this, is a wish for you to keep Christmas in your hearts all year long.

Grand funds available for buses, vans

Approximately $1 Million in federal grant funds are available from the Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn/DOT) for assistance in purchasing buses and vans equipped to transport elderly persons and people with disabilities, according to James N. Denn, commissioner of the department.

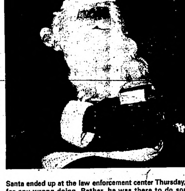
"The 1991 federal legislation extended grant eligibility to public bodies approved by Mn/DOT to coordinate transit services for elderly and disabled persons and to public bodies which certify to Mn/DOT that no non-profit corporations or associations are readily available in an area to provide transit services for elderly and disabled persons," Denn said.

Private non-profit organizations serving elderly and disabled persons are also eligible to apply for this federal assistance grant funding.

The grant funds will provide 80 per cent of the cost of the vehicles and the applicant must provide the remaining 20 per cent, as well as funding for all operating expenses.

Applications are available from Mn/DOT. The first required application deadline is Jan. 21, 1994 and the final deadline, submittal of the completed application form and required attachments to Mn/DOT and the appropriate planning organization(s), is Feb. 18, 1994.

For further information and application assistance, contact Dennis McMann, Office of Transit, Room 815 Transportation Building, 395 John Ireland Boulevard, St. Paul, MN 55155 or phone (612) 297-2067.



Santa ended up at the law enforcement center Thursday, but not for any wrong-doing. Rather, he was there to do something extremely good for this time of year, give presents to good little boys and girls. He also had turkeys in his pack, placed there by the Ground Swell group, which he gave to very good mothers and fathers. Santa's helpers were contributors to the angels trees at Pamda and K-Mart, private individuals, the River Road Casino, Law Enforcement personnel, Social Services, VIP and Crossroads.

Task Force to address domestic violence issues

by David Hill
Associate Editor

This is the third in a series of articles that explore what is being done at regional and local levels to address the problem of domestic violence.

Pennington County Domestic Violence Task Force, a new organization being formed in Pennington county, hopes to address issues of domestic violence. A rough draft of their mission statement states: "To obtain a widespread zero tolerance attitude toward domestic violence among all people in the community."

Domestic violence is a serious problem. In Pennington county, during the first quarter of fiscal year 1994, which includes the months of July, August, and September, Violence Intervention Project (VIP) in Thief River Falls received 193 contacts.

VIP maintains four offices in its seven-county region. Of the seven counties (Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Polk, Roseau, Pennington and Red Lake), 193 contacts were made in Pennington county, 173 in Polk, and 72 in Roseau. All of the others recorded less than 30 contacts.

Many of the individuals participating in the task force believe more attention needs to be focused on the issue of domestic violence. That's because many members of the group are often faced with the difficult problem of what to do with domestic violence problems.

Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said that all of the agencies and programs are in place, but such a task force brings the agencies together, which means they can keep abreast of what each is doing.

All of the organizations involved are also interested in taking a hard line on domestic violence. Froschheiser doesn't believe that attention being focused on domestic violence is merely representative of nationwide emphasis on domestic violence by the media. Although some people don't believe the problem is as widespread as it is, many more are tired of seeing what it does to people.

Froschheiser also has a specific goal in mind. His personal goal is to try and establish a program for batterers, or the people who commit the crime.

Committee membership includes representatives from VIP, law enforcement, judiciary, court administration, survivors of battering, clergy, educators, lawyers, prosecutors, social service representatives, mental health, probation officers, business leaders and public officials.

Although the group is relatively new, it has already established goals, which give an indication of the direction the committee is focused.

Committee goals include:

- Support and assist development and implementation of a prosecution plan for domestic violence cases;
- Support implementation of law enforcement's domestic violence policy;
- Provide financial assistance to Glenmore to furnish their batterers treatment program in Thief River Falls for participants who can only pay for a portion of the fee;
- Enhancement of public education;
- Increase communication and understanding among service providers who have contact with battered women.

Although the task force believes that it is overly optimistic to believe that domestic violence will be eliminated, they believe their activities will have a positive impact on the problem.

Veterans Administration to pay dividends on life insurance

More than $955 million in dividends—including $19.1 million to Minnesota's 53,154 insured veterans—will be paid by the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) to veterans holding active veterans' life insurance policies.

These dividends are made possible because veterans are living longer than originally predicted, and the insurance trust funds are earning high yields from investment in long-term government securities.

The 1994 payout will be credited automatically to some 2.5 million policyholders on the anniversary date of their policies. Policyholders may choose to receive a check or select one of nine alternate dividend options. VA is cautioning veterans that only those policies that have been kept in force receive annual dividend distributions.

The dividend amount will vary according to age, type of insurance and duration of the policy. No application from individual policyholders is necessary.

Government life insurance policies were issued to World War I and II and Korean Conflict veterans serving between 1917 and 1956.

The largest group to receive 1994 payments will be 2.1 million veterans of World War II with National Service Life Insurance ("V") policies. They will receive an average payment of $392, with total payments expected to reach $812.3 million.

While VA also administers a program offering mortgage life insurance coverage and a special life insurance program for disabled veterans, neither pays dividends. VA supervises a contract with a private carrier to underwrite Servicemen's Group Life Insurance for active-duty service members and reservists. No dividends are paid on Servicemen's Group Life Insurance.

Veterans who have questions about they policy may call the VA insurance toll-free number: 1-800-669-8477.

Snow sculpture contest named for Dean Dokkin

As part of the annual snowmobile race, which is being called the Ironman 250 this year, the Sno-Drifters will sponsor a snow sculpture contest. This year, the contest is named in honor of Dean Dokkin, who died in a snowmobile accident in November.

The Dean Dokkin Snow Sculpture Contest is sponsored by the Thief River Falls Sno-Drifters as part of the 1994 Ironman 250 Snowmobile race, which will be held January 8 and 9 in Thief River Falls.

There is no theme for the contest, but entries will be judged on how well they develop a theme. Scuptures must be made entirely of snow and ice with no "foreign" superstructure. Props and colorization may be used for effect as needed.

There is no charge to enter, but snow sculptures must be registered by January 5 and completed by January 7. Sculptures must be located on one of the major thoroughfares in Thief River Falls — Highway 59, 32 and 1 or First Street between Pennington Avenue and Highway 59 SE. Be sure to ask permission from the property owner before any sculpture is built.

Groups, organizations, clubs, businesses or individuals are eligible for the contest. All registration forms must be returned to the Chamber of Commerce office on Highway 59 by 5 p.m. Wednesday, January 5.

Judging will be conducted on Januray 7 and 8. The decision of the judges is final. First prize will net the winner $1,000. Second prize is $500. Third prize is $250.

Officers discovered that a number of interior doors had been damaged to gain entry to the five businesses located inside the building. Desks had been rummaged through, as well.

Items taken included a fax machine, wall clock, several limited edition prints, a cassette recorder, two small refrigerators, can of coffee, stereo-cassette player, brass table lamp and microwave. PARENTING SKILL TIPS:

Fifteen Ways To Help Children Like Themselves. Low Self-Esteem Is Why Some Kids Use Drugs!

1. Reward children. Give praise, recognition, a special privilege or increased responsibility for a job well done. Emphasize the good things they do, not the bad.
2. Take their ideas, emotions and feelings seriously. Don't belittle them by saying, "You'll grow out of it" or "It's not as bad as you think."
3. Define limits and rules clearly, and enforce them. But do allow leeway for your children within these limits.
4. Be a good role model. Let your children know that you feel good about yourself. Also let them see that you too can make mistakes and can learn from them.
5. Teach your children how to deal with time and money. Help them spend time wisely and budget their money carefully.
6. Have reasonable expectations for your children. Help them to set reachable goals so they can achieve success.
7. Help your children develop tolerance toward those with different values, backgrounds and norms. Point out other people's strengths.
8. Give your children responsibility. They will feel useful, and valued.
9. Be available. Give support when children need it.
10. Show them that what they do is important to you. Talk with them about their activities and interests. Go to their games, parents' day at school, drama presentations, awards ceremonies.
11. Express your values, but go beyond "do this" or "I want you to do that." Describe the experiences that determined your values, the decisions you made to accept certain beliefs, the reasons behind your feelings.
12. Spend time together. Share favorite activities.
13. Discuss problems without placing blame or commenting on a child's character. If children know that there is a problem but don't feel attacked, they are more likely to help look for a solution.
14. Use phrases that build self-esteem, such as "Thank you for helping" or "That was an excellent idea!" Avoid phrases that hurt self-esteem: "Why are you so stupid?"; "How many times have I told you?"
15. Show how much you care about them. Hug them. Tell them they are terrific and that you love them.

Task Force to address domestic violence issues

by David Hill
Associate Editor

This is the third in a series of articles that explore what is being done at regional and local levels to address the problem of domestic violence.

Pennington County Domestic Violence Task Force, a new organization being formed in Pennington county, hopes to address issues of domestic violence. A rough draft of their mission statement states: "To obtain a widespread zero tolerance attitude toward domestic violence among all people in the community."

Domestic violence is a serious problem. In Pennington county, during the first quarter of fiscal year 1994, which includes the months of July, August, and September, Violence Intervention Project (VIP) in Thief River Falls received 193 contacts.

VIP maintains four offices in its seven-county region. Of the seven counties (Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Polk, Roseau, Pennington and Red Lake), 193 contacts were made in Pennington county, 173 in Polk, and 72 in Roseau. All of the others recorded less than 30 contacts.

Many of the individuals participating in the task force believe more attention needs to be focused on the issue of domestic violence. That's because many members of the group are often faced with the difficult problem of what to do with domestic violence problems.

Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said that all of the agencies and programs are in place, but such a task force brings the agencies together, which means they can keep abreast of what each is doing.

All of the organizations involved are also interested in taking a hard line on domestic violence. Froschheiser doesn't believe that attention being focused on domestic violence is merely representative of nationwide emphasis on domestic violence by the media. Although some people don't believe the problem is as widespread as it is, many more are tired of seeing what it does to people.

Froschheiser also has a specific goal in mind. His personal goal is to try and establish a program for batterers, or the people who commit the crime.

Committee membership includes representatives from VIP, law enforcement, judiciary, court administration, survivors of battering, clergy, educators, lawyers, prosecutors, social service representatives, mental health, probation officers, business leaders and public officials.

Although the group is relatively new, it has already established goals, which give an indication of the direction the committee is focused.

Committee goals include:

- Support and assist development and implementation of a prosecution plan for domestic violence cases;
- Support implementation of law enforcement's domestic violence policy;
- Provide financial assistance to Glenmore to furnish their batterers treatment program in Thief River Falls for participants who can only pay for a portion of the fee;
- Enhancement of public education;
- Increase communication and understanding among service providers who have contact with battered women.

Although the task force believes that it is overly optimistic to believe that domestic violence will be eliminated, they believe their activities will have a positive impact on the problem.

Veterans Administration to pay dividends on life insurance

More than $955 million in dividends—including $19.1 million to Minnesota's 53,154 insured veterans—will be paid by the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) to veterans holding active veterans' life insurance policies.

These dividends are made possible because veterans are living longer than originally predicted, and the insurance trust funds are earning high yields from investment in long-term government securities.

The 1994 payout will be credited automatically to some 2.5 million policyholders on the anniversary date of their policies. Policyholders may choose to receive a check or select one of nine alternate dividend options. VA is cautioning veterans that only those policies that have been kept in force receive annual dividend distributions.

The dividend amount will vary according to age, type of insurance and duration of the policy. No application from individual policyholders is necessary.

Government life insurance policies were issued to World War I and II and Korean Conflict veterans serving between 1917 and 1956.

The largest group to receive 1994 payments will be 2.1 million veterans of World War II with National Service Life Insurance ("V") policies. They will receive an average payment of $392, with total payments expected to reach $812.3 million.

While VA also administers a program offering mortgage life insurance coverage and a special life insurance program for disabled veterans, neither pays dividends. VA supervises a contract with a private carrier to underwrite Servicemen's Group Life Insurance for active-duty service members and reservists. No dividends are paid on Servicemen's Group Life Insurance.

Veterans who have questions about they policy may call the VA insurance toll-free number: 1-800-669-8477.

Snow sculpture contest named for Dean Dokkin

As part of the annual snowmobile race, which is being called the Ironman 250 this year, the Sno-Drifters will sponsor a snow sculpture contest. This year, the contest is named in honor of Dean Dokkin, who died in a snowmobile accident in November.

The Dean Dokkin Snow Sculpture Contest is sponsored by the Thief River Falls Sno-Drifters as part of the 1994 Ironman 250 Snowmobile race, which will be held January 8 and 9 in Thief River Falls.

There is no theme for the contest, but entries will be judged on how well they develop a theme. Scuptures must be made entirely of snow and ice with no "foreign" superstructure. Props and colorization may be used for effect as needed.

There is no charge to enter, but snow sculptures must be registered by January 5 and completed by January 7. Be sure to ask permission from the property owner before any sculpture is built.

Groups, organizations, clubs, businesses or individuals are eligible for the contest. All registration forms must be returned to the Chamber of Commerce office on Highway 59 by 5 p.m. Wednesday, January 5.

Judging will be conducted on January 7 and 8. The decision of the judges is final. First prize will net the winner $1,000. Second prize is $500. Third prize is $250.

Officers discovered that a number of interior doors had been damaged to gain entry to the five businesses located inside the building. Desks had been rummaged through, as well.

Items taken included a fax machine, wall clock, several limited edition prints, a cassette recorder, two small refrigerators, can of coffee, stereo-cassette player, brass table lamp and microwave. PARENTING SKILL TIPS:

Fifteen Ways To Help Children Like Themselves. Low Self-Esteem Is Why Some Kids Use Drugs!

1. Reward children. Give praise, recognition, a special privilege or increased responsibility for a job well done. Emphasize the good things they do, not the bad.
2. Take their ideas, emotions and feelings seriously. Don't belittle them by saying, "You'll grow out of it" or "It's not as bad as you think."
3. Define limits and rules clearly, and enforce them. But do allow leeway for your children within these limits.
4. Be a good role model. Let your children know that you feel good about yourself. Also let them see that you too can make mistakes and can learn from them.
5. Teach your children how to deal with time and money. Help them spend time wisely and budget their money carefully.
6. Have reasonable expectations for your children. Help them to set reachable goals so they can achieve success.
7. Help your children develop tolerance toward those with different values, backgrounds and norms. Point out other people's strengths.
8. Give your children responsibility. They will feel useful, and valued.
9. Be available. Give support when children need it.
10. Show them that what they do is important to you. Talk with them about their activities and interests. Go to their games, parents' day at school, drama presentations, awards ceremonies.
11. Express your values, but go beyond "do this" or "I want you to do that." Describe the experiences that determined your values, the decisions you made to accept certain beliefs, the reasons behind your feelings.
12. Spend time together. Share favorite activities.
13. Discuss problems without placing blame or commenting on a child's character. If children know that there is a problem but don't feel attacked, they are more likely to help look for a solution.
14. Use phrases that build self-esteem, such as "Thank you for helping" or "That was an excellent idea!" Avoid phrases that hurt self-esteem: "Why are you so stupid?"; "How many times have I told you?"
15. Show how much you care about them. Hug them. Tell them they are terrific and that you love them.

Performing together in this musical undertaking will be the Northland Masterworks Chorale, Crookston Civic Music League Chorus and Philomusica, a professional chamber symphony from Minneapolis.

Arrangements for the oratorio are being made by Les Torgerson, director of music at Northland Community College; George French, director of music at the University of Minnesota—Crookston; and Jim Kent, director of the Crookston Civil Music League Chorus. Funding is provided by grants through the regional arts council of the Northwest Regional Development Commission.

The presentation of "Alexander's Feast" provides area vocalists with an opportunity to sing music of a master composer. No auditions are necessary and all singers are invited to participate. Ability to read music is required due to the limited time for rehearsals before the performance dates.

Persons desiring additional information may contact Torgerson at Northland Community College, phone 681-2181.

Sentencing to Serve program expanded

Non-violent inmates of county jails work off sentences at supervised community service work sites

by Donna Myhrer

Planning the expansion of the Sentencing to Service (STS) program to coordinate program at the county jails of Pennington, Marshall and Kittson counties are (left to right) Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe, Marshall County Sheriff Dennis Brekke, Kittson County Sheriff Ray Hunt, Dennis Drury of the Minnesota department of corrections and STS coordinator Scott Peters.

Question: How do you improve on a public service which has been saving money for Pennington county for the past four years while it provides free assistance for a number of local non-profit organizations? Answer: You expand it. Beginning in January 1994, the Sentencing to Service (STS) program, which was started on a part-time basis in 1989 for Pennington county, will also serve Marshall and Kittson counties.

STS/Community Service has already been substantially reducing jail expenses for Pennington county and, to a smaller extent, Kittson county. It allows non-violent inmates to do supervised work at community service work sites such as schools, museums and city and county offices which "pays" them by reducing the time required by the court for a jail sentence. Prisoners are not paid any wages for this work, although the rate of $5 per hour is used for calculating the equivalent for fines and for each eight hours of community service work one day of jail time is reduced from one's sentence.

STS/Community Service is also used as an alternative to collecting court-ordered fines. According to Judge Larry Jorgenson, this provides an option for the court to ensure that the public gets something back from an individual who has broken the law. He is pleased with how well it has worked in Pennington county, especially for those who can't afford to pay fines. Sheriff Gerald Moe of Pennington county points out that when a fine is collected part of it goes to the state. When an inmate works at a local work site, all of the benefit is kept in the local area.

Sheriff Dennis Brekke of Marshall county says that, although he has not previously used this particular program, Marshall county has used community service sentencing options and has utilized prisoners for some maintenance work, such as raking leaves, at the courthouse in Warren.

Kittson county has a jail facility, which is limited to 72-hour holds of prisoners and one cell which is used for up to three inmates who are involved in the Huber Law, which allows a person to continue working at his job during the day while spending the nights at the jail. Most of those sentenced to jail time by the Kittson county court are presently sent to Warren. Sheriff Ray Hunt says that Kittson county has made use of some STS projects, providing free labor to the Kittson County Developmental Achievement Center in Lake Bronson, the Lake Bronson state park and the local highway department, as well as some painting of township buildings and tarring a walking trail in Hallock recently. He points out that some of this work, when the non-profit organization must depend on volunteers from the community, just doesn't get done. "It's been good for the inmates and for the public." Hunt adds that he expects the consolidation with the Pennington county STS program to make the program more efficient, while it continues to provide assistance to Kittson county organizations as well as those in the other two counties.

Sheriff Moe likes the flexibility of the program, as "it is offered in a lot of different ways." As in the past, there will be work by inmates both on work crews and as individuals depending on availability of work sites and other factors. Scott Peters, STS project coordinator, says that part of his responsibility in the expansion of the program will be to develop new work sites in all three counties.

Peters also explains that no "hard-core" prisoners are assigned to Community Service work. The judge must specifically list STS/Community Service as an option for sentencing.

Brekke adds that he sees little risk to the public. "I don't think STS should replace sitting in jail, if the inmate is dangerous."

Lowell Enerson, director of the Red Lake Watershed, has been making work available to the STS/Community Service program for over a year in Pennington county and prior to that time was assisted by a similar program operated by the Tri-County correctional facility in Crookston. He says that the watershed also gets help, mainly with clearing brush from riverbanks, from two other STS programs in the area. He explains that in years past area residents would keep the riverbanks clean when they cut wood there for fuel. "That's changed. And if the brush is allowed to accumulate too much, it ends up in the river and causes a lot of problems downstream wrecking bridges and dams." He cites an example in Moorhead recently where the cost of repairing damage by floating logs and debris cost $65,000. "Using STS is a better investment."

The STS crews work from December to February removing trees that would otherwise fall into the river and stabilizing the riverbanks. "If we had to hire a private contractor, it would cost hundreds of thousands of dollars and there just isn't the money in our budget. The work simply wouldn't get done."

The Red Lake Watershed pays $8,000 a year to Pennington county and is then guaranteed a number of hours of work from inmates. Enerson adds that in addition to the financial savings, the rivers are kept open and safer for recreational purposes such as canoeing.

In a review of the Pennington county STS/Community Service program for 1992, it was reported that 174 persons were assigned to a variety of jobs in the community, including waterway maintenance, painting of buildings and rennovation at the Pioneer Village Museum. Seven hundred total days of jail time were eliminated, saving $14,000 of county money and $24,500 of state-provided funds. The dollar equivalent of the work done by the prisoners was $48,575 at the rate of $5 per hour. In 1992, the report concludes, the out-of pocket cost of this program was $15,061.

Working on a project for the Red Lake Watershed to remove brush from the riverbank by the Thief River Falls dam are two inmates of the Pennington county jail who are involved in the Sentencing to Service (STS) program. The program is presently being expanded to coordinate services in Marshall and Kittson counties as well as Pennington.

"It's hard work sometimes but I enjoy being out in the fresh air."

"These hours of STS are going to allow me to be home with my family by Christmas."

And from one crew member who had just suffered a minor injury and was asked whether he would like to

Sentencing to Serve program expanded

by Donna Myhrer

Planning the expansion of the Sentencing to Service (STS) program to coordinate program at the county jails of Pennington, Marshall and Kittson counties are (left to right) Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe, Marshall County Sheriff Dennis Brekke, Kittson County Sheriff Ray Hunt, Dennis Drury of the Minnesota department of corrections and STS coordinator Scott Peters.

Working on a project for the Red Lake Watershed to remove brush from the riverbank by the Thief River Falls dam are two inmates of the Pennington county jail who are involved in the Sentencing to Service (STS) program. The program is presently being expanded to coordinate services in Marshall and Kittson counties as well as Pennington.

Question: How do you improve on a public service which has been saving money for Pennington county for the past four years while it provides free assistance for a number of local non-profit organizations? Answer: You expand it. Beginning in January 1994, the Sentencing to Service (STS) program, which was started on a part-time basis in 1989 for Pennington county, will also serve Marshall and Kittson counties.

STS/Community Service has already been substantially reducing jail expenses for Pennington county and, to a smaller extent, Kittson county. It allows non-violent inmates to do supervised work at community service work sites such as schools, museums and city and county offices which "pays" them by reducing the time required by the court for a jail sentence. Prisoners are not paid any wages for this work, although the rate of $5 per hour is used for calculating the equivalent for fines and for each eight hours of community service work one day of jail time is reduced from one's sentence.

STS/Community Service is also used as an alternative to collecting court-ordered fines. According to Judge Larry Jorgenson, this provides an option for the court to ensure that the public gets something back from an individual who has broken the law. He is pleased with how well it has worked in Pennington county, especially for those who can't afford to pay fines. Sheriff Gerald Moe of Pennington county points out that when a fine is collected part of it goes to the state. When an inmate works at a local work site, all of the benefit is kept in the local area.

Sheriff Dennis Brekke of Marshall county says that, although he has not previously used this particular program, Marshall county has used community service sentencing options and has utilized prisoners for some maintenance work, such as raking leaves, at the courthouse in Warren.

Kittson county has a jail facility, which is limited to 72-hour holds of prisoners and one cell which is used for up to three inmates who are involved in the Huber Law, which allows a person to continue working at his job during the day while spending the nights at the jail. Most of those sentenced to jail time by the Kittson county court are presently sent to Warren. Sheriff Ray Hunt says that Kittson county has made use of some STS projects, providing free labor to the Kittson County Developmental Achievement Center in Lake Bronson, the Lake Bronson state park and the local highway department, as well as some painting of township buildings and tarring a walking trail in Hallock recently. He points out that some of this work, when the non-profit organization must depend on volunteers from the community, just doesn't get done. "It's been good for the inmates and for the public." Hunt adds that he expects the consolidation with the Pennington county STS program to make the program more efficient, while it continues to provide assistance to Kittson county organizations as well as those in the other two counties.

Sheriff Moe likes the flexibility of the program, as "it is offered in a lot of different ways." As in the past, there will be work by inmates both on work crews and as individuals depending on availability of work sites and other factors. Scott Peters, STS project coordinator, says that part of his responsibility in the expansion of the program will be to develop new work sites in all three counties.

Peters also explains that no "hardcore" prisoners are assigned to Community Service work. The judge must specifically list STS/Community Service as an option for sentencing.

Brekke adds that he sees little risk to the public. "I don't think STS should replace sitting in jail, if the inmate is dangerous."

Lowell Enerson, director of the Red Lake Watershed, has been making work available to the STS/Community Service program for over a year in Pennington county and prior to that time was assisted by a similar program operated by the Tri-County correctional facility in Crookston. He says that the watershed also gets help, mainly with clearing brush from riverbanks, from two other STS programs in the area. He explains that in years past area residents would keep the riverbanks clean when they cut wood there for fuel. "That's changed. And if the brush is allowed to accumulate too much, it ends up in the river and causes a lot of problems downstream wrecking bridges and dams." He cites an example in Moorhead recently where the cost of repairing damage by floating logs and debris cost $65,000. "Using STS is a better investment."

The STS crews work from December to February removing trees that would otherwise fall into the river and stabilizing the riverbanks. "If we had to hire a private contractor, it would cost hundreds of thousands of dollars and there just isn't the money in our budget. The work simply wouldn't get done."

The Red Lake Watershed pays $8,000 a year to Pennington county and is then guaranteed a number of hours of work from inmates. Enerson adds that in addition to the financial savings, the rivers are kept open and safer for recreational purposes such as canoeing.

In a review of the Pennington county STS/Community Service program for 1992, it was reported that 174 persons were assigned to a variety of jobs in the community, including waterway maintenance, painting of buildings and rennovation at the Pioneer Village Museum. Seven hundred total days of jail time were eliminated, saving $14,000 of county money and $24,500 of state-provided funds. The dollar equivalent of the work done by the prisoners was $48,575 at the rate of $5 per hour. In 1992, the report concludes, the out-of pocket cost of this program was $15,061.

Although these numbers are certainly impressive, they give only a part of the benefit picture. Local men on an STS work crew who were cutting brush from the riverbank by the Thief River Falls dam a few days ago expressed their appreciation with the following comments:

"It makes the days go by faster."

"It's hard work sometimes but I enjoy being out in the fresh air."

"These hours of STS are going to allow me to be home with my family by Christmas."

BIBLE STUDY

How to receive the abundant life

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

Jesus Christ came with good news. It was good news about the abundant life, and how to qualify for the kingdom of heaven (John 10:10; Luke 8:1; 2 Thess. 1:5). He came to show and to tell us how to live this Way of life. He said a child would have no trouble understanding or living this Way (Matt. 18:3).

To further demonstrate the simplicity of this Way of life, He said sinners of the worst sort and people who were considered fools, weak-minded or lowly would have no trouble living this simple, pure, godly way of life (Matt. 21:31; 11:25; 1 Cor. 1:26-29). One simply needs the attitude and willingness of an obedient child to a loving Father to start living this Way of life (1 John 3:7, 10; Luke 18:17).

What is this Way? It's called the Way of righteousness (Matt. 21:32; Acts 18:25-26; 19:9, 23; 22:4; 24:14, 22). It is the Way to live righteously and blamelessly before God (Phil. 1:10; 1 Cor. 1:8; Psalm 18:30). A person lives this Way by learning to practice righteousness and by doing good deeds for others and those in need (1 John 3:7, 18-19).

Doing our good deeds in Jesus Christ's name, for the reason of glorifying God in heaven, is showing Him we really love Him (Col. 3:17; Matt. 5:16; 1 John 5:3). When we imitate the Way He lives in heaven, His Will is done instead of ours (Eph. 5:1). If we live just to please Him, He lives just to please us (Heb. 13:21). Living to please the Lord daily by doing good toward others is living by the Spirit, who is God (Gal. 5:16-17, 25).

Satan has control of our old nature, or our flesh, but when we begin living to please God by living to the Spirit, Satan loses control. When we practice righteousness for God, we stop carrying out the evil thoughts and desires of the flesh. By committing our ways—our thoughts, words and deeds—to the Lord, we are putting to death the deeds of the flesh and overcoming our old nature (Gal. 6:15; Rom. 8:13). Then, if we endure and don't grow weary in doing good deeds, we will allow Jesus Christ to put our old nature under our feet, weakened and crushed (Heb. 10:36; 1 Peter 5:10; Gal. 6:9; 2 Thess. 3:13; Rom. 16:20; 2 Tim. 2:26). When we cease from all works of the flesh, we will enter the Lord's rest (Heb. 4:10). We will then enter the abundant life, which the Lord has waiting for all who put Him first in their lives by turning from their wicked ways (1 Thess. 3:8; Rev. 22:11; Acts 3:26).

For 1994: A "Bill Of Responsibilities"

Americans enjoy freedoms beyond the wildest dreams of those who live in many other nations of the world. In our exercise of and devotion to those freedoms, however, we may tend to forget that they are only part of the making of a great nation. We are reminded of this by a "Bill Of Responsibilities" prepared by a group of prominent scholars commissioned by the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, PA, a few years ago.

The preamble to this document makes a statement which should be as obvious as it is fundamental: "Freedom and responsibility," it declares, "are mutual and inseparable; we can ensure the enjoyment of the one only by exercising the other.."

As we stand poised on the threshold, ready to step into a new year with a long list of resolutions, it is an appropriate time to consider that our freedoms do not come without responsibilities. The 10 articles in the Bill of Responsibilities call upon Americans to voluntarily observe the following rules:

(1) Be fully responsible for our own actions and for the consequences of those actions. Freedom to choose carries with it the responsibility of our choices.

(2) Respect the rights and beliefs of others. In a free society, diversity flourishes. Courtesy and consideration toward others are measures of a civilized society.

(3) Give sympathy, understanding and help to others...

(4) Do our best to meet our own and our families' needs. There is no personal freedom without economic freedom. By helping ourselves and those closest to us to become productive members of society, we contribute to the strength of the nation.

(5) Respect and obey the laws.....Liberty itself is built on a foundation of law. That foundation provides an orderly process for changing laws. It also depends on our obeying laws once they have been freely adopted.

(6) Respect the property of others, both private and public. No one has a right to what is not his or hers. The right to enjoy what is ours depends on our respecting the right of others to enjoy what is theirs.

(7) Share with others our appreciation of the benefits and obligations of freedom. Freedom shared is freedom strengthened.

(8) Participate constructively in the nation's political life. Democracy depends on an active citizenry. It depends equally on an informed citizenry.

(9) Help freedom survive by assuming personal responsibility for its defense. Our nation can not survive unless we defend it. Its security rests on the individual determination of each of us to help preserve it.

(10) Respect the rights and meet the responsibilities on which our liberty and our democracy depends.

There is nothing legally enforceable about the Bill of Responsibilities like there is about the Bill of Rights, of course, but it has a good deal of substance and makes great good sense.

Problems that have plagued our nation and the world in the past will continue to be problems in 1994 and beyond. The United States will be trying to find ways to effectively deal with crime, drugs, poverty, undermining of traditional family values and many other difficulties. Progress in these areas will be much quicker if Americans subscribe to the responsibilities suggested.

Sir Winston Churchill had an insightful view of the United States when he said, "In the end, Americans will always do the right thing—after exhausting all other alternatives."

Astrup Says Schools Are Good And Getting Better

Guest Editorial
by Robert E. Astrup, President
Minnesota Education Association

It's the beginning of the year and some things are very predictable. People will make resolutions to be kinder, gentler or thinner. The President will issue a "State of the Union" message, and the governor will follow suit to let us know how the state is doing. Mayors will tell us how things are going in their communities.

People may come up with ideas for reforming our public education system. Some propose incremental changes; others want to destroy the system. Recently, I decided to do some research to put together my version of "The State of the State's Public Education System." What I found made me hopeful—and happy.

Some of us were born in Minnesota; others chose to make this their home. In either case, it's fair to say Minnesotans take pride in where they live. And both money and Fortune magazines applaud our choice. Every year since 1990, Money ranked Minneapolis/St. Paul, Duluth, Rochester and St. Cloud among the best places to live in the United States. Fortune called our schools "outstanding" and ranked Minneapolis/St. Paul among the nation's top two cities for business.

Our students have the highest high school graduation rate in the nation. Our eighth graders score first in the country in math. Scores for Minnesota students who take the ACT college entrance exam are up for the third straight year—and their scores rank among the best in the nation.

Minnesota public school teachers take their jobs seriously and are committed to using new, innovative ways to reach students. Site-based decision making holds the promise of allowing teachers and parents to take active roles in identifying and solving problems at the school site, where students learn and where changes bring more immediate results. Teachers are using staff development opportunities to design programs to meet their ongoing professional education needs.

This doesn't mean things can't improve. There always will be ways to deliver services more effectively, more efficiently or in a more timely manner. The best of all worlds occurs when teachers, parents and students agree to work hard together toward success in school. That's why educators encourage parents and community members to take active roles in their public schools. And that's why it is so important that parents take an interest in and provide guidance for their own children. The fact is our public schools are educating more students than ever before—and doing a better job.

Good news should be shouted from the rooftops. It's time to let everyone know that Minnesota's public schools are very good—and they're getting better!

LETTERS

To The Editor:

I have read John Wengeler's statements (Northern Watch, Dec. 18) against the leg hold trap and trapping. He also says he doesn't agree with Gordon Forester's views. I think if Mr. Wengeler had contacted Mr. Forester (a DNR game biologist), he could have filled him in on the necessity of trapping and the leg hold trap. This may have saved him and me some writing and a lot of people a serious misconception of trappers.

Mr. Wengeler states trapping, hunting and fishing do not belong in the same category because trapping is simply done for money. I trap mainly for fox, raccoon and mink. These furs—after I have spent many dollars in gas and equipment and many hours skinning, fleshing, stretching, combing and drying them—are worth an average of $7 for fox, $5 for raccoon and $12 for mink. As you can see, there is very little profit and a lot of hard work and hours put in.

So why do I do it? For the same reasons I hunt. I enjoy wildlife and the outdoors. Also for the sport, and conservation. The meat is a bonus of hunting.

I trap in the same areas I hunt to take some of the pressure off the ducks, geese, ruffed grouse and sharptail grouse from their predators—the fox, raccoon, mink and skunk. The birds then have a chance to nest and raise their broods. In return, I hope to have a little better hunting season and ensure the survival of all the species—not just the predators. We are not living in the 18th century. Conservation needs to be practiced.

Mr. Wengeler writes against the leg hold trap but I doubt he has any experience with its proper use; according to his comments. I have caught a few non-target animals including a dog and cat that have strayed from home and released them all with no more than a limp for a day or two plus a good lesson learned. I feel that used properly the leg hold trap is the most effective and versatile trap there is and very humane.

Mr. Wengeler mentioned one of the reasons he is against trapping is he once found a white leg in a trap, and that's all there was. This can happen when a rabbit gets caught and a fox or a wolf comes along for an easy lunch. Sorry, but Mr. Fox or Mr. Wolf is not much of a sport when it comes to food. It is best to check with the trapper (his name should be on the trap) or the game warden before jumping to the wrong conclusion. If there has been some wrong doing, the warden will be happy to take care of it.

I would like to add that I hold nothing against Mr. Wengeler or people like him who hunt only with a camera; in fact, I encourage it. But keep in mind your contribution to wildlife and the outdoors in dollars is zero for your sport, whereas it costs trappers, hunters and fishermen through license fees for theirs.

I spend about $125 a year in license fees for my sports. Through fishing, trapping and hunting, catch and release, Hides for Habitat, Pheasants Forever, Deer Hunters Association, Minnesota Trappers Association, Ducks Unlimited, hunting clubs, DNR, and many other organizations, we are able to keep an abundant and healthy wildlife population.

In conclusion, before Mr. Wengeler or anyone condemns a trapper, hunter or fisherman, they should consider the facts and thank them instead. I realize there are slob trappers, hunters and fishermen out there, but don't condemn us all for a few. And remember, we can all make mistakes.

Sincerely,
Tom Fisher

To The Editor:

I read with interest your editorial opinion in the November 27, 1993 edition of the Northern Watch, concerning my candidacy for Governor of Minnesota. I believe you have rushed to judgment in expressing your opinion. I hope the information I have supplied you—namely, my crime package—will change your views.

You question the Hennepin County "Drop Your Guns" program, and its impact on crime. It is important for Northwestern Minnesota to understand that the Twin Cities Metropolitan area has a significant and growing violent crime problem, particularly among our youth. In Hennepin county alone, for example, the number of murders committed by juveniles has increased by more than 150% this year.

The gun buy-back program was an effort utilizing non-taxpayer funds to raise the level of consciousness in the Twin Cities regarding the number of guns on the streets and the level of escalating violence. The program was targeted to youth and was followed by an educational theater performance in the schools intended to heighten our children's awareness of the dangers associated with using weapons to solve disputes.

I believe that my crime package stands in stark contrast to the limited proposals of Governor Carlson whose belated "solutions" to crime involve only limited "after the fact" concepts. Certainly, we must be unwavering in holding violent predators responsible for their conduct.

But, my experience in dealing with crime both in the State Senate and as Hennepin County Attorney shows that such an unwavering commitment is just the first step toward achieving secure communities. We need a preventive approach which addresses the root causes of crime. We need to address family violence and violence in schools. We also need to educate our children about the dangers of gun violence.

I hope you will give my candidacy and my crime package a more thorough look. I look forward to discussing this and other important issues with the citizens of Minnesota.

Sincerely,
Michael O. Freeman
Hennepin County Attorney

Nanci Kezar of Home Sweet Home in Thief River Falls was presented an award from Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice President Bob Bergan for best interior Christmas display. This is the first time the chamber has issued the award. Nanci said she was appreciative to the community for their support. She said she enjoys serving the people of the area and extends her wishes for a sense of peace this holiday season to everyone. Preparation for the holiday season at Home Sweet Home, which is located at Fifth and LaBree in Thief River Falls, begins every February and is ever present on Nanci's mind. Two to three months before the season, Home Sweet Home staff actually begin working on displays.

return to the jail for the rest of the day.

"No! They could cut off my leg, and they still couldn't get me off this crew -- it's great!"

Peters adds that the program has had several donations of things like gloves for the outdoor work on the riverbank this time of year.

Dennis Drury of the Minnesota Department of Corrections believes that combining STS/Community Service programs for the three counties will result in a stronger program with the likelihood that a larger crew will get more work done on a particular job and the work environment will be safer and more efficient than when run by a single county. He says that statewide "for every dollar invested by a county, there is a return of about $2." There is also, in his opinion, a good chance to build self-esteem in the prisoners by giving a feeling of accomplishment and developing better work skills and habits.

Judge Jorgenson states that setting and enforcing the rules of a tightly controlled STS/Community Service program is an important part of making it work to everyone's benefit. He says that the sheriffs of the three counties will be meeting with area judges on a monthly basis for the next six months to iron out any problems. He feels strongly that the administration of the STS/Community Service program should be kept simple and not "turned into a bureacracy."

A former Pennington county inmate sums the benefits of STS/Community Service up in a letter he sent recently to Scott Peters. "I didn't always like the jobs I got, but when they were done it was nice to see the results. It gives a person a little pride in himself. I hope the program continues for others in my situation. It does the community a lot of good and gives the guys a chance to pay for their mistakes."

Falls Liquor in Thief River Falls won an award from the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce for best interior Christmas design. Chamber Executive Vice President Bob Bergan presented the award last week when staff could be present. Steve Olson, manager of the liquor store, credited his entire staff for working many long hours on the displays. Steve invited the public to stop in and see the displays. Olson said to let him or his staff know if there is anything they can do to help with your holiday planning. Olson and the entire staff extended their best wishes this holiday season. This is the first year that the chamber of commerce has sponsored the award program. Hoard and Diane Gonsorowski said they spent several hours on the window displays. The key to their success, Hoard said, was to try to keep it as simple as possible. Although it took a lot of work, it was a lot of fun, she said. Bjorkman's is located near Second and Third Street on LaBree Avenue in downtown Thief River Falls.

NW Initiative Fund awards four new loans

Four loans totaling $393,750 have been awarded by the Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund's board of directors. Amount of each loan is not made available by the fund's loan specialists.

Recipients are the May Corporation of Grygla, Quality Packing, Inc. of Stephen, Nortech Systems Inc. of Bemidji and Pioneer Drug in Fertile.

As part of the fund's business development program, the revolving loan fund provides gap financing for business start-ups and expansions that create new jobs leading to long term community impact and diversification of the area's economy.

May Corporation is receiving a loan to update and purchase additional equipment needed to increase production for the manufacture of wheeled recliners for the elderly and disabled. Considered to be "a new and growing business in the region," the corporation recently repaid a previous working capital loan made by NWMIF that successfully assisted the company in expanding its markets and work force.

Quality Packing, Inc. received a loan for new building construction and purchase of equipment for a new business which washes, grades and packages potatoes grown in the Red River Valley. Some 23 new jobs were expected to be created.

The 66x200 wash plant has a capacity to wash, bag and load from seven to eight semi loads (440 hundredweight per load) per day. The plant is now operating and supplies Northern Valley Produce, also of Stephen, which markets potatoes throughout the United States.

Nortech Systems of Bemidji manufactures wire harnesses and cable assemblies used in various high-tech industries and will use its loan for equipment purchases to expand production capabilities and add up to 74 new positions to its work force.

Pioneer Drug in Fertile will continue to operate as a result of gap financing provided to the new owner to purchase the business. The Initiative Fund considers retail loans to businesses that are considered "anchor" stores for a community. Pioneer Drug is the second retail business to receive funding under this expanded component of the revolving loan program.

According to its offices in Bemidji, the Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund is a charitable foundation committed to improving the quality of life for residents of northwest Minnesota an assisting the region to achieve economic stability through a variety of loans, grants, technical assistance and training and education programs.
